SUMMARY.

The enemy counter-attacks about Ginchy led to fierce hand-to-hand fighting. Upwards of 200 Germans were taken prisoner.

The Germans made several night attacks at various points on the new French front.

The French artillery and machine guns inflicted severe losses on the enemy.

A Berlin communique states that fighting continues for the possession of Ginchy.

The Germans admit losing advanced trenches near Longueval and Leuze Wood.

The German defence of Halicz, on the Eastern front, is wavering.

The Germans and the Turks are vainly striving to keep the Russian batteries from enveloping the town.

Reports received in Rome claim that the Bulgarian offensive in the Dobrudja has been arrested.

The bombardment of Balchik by the Russian fleet crushed the Bulgarian right, causing the evacuation of Dobrich.

The Bulgarians are reported to be evacuating Varna, in consequence of the Russian advance cutting the railway.

The enemy used heavy guns against Silistria, a Roumanian town on the Danube, and destroyed the forts in a few hours.

Vigorous fighting continues on the northwestern and northern fronts of Roumania.

The Roumanians captured Chikszereda, east of Teplitza, and continued the pursuit of the enemy westward.

The Roumanians are advancing upon Hermannstadt, the chief town in Transylvania, and are occupying villages.

The Austro-Hungarians are retreating towards the Maros River.

Petrograd experts point out that the recent Russian communiques are remarkable for what they leave unsaid.

The most important news is expected daily, but no word of it will be said until success crowns the Russian effort.

A mystery concerns the stern battle raging at Halicz, where the Germans are making a desperate effort to secure their retreat.

A German communique says that General von Bothmer cleverly frustrated a Russian attempt to take Halicz.

The German General Staff designed that the army, numbering 150,000, should cut General Brussiloff's centre.

General Brussiloff countered the scheme, and it is now a question whether the German army has any means of escape.

General Brussiloff's armies on a 300-mile front continue to advance with methodical stubbornness.

Russia's goal, it is explained, is to maintain pressure on Austria, and assist Roumania and the Allies.

Strong British detachments on the Struma front have crossed the river and engaged the enemy.

It is understood that the Allies are willing to do their utmost to furnish military equipment in the event of Greece joining in.

An Athens message states that M. Zaimis has tendered his resignation. King Constantine has not announced his decision.

The immediate cause of the Cabinet crisis is not known.

M. Zaimis admitted that the Allies were fully entitled to send the fleet to Piraeus, in view of the Bulgarian advance on Kavala.

M. Zaimis takes almost as strong a view as M. Venizelos regarding the necessity for Greece co-operating with the Allies.

An explosion occurred on board the Italian battleship Leonardo da Vinci in Taranto Harbour on August 2.

The ship was flooded, and sank in 40ft of water. Many lives were lost by the explosion.

The authorities fear that the disaster is connected with a series of daring outrages perpetrated by German spies.

It is reported from Amsterdam that Germany has seized £30,000,000 from the coffers of the Belgian National Bank.

There has been an enormous increase in the shipments of meat from the United States for Europe.

Canada's exports of meat have increased tenfold since the war broke out.

In the Assembly the Minister for Labour admitted that it was impossible to prevent the recurrence of strikes.

The House discussed a motion affirming the need for greater responsibilities by the State in the care of children.

The Government introduced a proposal to give votes at the general elections to all soldiers at the front.

In the Council the Forestry Bill was further considered in committee. The postponed clauses were passed, with amendments.

It is notified that before making appeals for patriotic or war funds local bodies should apply to the State War Council.

All efforts, it is pointed out, should now be concentrated on the creation of one national fund—the Repatriation Fund.

Proposals for the introduction of preferential voting were discussed by the State Cabinet yesterday.

They were rejected on the ground that the method was too cumbrous, and likely to cause too many informal votes.

A roll of honour bearing the names of 100 young men who have enlisted from Port Kembla has been unveiled.

An effort is being made to get the South Coast coal companies to allow the wives of miners on active service to live rent free.

The Central Council of Employers recommend employers to give preference to returned soldiers whether they are unionists or not.

An attempt at incendiarism has been reported to the police by a Newtown drapery firm.

The police believe that these attempts at incendiarism are being carried out by a gang of foreigners.

Reports on kindergarten work were given at a meeting of the committee of the Union held at Government House yesterday.

Three new schools had been opened since the last meeting. The need of artistic surroundings for children was emphasised.

Alderman Bourke has been selected as the Labour nominee for Belmore, defeating Mr. P. J. Minahan, the present member.

The Asbestos Commission was mainly occupied yesterday in taking the evidence of experts in typewriting.

The first experiment in the sale of State-trawled fish in Bathurst is regarded as a failure.

About 250 men are idle at the Bulli colliery. The horses have been brought out of the mine.

The application of the linesmen and mechanics (Post and Telegraphs) for increased wages was heard in Melbourne yesterday.

A memo from the Postmaster-General referred to the "eternal agitation and discontent arising from variations in wages rates."

The shire council employees at Walcha have been paid off.

The new award is considered unworkable by the shire councillors, who have decided in favour of contract work.

At the Cowra show, horses, cattle, and sheep were strongly represented. There were record entries in shorthorns.

Mr. Gresley Lukin, editor of the Wellington (N.Z.) "Evening Post," died yesterday.

The Rev. J. Paterson and the Rev. C. H. Talbot have been nominated as Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly.

The Victorian Cricket Association has decided to adopt the innovation of eight balls to the over.

A healthier tone prevailed on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and share values were generally firm.

There was more animation in mining stocks. The market improved for copper and silver-lead stocks, but eased for gold and tin.

Trade in groceries was again quiet. The labour trouble in Queensland caused more attention to be paid to sugar.

Weather Forecast.—Fine generally, and warmer, with freshening northerly winds.

HOUSES AND LAND FOR SALE.

THE PRESENT DAY

SYSTEM OF HOME BUYING

as Applied to

HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.
HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

Do you know what it is?
Have you ever thought about it?

The whole scheme is simplicity itself. It has for its fundamental principles the repayment of the purchase money by instalments, weekly or monthly, which are graduated in accordance with the value of the property.

In hardly any case is the instalment more than a rental value, which alone makes the purchase as attractive as could be desired.

A PAYMENT OF £50 DEPOSIT is quite sufficient to obtain immediate possession of one of our New Cottages, though in any case we are only too pleased to discuss any reasonable terms with intending buyers.

THE TERMS ALONE
ARE NOT THE PRINCIPAL ATTRACTIONS
OF
HABERFIELD GARDEN SUBURB.

More than ordinary care and attention are taken in the construction of our Haberfield properties. Each is distinct in architectural design, and only a residence of a certain class and value can be erected. This condition complies with the ideals of modern Town Planning, upon which basis Haberfield was originally planned.

HABERFIELD COTTAGES RANGE FROM £[illegible].

The accommodation is adequate for all demands. The smaller 5-roomed Bungalow is completed in all details; spacious drawing and dining rooms, breakfast-room, and bedrooms. The domestic arrangements lay claim to particular attention, as nothing has been omitted which in any way shall tend for absolute convenience. Other Villas range from 7 rooms, according to requirements.

THE TITLE IS TORRENS,
and
INTEREST ONLY 5 PER CENT.

The last is a distinct consideration, we may say, at any time, but more particularly so now, as the ruling rate is far higher than this.

THE SPRING SEASON
SEES HABERFIELD TO ADVANTAGE.
COME OUT THIS AFTERNOON.

We shall be only too pleased to motor you round the suburb, and to go into details concerning the homes that we have for Sale.

You know where our office is—take Haberfield or Abbotsford tram to O'Connor-street. All details and Haberfield Illustrated Booklet on application to any of our offices.

LIKE BUYING £1 NOTES FOR ONE SHILLING IS BUYING LAND AT BANKSTOWN.

That has been the experience of many people already, and it will prove the experience of those who are wisely buying now.

The opening up of new estates at Bankstown provides a rare opportunity to investors.

On our new SUBURBAN PARK ESTATE there are quarter-acre blocks now available for from £12/10/ per block, which are absolutely certain to yield big profits, as the soil is excellent and the land ideal for small farming. The Estate adjoins our Bankstown Farmlets, and is in the midst of a progressive area.

Another splendid investment proposition is our SYDNEY PARK ESTATE, which we have just opened up in the same locality, and adjoining Mr. C. Leach's famous hatchery. These are also quarter-acre blocks, the very sites for poultry farms, and are wonderfully cheap at from £10/10/ each.

When the proposed tramline from Bankstown to George's River is constructed it will pass along both the above Estates, which will then become worth pounds per foot, and those buying now will realise enormous increases.

On our GREENACRE and EXTENSION ESTATES, the lands which have already produced the big yields to which we have referred, there are a few odd allotments now available. On Greenacre Park there are choice home sites from 66 x 219 feet, from 16/6 per foot, and on the Extension Estate there are a few centrally-situated lots, 66 x 165 feet, from 12/6 per foot.

Good Building Lots are now being offered on the BEACONSFIELD ESTATE, which is in a convenient position, being handy to the post-office, schools, and churches. There are quarter-acre blocks from £25 each, and for farmlets or poultry farms we are offering acre blocks for £45.

FINE HOME SITES can now be secured on the NEW ERA ESTATE, along Chappell-street, towards the George's River-road, 50 x 141 feet, from 13/6 per foot. Also on the WATTLE GROVE ESTATE, adjoining the New Era, there are blocks 50 x 165 feet, from £30 each.

On CONDELL PARK, which is handy to the station, and which possesses splendid soil, there are good lots 65 x 198 feet, from 9/6 per foot.

SAME OLD EASY TERMS—£1 deposit, and 10/ monthly for each £25 purchase value.

WOMEN IN CONFERENCE.

For many of the papers read at the Women's Conference in connection with the exhibition at the Town Hall, of which this is the final day, we were prepared, written as they were by women who were experts in that particular branch treated of by them. But it took by surprise those who followed the course of the series that so many new-comers were to the fore with really interesting and valuable information on all kinds of subjects, useful and important for women to know. Besides the readers of papers, there were several among the debaters whose ready comments showed that they were keeping abreast of the movements of the day. It really was a fine conference. The papers were not at all dull—as papers at a women's gathering are popularly supposed to be, though why they should be dull nobody quite knows. The one cause for regret is that the audiences were not larger. They would have increased in number each day only for the entrance fee. This was charged, not to benefit the council, but for the good of the exhibition. But had this special branch of women's work in war time been included among the demonstrations of each day covered by the entrance fee, it is safe to say that the number of listeners would have been trebled.

We expected, of course, good papers from Mrs. Francis Anderson on playgrounds; or from Mrs. MacCallum on ideal home management; or from Miss Duncan on work and wages; but we were not anticipating the pleasure which Mrs. Jamieson Williams gave in her forecast of what women's position will be in the economic world after the war, nor the new lights which Miss Collisson's remarks threw on the same subjects. Miss Macarthur Onslow, who is heard too seldom at meetings of the above kind, charmed all by her glance at the women of the past. Miss Onslow is an authority on historical family reminiscences, and it came as a refresher to have her to call up such "spirits of the past" as Mrs. Macquarie, Mrs. Macarthur, Mrs. Chisholm, Miss H. Osborne, and Miss Woolley. By taking for her subjects the pioneer women in many social and artistic movements, she was able to give fascinating glimpses of the deep love and almost passionate admiration which these fine women had for our own dear country. They helped to sow the seed, and now we are reaping the harvest—a harvest of devotion which in the dreadful day now upon us is manifesting itself.

Mrs. Jamieson Williams is a comparative newcomer as a platform speaker in Sydney. About two years ago she read an essay on women's part in the war to the Catholic Women's Society, and it made much impression for its eloquence, and also its clearly thought out arguments. She showed the same qualities in her last week's speech. Like Miss Rose Scott and Miss Annie Golding, Mrs. Williams chose a subject which could be dealt with in the "abstract," as the old Scot professor said, as well as in the "concrete," while Miss Bloomfield, on infant life, Mrs. Macarthur Onslow and Miss Ralston on Red Cross and War Chest work, spoke on actual work achieved or still to be done. Miss Roberts was very practical in what she said about women as wealth producers, and her theory seems to be that every woman doing good work is a wealth producer. She was much applauded when she said that in classing mothers of families among the 40,000 "women without employment" in our State, statists had made a great blunder. She made a good point in urging everybody to try to keep in mind that we shall have a tremendous debt to pay, and to keep as much money in the country as we can. By importing tinned vegetables and ready-made clothing we are sending out a large sum which we could easily save for ourselves. "We cannot grow cotton like America, nor silk like Japan," said Miss Roberts, "but we can at least make all our own clothes and grow all our own vegetables."

Actual reforms advocated by the speakers include such conveniences as better built houses, with lower steps. Awkward construction of houses leads to ill-health of mothers who do their own work and consequent frail physique of babies. More playgrounds for young and old instead of huge, useless buildings like the Q.V. Markets and other expensive undertakings; more daily help for women with young babies and growing families. The necessity that exists for women magistrates at the Children's Court and for women inspectors of schools was also brought out. Mr. Peter Board, who spoke on domestic training for girls, said that such training, if compulsory, should be given in the primary course. In the secondary course the girl should be given a choice of more than one occupation.

It used to be the fashion to say that women, if educated, would never, or could never, learn to relate the academic to the actual; that by approaching every human thing on its scientific side, they would lose their grip on the human side, and that intuition, woman's most characteristic gift would become lacking from the mental make-up of the future feminine nature. All such forecasts have now proved to be wrong over and over again, and another convincing proof is the kind of paper read at the above conference. Whether it is the war which is knocking on the head the detachment from vulgar realities, affected by the ultra-intellectual, or whether it is that an educated womanhood has really a contribution of value to make to the common stock of human wisdom, is hard to say. Probably both factors have their part in the result which is patent to all the world just now, both here and in the old world.

A WEEK'S MEALS.

Mr. Wm. C. Kem, of Katoomba, forwards the following recipes, showing how a leg of mutton may be made to last a whole week. The verses are copied from an old album, dated 1847, the year of the potato famine and scarcity in Great Britain, which Mr. Kem well remembers:—

As Sunday is a feast day boasted,
I like a leg of mutton roasted;
On Monday then my taste to tickle
I eat part cold with India pickle;
On Tuesday hash it—gravy made,
Some sippets round the dish first laid.
On Wednesday broil it with due care,
Some mashed potatoes, too, prepare;
On Thursday make a seasoned pie,
Or else some slices nicely fry;
And that it may the longer last
On Friday I proclaim a fast.
On Saturday when the cash runs narrow,
I crack the bone and eat the marrow,
And then that nought be thrown away,
I give the rest to hungry Tray.

Sandbags: No more sandbags are asked for. It would be a mistake to keep on making them.

Ben Sandwich Filling.—N.K.: This is a nice filling for Victoria sandwich. Beat butter and icing sugar together till it creams, then flavour with vanilla essence; one tablespoonful sugar to half dessertspoonful butter. Lemon cheese makes a good filling. One lemon, one egg, one teaspoonful butter, half a cup sugar. Grate one lemon, squeeze out the juice; beat together butter and egg; then put all in a saucepan and stir over a slow fire, or an asbestos mat on a gas jet, till it thickens. Using banana pulp, instead of lemon juice, you can make banana cheese. Place the basin over a saucepan of boiling water and stir till it thickens.

A WOMAN PIONEER.

Women are now turning their attention to land pursuits, and facilities are being daily offered them in that direction. But it is not altogether a new departure. There are already a number of women farmers in New South Wales. In the south-eastern district there is a cattle station owned and run by a woman for the past 40 years. This station is especially interesting in that it has been worked almost exclusively by woman labour. The owner is Miss Elizabeth M'Keahnie, of Blyth Burn, near Queanbeyan, well known throughout Monaro, who was born some few years after her parents landed here in 1838 from Scotland. Many are the tales of those early days stored within Miss M'Keahnie's wonderful memory—of difficulties and privations, of danger from the tribes of wandering blacks; tales of flood and snowstorm, of drought and bush fires.

There were other girls in the family, but this one loved the outdoor life best, and was ever riding by her father's side. For some years she was his right-hand support on the home station, and after his death she ran her own place of many thousand acres. It is just two years since she sold the greater part of it and retired to live a quiet life on the old homestead. Yet so strong are the chains of those 60 years of the work habit that every dawn sees her up milking the cows, her "pets," and evening finds her hoeing or chipping in the garden. Accustomed to a life of stoic simplicity, she has little time for the enervating luxuries that wealth brings.

For the past 40 years on her own property she has employed women, whom she herself trained to the work. At first, in accordance with custom, she tried men, but, to use her own words, she "found them too slow and slovenly." A careful training by her old Scot grandmother in cooking and the other domestic arts had made her fastidious. So she decided to experiment with women for outdoor work. She found, as the world is finding to-day in almost every branch of labour, that women brought the qualities of tidiness and care to bear on the strenuous tasks of station life equally as in the narrower domestic atmosphere. One girl remained with her for 19 years, but eventually they all left to marry.

Miss M'Keahnie and her girls could draft a mob of cattle as well and quickly as any men of the country side. She is known as one of the best cattle 'udges for 50 miles around. It is wild mountainous country, whose gullies and river flats give good pasture for cattle. Often all day would this woman ride alone out through the hills looking for strayed beasts. Many a time have she and her women fought the fires that in summer rage through that country. But worst of all were the droughts, when the bed of every creek lay dry and cracked, and the cattle died in scores. And then the good seasons would come, filled with work from dawn till night time—fencing, mustering, yarding, and delivering cattle.

One is what one is because of what one was, and those years of healthy toil have left their mark. At 72 this woman is strong, keen-eyed, and possessed of remarkable hearing. She can still do a 20-mile ride or a day's droving. Undimmed of intellect, she still follows the events of the outer world with interest; she is a lover of poetry, above all that of Robert Burns, and many of her thoughts and musings have been put into verse. And yet this life has not detracted one iota from her womanliness—rather has it enhanced it with that most necessary of virtues—strength of mind and body.

And her garden! A vision comes again of bees in daffodil cups and lowry parrots flashing through blossoming pear trees to the old poplars beyond.

Nothing gives this fine old lady greater pleasure than to read of the ever-increasing number of women turning to the land. She sees in it one of the healthiest signs of the woman movement, for she has tested the life and found it good. The fruit of her life's experience she sums up in the advice: "Go on the land, young woman!" M.G.

A STIFF UPPER LIP.

The little bride-elect was very sad. Her love story was a beautiful one, and she rejoiced over the wonderful love that had come to her; but war time is a sad time for a wedding. Many of her friends were mourning loved ones, and many of her own friends would never come back to sunny Australia, so who can wonder that the girl was sad?

Her future husband had volunteered several times, but had been refused each time; so he had to be content with doing all he could at home. He was a lonely man, and he needed her, so she had consented to marry him very soon.

"Mother," she said one day, "What am I to do about Constance? It seems so cruel to ask a widow, whose husband is lying away out there, to look at all my lovely things—and yet, can I leave her out when all the other girls are coming? She worshipped Jim, and everything here will remind her of what she has lost. Sometimes I feel that happiness is almost an impertinence at a time like this."

As she finished speaking the telephone bell rang.

"I'll go, dear," said the girl. Presently she returned.

"It was Constance," she said, with a sob; "she is coming to-morrow to see my things and to bring me a present, isn't it sweet of her? But oh, mother, I dread it so."

The next day the girl watched for her friend, and when she saw her coming she flew to meet her, her face grave, her eyes sad with pity. But it was a bright-faced woman who greeted her with smiles and tender, loving words.

After tea the girl took the young widow to see her glorious presents and beautiful garments, and she marvelled at the sweet interest her friend took in everything—no one had admired the lovely collection more. Then Constance gave her a lovely gift and a dainty pair of pale blue garters: "I made them, dear, for 'something blue;' I hope they will bring you luck." Tied to them was a card inscribed: "May roses bloom for you."

"It's such a lovely time, Maisie; I am so glad about it all. I know you will be very, very happy."

And still she smiled when she kissed her friend good-bye.

"Oh, mother, mother," said the girl, tears rolling down her cheeks, "isn't she brave? I know how it hurt her; I know she was thinking of her own wedding all the time, and of Jim. Oh, mother, she is brave—and yet there are people who dare to say she doesn't care."

And that night the woman, in her lonely home, prayed in an agony of grief: "Don't let me be a coward, dear God; don't let me be a coward; help me to keep a stiff upper lip all the time; to be as brave as he would wish me to be—as a soldier's widow should be."

ANN GRANT.

AN OPEN DOOR.

We were just a few girls in a big city with nothing to do from 5 o'clock till 8. "Where shall we go?" said one. "What about going to the Girls' Rest Rooms?" suggested another, so we agreed to make for that spot straight away. On arriving at the building of the Central Methodist Mission, we were curious to know what the rooms would be like, and our most sanguine expectations were more than realised when, on turning a corner of a corridor we saw an open door, which disclosed a charmingly furnished drawing-room artistically toned in red, the whole giving out a radiance of welcome. The girls were lost in admiration at this home scene right away from the noise and bustle of the street, and yet in a position so handy to the centre of the city. We sank into the cushions of the couches and chairs with a sigh of relief, and then quietness pervaded the rooms; some chatted quietly in little groups, some buried themselves in magazine or paper, while others with hats removed and eyes closed were truly resting. How much we appreciated this "open door" to rest and quietness, I should like to express to our kind hostess of the C.M. Mission.

JUST BOYS.

Managing a family of between 400 and 500 would tax the patience of the old woman who lived in a shoe even more than history records about her sorely tried endurance. But that is the number of boys who pass in one year through the hands of Miss E. Onians, of Melbourne, familiarly known the last 29 years (or thereabouts) as the "Newsboys' Friend." As one of the visiting members of the Children's Welfare Association, Miss Onians has been taking a deep interest in our institutions for the care of children, and has found much to praise in all, but naturally her heart has the warmest corner of all for the newsboys, whom she mothers with the greatest success. So well does she know the juvenile nature that nothing a boy could do would surprise Miss Onians. She understands and loves her large family, and is ready to do anything for them, from superintending the club-house, which is situated in Little Collins-street, at the rear of the Eastern Markets, to presenting her charges with "grown-up" clothes and sending them to the dentist's.

The Melbourne newsboys are not licensed, and they can start selling papers—out of school hours, of course—at three years of age if they like. They keep on at it all the time they are at school, and even when they go to work they still have what they call "anageanargus" ("Age" and "Argus") round, or are "Herald angels" in the evening. Then there are the race cards and books and the weekly papers. They, of course, make good money. Office boys who sell papers after hours make as much as 30s per week. The record for a newspaper runner is held by the boy who made £12 on the day King Edward's death was announced. Not even in war time was that large sum again touched.

"When the boys get into their 'teens their great ambition is to have 'long pants.' They consider themselves grown up then, and are equal to asking for any job that is going. But when they go to Flemington to sell 'card or book of the rices' they again don their knickers of boyhood, because they look more like half-fare travellers then. They think it fine to get a position as block boy. I have a letter written by one of the lads thanking me for the way I had helped him to better himself, and he had 'worked himself up to his present position of block boy' because he was determined to succeed in life. Some of them do succeed remarkably well. I keep in touch with my old boys, and some of them are in foremen's jobs, and oh, what numbers of them are soldiers! What splendid soldiers they make, too! These really are the lads who take to soldiering quite naturally. Their early struggles with the hardships of life make them adaptable, cheerful, brave, and patient. There are sergeant-majors, corporals, and sergeants among the old members of the City Newsboys' Society."

Listening to Miss Onians talk, one is reminded very strongly of the late Mr. Shearston, who gave that same sense of inevitableness—as if he could have done no other work—when talking about sailors and their ways, as Miss Onians does when she is discoursing on Melbourne newsboys.

WALKING TOURS.

Wattle and Boronia! What an inducement the "Herald" held out when it described the road from Campbelltown to Appin. I was one member of a small party of girls which set forth determined to see for itself. We were all city workers. Anxious to escape from the big working world into that "wide, brown land" for a few days. So, swag on back, we journey along the Appin Way. For the first three miles we saw none of the wild-flower beauties, but when we had surmounted a hill the wattle burst upon our view in all its dying splendour. One vast vivid patch of yellow, deepening to gold, touched with brown shades, presented itself to our gaze. And when we entered the "Avenue" we were speechless with the grandeur of it. "God's Cathedral!" exclaimed one girl, and we could not improve upon the title. A meal by the wayside, a cup of "billy" tea, and then on again to Appin to stay for the night in a dear, old-fashioned inn. Early next morning we took the road once more, and walked to the Cataract Dam. It was most interesting to go over the works, and see for ourselves why we have been asked to be careful with the water. We journeyed on again towards the Bulli Pass. Oh! the wild flowers, eriostemon, pale, and in large blossom, dillwynia in abundance, hardenbergia in purple glory scrambling over any support within reach, and boronia which lent a perfume to the whole bush. At last we reached the Look Out, and viewed the glorious stretch of coast with mingled feelings of wonder and awe. How did those old pioneers feel when, after travelling miles of inland stretches, they came at last in sight of the ocean?

On, downwards through the pass, on either hand clematis trailing over the trees, and tall tree-ferns struggling in the battle that ever rages in the forest for space and light. Green and glorious was this part of the journey, pleasing to the eye of the city-bred girl. The solemnity of these mountain passes strikes deep into the heart of the nature-student, and turns the mind into channels so oft unused in the stress and strain of a work-a-day life.

Our journey was nearly done, and in a very short space of time we were on board a train bound for Sydney, having satisfied ourselves that "the ways of the forest have been filled of the flowers."

THE ENGAGEMENT RING.

Soldiers are among the best customers the jeweller knows. Always he buys a present for the girl before he goes away, and it is nearly always some valuable trinket. He is a good judge, and has good taste, and when he chooses a gift, it is not something cheap. He is fond of giving a brooch, or a pin, or a ring; sometimes he gives a wristlet watch or a bangle. Since the war got into its stride the jewellery trade has looked up, both here and in England. "On the other side of the world," said a representative of the trade who has lately returned from London, "there is a great and growing demand for the less expensive kinds of trinkets. Wages are so good that people have more money to spend, and they buy jewellery because they feel that it is always valuable. As a present it is worth giving, and as an investment it is worth having.

"The fashionable brooch for a soldier's present to a lady is a circlet, with alternate pearls and garnets. Birth stones are growing more popular, and it is a pretty fashion to give a ring or brooch set with the stone belonging to the month in which is the recipient's birthday. Battalion colours in enamelled brooches have had a great vogue, but the demand for them is not so keen as it was a few months ago. Pins in battalion colours are more often seen now. Signet rings take a high place in popular esteem. The soldiers are giving them instead of a brooch or bangle now; they bear the donor's monogram on the signet. But, most important of all, there is the diamond engagement ring. A soldier's engagement ring must be of diamonds. We sell all kinds; the most liked are three or five stones in a claw setting, or there may be a cluster. Very occasionally we are asked for a diamond and sapphire engagement token, but the diamond typifying as it does purity, durability, and constancy, has become, above all others, the stone for the engagement ring which a soldier gives his sweetheart before he departs for the front."

The Army Service Corps Comforts Depot, 18 Barrack-street, will hold a special meeting on Friday, 15th, at the depot at 2.30 p.m.

The Home Nursing Class in connection with the Paddington and Woollahra Ladies Nursing Division of the St. John's Ambulance Association is about to commence. The superintendent is Mrs. M. Johnston, "Tara," 178 Edgecliff-road, Woollahra; secretary, Mrs. Manton, 46 Victoria-street, Paddington, who will be glad to hear from those wishing to join.

The sock competition in connection with the Ashfield War Chest was won by Miss M. R. Henson in the thick wool section, and Mrs. D. McCombie in the fine wool section.

HOME AFFAIRS.

FOOTWEAR AND FEET.

Never has the truth of the old French proverb, "One must suffer to be beautiful," been more fully brought out than it has since the very high heels and the footwear that is known as "dainty" have come into vogue. It seems to be taken for granted that our gabardine boots must be just a "teeny" bit tight, or else they look clumsy. But, oh, what suffering marks the faces of the women who limp along in the tight boots. The enamelled kid vamps do not suit every wearer's idiosyncrasies. When patent leather and enamelled kid "draw" the feet beyond all endurance, the wisest course is to abjure the too-dearly bought charm. Some wearers can never be comfortable in these makes. But there are other kids and leathers that look nearly as well, though nothing else can have the trim appearance of shiny enamelled kid, either in shoes or boots. We see in all the windows devoted to this kind of display that shoes are replacing boots for summer wear. The heels are just as high as ever, both Pompadour and Cuban heels being seen, while the shoe itself is perfectly plain, except for the buckle. "Collars" in black and white, or other ornamentations, surround many of the street shoes, and there will be a plethora of white shoes. For men also (who are not in khaki) fashion decrees the all-white footwear. "The lads of the village," as the just-under-fighting age youths are now called, will not be content unless they wear white Lisle socks and white shoes with their flannels. These lads also usually affect the "no-hat" creed, at anyrate outside the city limits, and very nice they look with their hair well-brushed back: and showing the "cow's lick" effect, so much admired just now.

However, it is to feet, not heads I would direct your attention. If the gabardine and cloth tops to your boots have become stained with oil or grease, French chalk and fuller's earth made into a paste with milk will probably remove it if rubbed on and allowed to dry before being brushed off. Milk applied with a sponge is the best cleanser for patent leather shoes. For tan or brown shoes that have grown shabby looking, a good plan is to darken them by rubbing with milk and ammonia two or three times, allowing an interval between each rubbing. Polish up with beeswax and turpentine or a linoleum cream. If you wish to blacken the tan, wash the boots first in warm water (not hot) with a little soda in it. Dry thoroughly with a soft towel, and rub them all over with shoemaker's finishing ink. Raw potato is useful to rub on the brown boot before blacking it with any good polish. Some people like their boots French polished. For this a varnish can be made of glue, logwood chips, soft soap, and isinglass boiled up, strained, and kept in a bottle for use. It is applied with a sponge. The proportions should be twice as much logwood as glue, and just a very little of the other two ingredients.

Hot water has its uses as regards boots and shoes. When a new boot hurts, it is a heroic remedy to fill the boot (when it is removed from the foot, of course) with nearly boiling water. Pour it out again quickly; put on the boot, and let it dry on the foot. If the shoe should be tight in one place only, a cloth wrung out in hot water placed on the spot, and renewed as it grows cold will stretch the shoe at that particular place. Shoes should always be kept on trees, and there are very cheap "trees" sold now, which are within the reach of almost any body's purse. Corset busks will keep shoes in their shape when not in use. The busks must be longer than the shoe, or they will not stretch the leather. Linseed oil will cure creaking in shoes. The soles should be stood in the oil over-night. Sea water answers the same purpose, but it is bad for the appearance of the boot. Some careful mothers rub mutton suet mixed with melted beeswax around the soles of children's shoes and they wear much longer. Most women know, I think, that new boots should not be tried on in the morning, but in the afternoon, when the feet have become enlarged with walking.

In spring many people suffer from tender and swollen feet. For this condition, hot sea water at night is a most restful bath. Borax, 1oz, and powdered alum, ½oz, in hot water with common salt makes an excellent mixture. Fresh lime and lard mixed together after being left to stand till the lime is dissolved are a very good remedy for corns. It is rubbed on like an ointment. A few applications of this treatment will soon make the corn disappear. For soft feet, rubbing with methylated spirits often does wonders, while eau-de-Cologne, Condy's fluid diluted, and alum dissolved in water are all beneficial.

The discomfort of perspiring feet may be alleviated by using a good powder, sifting it into the boots. Chemists sell many preparations, and it will be found that most of them have salicylic acid or perborate of soda in them. Boracic acid powder in water should be used as a foot bath and the stockings should be changed daily. A home-made lotion has for its chief ingredient bichlorate of potassium added to distilled water, and perfumed with any preferred essence of flowers. This should be swabbed on with cotton wool. A blister should be pricked with a hot sterilised needle and covered after it has gone down with a diachylon plaster. The danger in a blister is that it may admit poison germs to the foot.

MARTHA.

The Soldiers' Entertainments' Committee, Miss Amy Bice, hon. sec., has arranged a concert at the Methodist Hall, Liverpool Camp. Those who contributed to an excellent programme were:—Misses Vera Cree, Gladys Bourke, Doreen Kennington, Amy Bice, and Mr. Frank Wright gave several humorous items.

PENELOPE'S WEEKLY NOTES.

SIMPLER DIETS.

It is not in Australia only that the cost of living has loomed so large on the canvas of the last two or three years. The entire world—if we except Arcadian islands, where yams and bread-fruits and cocoanuts suffice to keep the population alive—is at grips with the problem. Let us continue to compare notes with other countries.

In Denmark a prominent medical man, Dr. Hindhede, has for years devoted great attention to the question of the nutriment of people with inadequate incomes. So full of sound common sense and practical value have his contributions to the question been that his works have been translated into English, and are slowly, but very surely, finding adherents. This man—he is the Director of the Laboratory of Nutrition Research, that has been established in Copenhagen by the Danish Government—says that were he asked the aim of his teaching he would reply briefly:—

(a) I want those who enjoy an income of £500 a year to live in a much healthier way than they do really.

(b) I want to teach the man whose income is £150 a year that he can live much cheaper than he does now. There is no need for him to spend 1s 6d a day on his food alone; he can live just as well, better even, on 8d.

(c) I want to tell the man whose income varies between £40 and £60 that he need not be in want—he can get sufficient food for 5d or 6d.

These figures are not very old—the date of them is 1914—but even if a 25 per cent. increase is added to each of them for the increased cost of things during the last two years the sums are so small that Penelope realises they will be received with derision by the main body of her readers.

However, as our friend Chadband would say, "Let us in a spirit of love inquire."

The crux of the whole matter is that the foods must be selected for their food values, and kitchen craft must be brought carefully into play to make the simple articles selected appetising and varied.

The Danish doctor says it ought to be unnecessary for him to be asked to teach Englishmen how to live cheaply and healthily, for in their midst they have the best instructors of how to do it, viz., the rural labourers. These men earn 2s or 3s a day, and find their own food out of it, their own individual share of such food, after their families have been satisfied, being 4d to 6d. With what result, purely from the point of view of health? The plain fact that the mortality of the rural labourer is 38 per cent. below the average, and their mortality from diseases of the digestive system three or four times less than it is among the well-to-do, high-living classes.

No one is pretending that such wages are sufficient. Life should be a great deal more than mere living. The illustration is merely used to point out the fact that a high standard of health and hardihood can be maintained upon extremely simple food, if that food has the right chemical value.

The rural labourer is no scientist; neither he nor his good wife sits down and maps out diets containing the requisite number of calories; they simply happen by their environment to be in the way of getting natural articles of food cheaply—milk, green stuffs, cheese, potatoes, etc., and in this way they cannot help getting sufficient chemical value. At the same time they may have relatives in adjacent manufacturing cities who, with wages three times as high, are practically starving for real nutriment, because they are making choices among varied articles of diet that appeal to their jaded appetites, only, and are deficient in chemical value.

Penelope often wishes that a scientist would arise who could reduce the art of finding the chemical values of foods to simple terms, that the working woman and the girl at school could understand. She personally is afraid to speak in terms of calories, or of protein, fat, and carbo-hydrates, because she knows the every-day reader simply skips such matter, yet it is practically impossible to lay down any laws of food without a knowledge of such terms. However, in giving, as she hopes to do on future occasions, some examples from the careful recipes of this doctor, she will pander to this dislike of science expressed in terms of science, both because she wishes to be read by the multitude, and because of the exigencies of space.

THIS WEEK'S PRICES.

The threatened meat strike sent mutton up a half-penny a pound, when it was obtainable at all. Other meat prices remain unaltered.

Fish remains the same and fairly plentiful. Murray cod and garfish are 1s a pound, halibut and snapper 1s 3d, oysters 1s a dozen. Nannegai and John Dory 5d a lb, gurnard and skate 3d.

Fruit.—Oranges, 6d to 4s a dozen; apples, 6d to 3s a dozen; pines, 6d to 1s 6d; passionfruit, 6d to 8d a dozen.

Vegetables.—Cauliflowers are not quite so plentiful, and are 6d to 10d. Peas and beans are less costly this week, but are no lower than 2s a peck. Tomatoes, from 1s to 2s a dozen; artichokes, 8d a lb; Brussels sprouts the same.

Butter is still unevenly distributed. One family gets as much as it needs, and another has to hunt for it from shop to shop, as if it were a rare luxury. It is 1s 4½d to 1s 5½d. New-laid eggs are 1s 3d to 1s 4d.

The charming operatic tableaux which were given last month at the Little Theatre for the War Chest and Vaucluse Red Cross Funds will be repeated at the same place on September 28 for the Royal Alexandra Hospital for Children. Mrs. E. H. Binney is the organiser, and is arranging again the tableaux with Miss Gertrude Palmer as pianist. Mrs. Spencer Brunton and Mr. W. G. Layton are joint hon. treasurers, and Mr. Clarence Mass hon. secretary.

DAINTY BLOUSES FOR THE SPRING.

TWO PROCESSIONS.

Fifteen months ago we stood in the rain in the London streets and watched a long procession of women pass. It was a procession organised by Mrs. Pankhurst and her colleagues; a procession of women asking for their rights. But not the rights usually associated with the name of Mrs. Pankhurst. The question of the suffrage had been relegated to the things of the past, and the banners that the women carried through the soaking streets demanded right of another kind. "We want to make munitions." "We must make munitions." "Let us go on the land." "We want to help with the harvest." These were the rights those women asked for, just the simple rights of helping their King and country in the hour of need.

Last Saturday we stood in Hyde Park in the streaming sunlight, and watched another procession pass. Many of them were the same women, and the procession had been organised by Miss Christabel Pankhurst and her colleagues. But this time, they were asking for no rights or privileges for themselves. They were demonstrating what women can do when given the chance, proving that they had been as good as their word, and that their demands for helping in munition making, and other national needs had not been the mere outcome of an hysterical excitement. The women who marched along in the sunshine between the plane trees of the Park were mostly dressed in uniform of some kind. Their clothes denoted the munition maker, the motor driver, the farm hand, the 'bus conductor, the railway carriage cleaners, the railway engine cleaners—a powerful body of women—lift-women, post-women, gas company women, nurses, orderlies, bank clerks, and all the other occupations into which the war has let women enter.

It was a great sight, and no wonder, the watching crowds cheered and cheered again. To many it was a revelation to know how many industries women had invaded. And when the women who work the dangerous chemicals at the munition factories marched past, with their protecting masks over their faces, and their hairs yellow from the fumes, a murmur of sympathy and admiration ran through the crowd. Never more can it be said that women do not share the dangers of protecting their country, for these girls, and women had come straight from work in which the least carelessness might mean death at any moment. They had come out of the deadly danger rooms of the arsenals to walk in the sunshine beneath the trees. And those of us who had seen last year's procession through the wet streets, felt that the sunshine was an omen, and that the women by their grit and persistence were helping the Allies to walk from the dark gloom of last year into the brightness of victory.

The women have won the right to help in national work, and have shown their capacity for doing it, and now they are asking no more for themselves for the moment. But they still have demands to make. On their banners they demanded the internment of all enemies, and, above all, they asked for the return of Mr. Hughes.

Our Prime Minister had many honours showered upon him here, but no greater tribute than that given by the women last Saturday. More than half their banners bore the same legend, "Come back, Hughes," "Only Pro-Germans Don't Want Hughes," "We Want Hughes on the War Council," and so on, over and over again. It was an extraordinary tribute, and though it took London by surprise, it was easy to see that the women were not alone in their desire to see Mr. Hughes back in Europe. It was the more extraordinary from the fact that this procession had been organised by women who, before the war were the most extreme suffragists, and Mr. Hughes had declined during his visit here to say a word on the subject of woman suffrage.

Later in the day I was talking to a woman who had walked in the procession. She did not know I was an Australian, and so spoke quite candidly.

"Why do you think so much of Mr. Hughes?" I asked her.

"Because, like all Australians, he does things, and doesn't only talk about them," was the reply.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

Miss Anna Brennan, M.A., LL.B., read a very instructive paper on "The Nationality of Women" at a recent meeting of the National Council of Women. Modern facility for travel and the intercourse of nations have led to modifications to the laws governing a married woman's nationality and naturalisation. A comparison was made between existing legislation in the Commonwealth of Australia and the English Act of 1914—a modern development of the earliest Acts on the subject. The disabilities sugered by aliens, firstly in times of peace, and then in times of war, were entered into by the lecturer.

Everyone connected with "Wattle Day" celebrations expressed satisfaction with the results. Weather conditions were kindly, and the contributors also. The collections will total £9300. A char-a-banc, carrying between 30 and 40 children from the Girls' Training Home at East Melbourne, toured the city during the brightest part of the day, and collected for the cause. The babies from the Children's Hospital, well wrapped up in cots, were the cause of much interest at St. Paul's Cathedral. For a few hours in the afternoon the windows of the Pianola Company in Collins-street were turned into a nursery. The babies were present from the Beaconsfield-parade and East Melbourne Foundling Hospital.

The general secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association recently explained the reason why they are contemplating extension by purchasing a new hostel. She stated that the majority of girls come to Melbourne at about 18 years of age. They get usually £1 a week, and the cheapest board they can possibly get is 12s 6d or 15s a week. The margin for amusements, laundry, dentist, sickness, or any emergency recedes to vanishing point. When the proposed new hostel is completed it will be used for girls who are resident workers; the city institution will be kept for transient visitors, and will greatly extend its usefulness thereby. Nearly £4000 has already been subscribed of the £5500 needed for the purchase of the hostel.

The late Mrs. F. S. Grimwade was president of the Gentlewomen's Aid Society for many years, and her death is much regretted by all who were associated with her in this work. Mrs. Robert Barton has been appointed as president. The object of this society is to help gentlewomen in distressed circumstances to become self-supporting. Sales are organised at regular intervals for the disposal of needlework, handicraft, home-made preserves, and other articles of their making. No commission is charged for sales. The society is always ready to give temporary aid in time of sickness. The next sale of work will be held at St. Kilda on October 19.

The Australian Ladies' Kennel Club's annual show of dogs and cats was held at Wirth's grounds, St. Kilda-road. The lists of awards were mostly a repetition of those made at the recent Kennel Club Show. The display of small toy dogs was one of the best yet seen at the club's fixtures. Among the cats exhibited were 50 Persians of various colours.

—VERONICA.

A "LONELY SOLDIER."

Just a word of thanks to "H. M." for her article of last Wednesday, entitled "A Lonely Soldier."

Like "H. M.," I first heard of him through a letter in the paper signed "His Mate." I felt constrained to send him a letter of cheer, and prayed that it would prove a blessing to him. I also sent him a parcel. The reader can well imagine my feelings when I read the article referred to concerning the very man in whom I had taken an interest. When I read the paragraph about the 200th casualty list I laid aside the paper. When I receive my reply from him I shall feel, like "H.M.," that "my lonely soldier" has sent it from that "better land, where wars shall be no more."

THE ANTI-SHOUTING LAW.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sept. 2.

Perhaps a short account of the effect of the "Anti-shouting" section of the War Regulations Bill passed by the New Zealand Parliament last session will interest readers. The regulation is excellent, and the result very quaint. Some women in Wellington made a great effort to induce the authorities to pass legislation closing the hotel bars at 6 p.m., and give permission at the same time for wet canteens at the various camps. They wished to emphasise the fact that they were not "hitting" at soldiers particularly, but were anxious they should have good, well regulated drink arrangements made, and not be deprived of anything reasonable. However, this was turned down, and great was the disappointment of many people. In the meantime an anti-shouting clause was inserted which was not realised, talked about, or taken seriously in any way. But the effect! Marvellous. At the hotels and clubs men feel positively silly putting down their little sixpences and having a drink "on their own." The not being able to call Tom, Dick, and Harry to join in the enjoyment has caused a remarkable shrinkage in the money spent, and the lessees are beginning to consider seriously "what next" while the licensed victuallers are having a special meeting.

It is thought that men will get used to being "Jimmy Woodsers" after a time, and things will adjust themselves, but in the meantime the difference is very great. While regretting that this measure should press hardly on any members of the community, most people cannot but rejoice in the fact that there is a wonderful difference in the number of drunken people seen about, and also that the money, instead of being squandered in the foolish old custom of "drinks round," will be available for more desirable expenditure, and many men and their families will benefit. There is a fast-growing feeling among the majority of men that it is a good thing that they can go into a bar or the club and have a refresher without being considered mean if they do not spend money on others all round, and already many are saying that they hope the law has come to stay. New Zealand people wish it to be understood that this regulation was passed for the good of all classes, and not in any way aimed at their soldiers, of whom they are exceedingly proud. The comical part of the business is that no one was prepared for the regulation when it came into force, men could only shrug their shoulders and laugh, except, of course, the professional cadger whose day is done.

FROM NEAR AND FAR.

Miss Strickland arrived from her country trip yesterday morning, and in the afternoon she went to the Women's Work in War Time Exhibition at the Town Hall, to continue the spinning in which she is so much interested. The attendances on Monday and yesterday were very good. About the success of the exhibition, which closes to-night, Miss Burrows is naturally delighted. Demonstrations will go on till closing time, and there will be no dismantling till 10 p.m. Some new exhibits—objects trawled from deep water—were placed in the State trawlers' stand by Mr. Stead, where they attracted much attention. Yesterday's programme was carried out in its entirety. There were a hygienic demonstration, a piano recital, and talks on gardening. The tea rooms were well patronised, helpers being drawn from various centres of the Girls' Realm Guild.

Mademoiselle Soubeiran gave an address on "France and the French-Australian League of Help," at the monthly meeting of the Pittwater Branch of the League of Honour on Saturday afternoon. The address proved so attractive that Mdlle. Soubeiran was asked if she would repeat it, with lantern slides, at a future date, in the evening, at the local hall. Upon her consent, the league promised to arrange for a special meeting and to hand over the proceeds to the French-Australian League. The Crow's Nest Branch of the League of Honour entertained the members of the North Sydney centre for soldiers' wives and mothers at tea during the month.

The hon. secretary of the Sydney Lyceum Club has received a letter, under date July 27, from Mrs. Parker, sister to Lord Kitchener and member of the London Lyceum Club, thanking members for their sympathy in the death of her brother. Mrs. Parker says:—"It may interest you to know that my eldest brother, though nearly 70 years old, has been fighting since soon after the beginning of the war in East Africa, as he was too old for regulars. He hopes the campaign there will end next month. He is now Earl Kitchener; his son, Viscount Broome, R.N., has been in the North Sea for 22 months."

The annual meeting of the Women's Progressive Association was held on September 5, when the work of the association in social, legislative, industrial, and relief work was carefully revised. The most active sections of the work for the past year were the clothing relief depot, and information given and gained for returned soldiers, besides efforts made to place them, also assistance given to soldiers' wives, widows, and dependents in gaining their pay, pensions, and aid from patriotic funds. During the year over one thousand families, comprising about five thousand individuals were relieved. Seven thousand four hundred garments and 678 pairs of boots were distributed, including the Government donation of £50, the sum of £67 was spent in buying materials and clothing. Various firms, warehouses, and individuals gave contributions of clothing. The president is Miss Annie Golding, hon. general secretary Mrs. Kate Dwyer, hon. depot secretaries Mrs. M. A. Adrian and Miss Pearl Dixon.

The Australian Pioneer Battalion Comforts Fund, at 10 Castlereagh-street, Sydney, is fulfilling a noble task, and under the executive control of Mrs. P. R. Cole (hon. president), Mrs. S. H. Cottam (hon. secretary), Mrs. Robert Kerr (hon. treasurer), and Mrs. Walker (acting assistant secretary), every assistance is given those who have fathers, husbands, or brothers in the battalions of the Pioneers, to keep in close touch with their gallant kin, and one of the chief aims of the organisation is to have on the "call list" or "communication list" every person interested in the Pioneers. Just now special efforts engage the big staff of assistants in order to despatch Christmas boxes to the boys at the front, and interested persons are invited to visit the depot if they desire the despatch of one of the fund's boxes.

There is only one apparatus of the kind in the whole of Sydney. It makes possible the painless filling of sensitive and tender teeth. I am the fortunate possessor of this appliance, and am obtaining the same splendid results of absolute painlessness which have distinguished my special method of extraction. NO MATTER HOW SENSITIVE YOUR TOOTH IS, I WILL DRILL AND FILL IT WITHOUT CAUSING YOU THE LEAST PAIN. I give written guarantees of my Fillings, Plate Work, Crown and Bridge Work, etc. If any fault develops during the first five years, I repair it free and quite cheerfully. EXTRACTIONS by my special Method are absolutely painless. I make a general offer to forfeit £5 if you experience the least twinge of pain. If your heart is weak, you will suffer no inconvenience from my method. Let me examine your teeth. A careful examination and estimate of cost will entail no expense and no obligation to have the work done.

MASSAGE.—"New Skin for Old."—Your Skin is changing every day. This is your opportunity to have a few treatments of Scientific Plastic and Electrical Massage. It will make your new skin what you would like to have it. Your skin, like the rest of your body, is continually changing. Like the ferments the old skin dies, and a new skin forms in its place. You can keep this new skin so active that it will gradually but surely take on the greater clearness and charm. Every treatment frees your skin of the tiny old, dead particles. Tel., 350 City. LAW REPORT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

MARINE ENGINEERS AND MANUAL LABOUR.

DEFENDANTS' APPEAL DISMISSED.

Mr. Campbell, K.C., and Mr. Curtis, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared for the defendants, J. Fenwick and Company, steam tug and water boat proprietors, in support of an appeal from the decision of Judge Backhouse in the District Court in May last, in an action brought by Elizabeth Oats against the defendant company under the Workmen's Compensation Act for the loss of her husband. Mr. Pitt, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Brothers, appeared for the plaintiff in support of the verdict. It appeared that at the time of his death Edward Graham Oats was in the service of the defendants as engineer on board a water boat called the Gleaner. The vessel was moored at a wharf at Balmain, and the captain, after giving Oats certain instructions as to pumping the tank, went ashore. Before he returned he was informed by someone that the Gleaner had parted from her moorings and was swinging round. The captain then went down to the steamer, and deceased's body was found in the water. His widow subsequently brought the action, and in the course of the hearing the point arose whether deceased came within the category of a workman within the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act. The District Court Judge held that he did, and gave plaintiff a verdict, with £400 damages. The defendants appealed mainly on the ground that as deceased was not engaged in manual labour he did not come within the Act. Argument was heard last term, and judgment was now delivered.

The Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon in separate judgments, concurring) said that the District Court Judge found that though deceased was nominally an engineer, he was stoker as well, and had to assist in putting the coal in the bunkers of the vessel. It was contended, on behalf of appellants, that deceased's status as the holder of a third-class certificate as an engineer under the Navigation Act, which was essential to his being admitted to the employment which he held, took him outside the category of "workman" within the meaning of the Act, and that the other duties which he was employed to perform must be regarded as merely incidental to his employment as an engineer. Against this it was contended, on behalf of the plaintiff, that though he would not, and could not legally have been employed but for his possessing a certificate, yet his employment was for the performance of a variety of useful tasks, among which the duty of superintending the engine and boiler was only one. These tasks included not only the work of an engine-driver, but the work that would be performed in the case of larger vessels by the stoker and coal-lumper. There was no evidence of any written contract, and the interpretation of the bargain between the deceased and his employers was a question of fact for the Judge. There was no principle of law which stood in the way of deciding that some, at any rate, of the kinds of service which deceased was expected to render, and did render, were not merely incidental to his position as an engineer within the meaning of the Act, but were substantial employments in themselves. That being so, it seemed to him that there was no ground upon which the decision of the Judge that deceased was engaged in manual labour could be questioned. The appeal must therefore be dismissed with costs.

QUESTION OF REAPPRAISEMENT.

Groongal Pastoral Company, Ltd. (in liquidation) v Minister for Lands.

Mr. Coffey, instructed by Messrs. Metcalfe and Dangar, appeared for the liquidators of the Groongal Pastoral Company, Ltd., in support of the appeal; and Mr. Canaway, K.C., and Mr. Hanbury Davies, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett), for the Minister for Lands to oppose. This was an appeal by the liquidators of the company named from the decision of the Land Appeal Court in regard to their application for reappraisement of certain additional conditional purchases at Tumbarumba. The question for the decision of the Court was whether the fact of the applicants being a company disentitled them from applying for, and obtaining, under the provisions of the Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913, an appraisement of the capital value of the land comprised in the said additional conditional purchases. Argument was heard on August 11.

The Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Sly and Mr. Justice Ferguson concurring) said that the appellant company, which was one registered under the Companies Act, applied under section 167 of the Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913, for a determination of the value of certain additional conditional purchases of which it was the holder. This application was refused, on the ground that the provisions of the section were not applicable to a corporate body. The grounds relied upon in support of the decision appealed against would have had much greater weight if the Legislature had thought fit to exclude corporations altogether from being holders of lands under the Act. But having once admitted them to the status of a holder, something more would be needed to exclude them from the benefit conferred by section 167 in general terms upon holders. His Honor did not think such an exclusion could be spelt out either from the expressions relied upon, or anything contained in the rest of the Act, and he was therefore forced to the conclusion that the decision appealed from could not be sustained. The question submitted in the special case was answered in the negative, and the appeal allowed with costs.

(Before the Chief Justice.)

THE TOTALISATOR CASE.

Griffith v Australian Pictorial Newspaper Company, Limited.

Mr. Broomfield, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Co., appeared for the plaintiff, Arthur Griffith (Minister for Public Instruction), who stated in reply to counsel's question that he had not, either directly or indirectly, received money or any consideration whatever from bookmakers or anybody else in connection with the totalisator.

This being one of the seven cases which had not yet been set down for trial, notice of discontinuance would be given in pursuance of the terms of settlement arrived at on the previous day.

NO. 1 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Pring and juries.)

CABLES v COMMISSIONER FOR TRAMWAYS.

The hearing was concluded of the case in which Peter Cables sued the Chief Commissioner of Railways and Tramways for £1000 damages for injuries sustained in an accident which he alleged was caused by the negligence of the defendant's servants in not allowing sufficient time for him to alight from a tramcar.

Mr. Curtis, instructed by Mr. W. C. Clegg, appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Boyce, instructed by Mr. J. S. Cargill (Solicitor for Railways), for the defendant.

The jury returned a verdict for the defendant.

MARQUETTS, LTD., v J. R. MARQUETT.

Marquetts, Ltd., of Newcastle, brought an action against John Raymond Marquett for £300 damages for breach of agreement. The plaintiffs' case was that the defendant was the founder of the business, which dealt in produce bags, and on its being formed into a limited liability company he was appointed manager, entering into an agreement to remain with the firm till 1920. In 1915 he was released from the agreement on terms which included an undertaking not to enter into any similar business within 150 miles of the Newcastle G.P.O. for a period of 20 years. In case of breach £300 was agreed upon as liquidated damages. It was alleged that the defendant, in breach of this agreement, had undertaken other business, and was interested in the firm of W. L. Marquett and Marquett and Coleman.

The defendant pleaded that he did not enter into such an agreement as alleged, and that he was not guilty of any breach.

Mr. A. R. Watt, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., appeared for the plaintiff company; and Mr. Shand, K.C., and Mr. Cowan, instructed by Messrs. Buchanan and Smithers (agents for Messrs. Braye and Co., of Newcastle), for the defendant.

The case stands part heard.

NO. 2 JURY COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Ferguson and a jury.)

DUNN v GRAYNDLER.

Evidence was concluded in the case in which John Dunn sued Edward Grayndler, secretary of the Australian Workers' Union, for £1000 damages for alleged libel.

John Bailey, chairman of the central branch of the A.W.U., stated that last October he had addressed a meeting of shearers at Goonoogoonoo station, at which Dunn was present, and had replied to charges which Dunn had made. The plaintiff then asked the witness if he was the "J. Dunn" referred to in the circular issued by the president and secretary of the union, and the witness replied that he could not say as he knew several Jack Dunns. The plaintiff told witness that he was going to take action over the matter, and that a firm of solicitors had agreed to take up a case free of charge. (Laughter.)

Mr. O'Reilly (for plaintiff): Did not a man named Richards contest the presidency with you once, and between the time of nomination and the declaration of the election was he not expelled from the union?—Yes.

And you were on the executive that expelled him?—Yes.

W. G. Spence, M.P., president of the A.W.U., also gave evidence for the defence, and said he did not connect the J. Dunn who signed the attacks on the executive with the J. Dunn whose name appeared on the membership roll of the old M.S.U.

Counsel's addresses were not concluded when the Court adjourned.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

PEBBLES v HOWIE AND OTHERS.

This suit is still part heard.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

DIRECT FISH SUPPLIES, LTD.

Motion to Set Aside Order.

The Direct Fish Supplies, Ltd., was wound up by order of the Court on September 14 last, and W. H. Palmer appointed official liquidator. The Court ordered that, upon a memorandum being filed, it should operate in relation to 5000 shares issued by the company to one Willie Patrick Humphreys, or his nominee, as if it were a sufficient contract in writing within the meaning of the Companies Act. Application was made yesterday that this order be set aside, on the grounds that it was obtained by suppression of material facts, and that no notice was given of the application to the creditors of the company. Further grounds for the rescission of the order were filed by the official liquidator.

Mr. Innes, K.C., and Mr. Weigall, instructed by Messrs. Biddulph and Salenger, appeared for the official liquidator; Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, for C. B. Humphreys, L. M. Pitt, S. M. Pitt, and S. H. Oates; Mr. Teece, instructed by Messrs. Myers and Hill, for the infant respondents; and Mr. Jordan, instructed by Messrs. Vickery, England, and Wilson, for F. M. Vickery.

Judgment was reserved.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

BAKERS' AWARD.

His Honor delivered his reserved decision in the appeal by Abel and Co., Ltd., against the award of the Food Supply and Distribution, No. 1 Group, No. 1 Board. The appellants had asked that they should be allowed to start at 6 a.m. instead of 8 a.m., upon their allowing their employees a favourable scale of hours, and on the option being given to other master bakers to adopt the same starting time and the same scale of hours, or either if they think fit; that assistants should be allowed to do the same work as under previous awards, or should have their wage reduced; and that the rates allowed for work on Christmas Day and certain other days should be reduced. His Honor said that as to the first ground, it seemed to him that the applicants were entitled to the exemption they asked for. As to the second ground, he thought that the system should remain which had been recognised as proper for machine bakeries since the year 1908. He struck clause 6 out of the award and substituted altered definitions of "operative baker" and "assistant." As to the third point he thought that if people had to work on Christmas Day they should be exceedingly well paid for it; but he did not think that Anniversary Day and bread-carters' holidays stood in quite the same category, and he could not see the reasonableness of fixing precisely the same rate for everybody. He fixed the wages for the days in question at the ordinary overtime rates, payable after three hours, plus 6d per hour.

By consent, the altered award will come into effect on Monday next.

Mr. E. R. Cohen appeared for the appellants; Mr. Bavin and Mr. Ferguson, instructed by Messrs. Salwey and Primrose, for the Master Bakers' Association; and Mr. Sullivan for the Operative Bakers' Union.

(Before Mr. Justice Edmunds.)

ADJOURNED TO NEWCASTLE.

The hearing of the appeals by the Federated Ironworkers' Association of Australia, the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, the Electrical Trades Union, and the Australasian Society of Engineers against the award of the Iron and Shipbuilding Trades Group, No. 19 (Broken Hill Steelworks) Board was continued. It was eventually decided to adjourn the matters to Newcastle. Mr. H. A. Mitchell and Mr. Rankin, of Newcastle, appeared for the Broken Hill Proprietary Company; Mr. Cantor for the Amalgamated Society of Engineers, Mr. Henwood for the Federated Ironworkers' Association, Mr. Bryant for the Australasian Society of Engineers, and Mr. Turner for the Enginedrivers and Firemen's Association.

Mr. Mitchell asked his Honor to dispense with the three days' notice of service of the application for the cancellation of the registration of the Federated Enginedrivers and Firemen's Association, a number of members of which, engine and crane drivers, had struck work at Newcastle.

Mr. Turner asked the Court not to dispense with the necessary three days' notice.

His Honor said he would proceed to Newcastle, and hear the application to-day, but if the men returned to work by 8 o'clock he would not hear it until the three days' notice had expired. If the men resumed work he would hear any application that the union might make for an interpretation of the award.

MOTOR CAR STEALING CHARGE.

George Wallis, 28, and Leslie Wallis, 26, pleaded not guilty to stealing a motor car, the property of Alfred Robert Stark, at West Maitland, on July 27. Mr. E. Maddocks Cohen appeared for the defence.

The case for the Crown was that the car was left outside a restaurant in High-street, West Maitland, when the accused took it and drove to Kurri Kurri, afterwards bringing it on to Sydney.

The accused in their defence claimed that it was a partnership matter, and that they took the car believing that they were properly exercising a claim of right. On coming to Sydney they went to the Clarence-street Police Station and inquired as to the best means of establishing their claim to the car. Stark had been in partnership with them in a motor car business.

The jury convicted both accused, but recommended them to mercy on the ground of their misunderstanding their business relations with the prosecutor. The prisoners were remanded for sentence.

CONVICTED OF STEALING.

William Leslie Purcell, 25, pleaded not guilty to, in company, assaulting Patrick Thomas Goulding, at Sydney, on September 3, and robbing him of a wallet and £1, and also to a second charge of receiving the property, well knowing it to have been stolen. Mr. E. Maddocks Cohen appeared for the defence.

Purcell, in his defence, denied the assault. The wallet was handed to him by a man, and thinking it was a practical joke that was being played on Goulding he ran away.

Purcell was found guilty of stealing only. He was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour in Goulburn Gaol.

APPEALS.

(Before Judge Docker.)

Mr. C. A. White appeared for the Crown.

RELEASED AS FIRST OFFENDER.

His Honor confirmed the conviction of Walter Scott Forbes by Mr. Payten, S.M., at the Central Police Court on July 19, on a charge of having in his custody a carburettor reasonably suspected to having been stolen, when he was sentenced to two months' hard labour. The ground of the appeal was that the penalty imposed was excessive.

The sentence was suspended, and Forbes was released as a first offender on entering into a recognisance to be of good behaviour for 12 months. Mr. Cowan, instructed by Mr. Tebbutt, appeared for the appellant.

ASBESTOS COMMISSION.

TYPING A LETTER.

EVIDENCE BY EXPERTS.

The Royal Commissioner appointed to inquire into the circumstances connected with the calling of tenders for supply of asbestos sheeting for the Water Conservation and Irrigation Commission during 1912-1914 was mainly occupied yesterday in taking the evidence of experts on typewriting. This evidence had a bearing on the first paragraph of the commission, which dealt with the alteration of a date from June 23, 1915, to June 29, 1915, on a letter which Spriggs Bros. stated they sent to the Irrigation Commission the same day on which they forwarded their quotation—June 23, 1915.

Robert Meredith Pontey, partner in the Rebuilt Typewriter Company, said that letters typed by machines at the Water Conservation and Irrigation Department had been compared by him with the figures alleged to have been altered in the letter sent by Spriggs Bros. to the department with a quotation. He would not say definitely that the same machine made the alteration as typed the quotation, but certain characteristics of the type pointed in the direction that the same machine had not done both work.

Nathaniel J. Langtry, chief mechanic of Stott and Underwood, said he had no doubt that the machine which altered the date to the 29th was the same which had typed the tender.

Andrew McDougall, managing director of A. McDougall and Company, said he had located two defects in the "9" on the altered letter and one in the small "t"—which was off its feet. The machine which typed the alteration on the letter wrote the tender also.

Robert J. Hart, sub-manager of the United Typewriter Supply Company, expressed the opinion that the "9" on the altered letter and the "9" in the tender had been typed on the same machine.

Mr. James: Did you not discuss the matter with the other experts when the examination was made?—There was a general discussion in the presence of the Commissioner.

While you were all examining the "9"?—Yes.

Henry John Heath, mechanic in the employ of the United Typewriter Company, said the same machine struck the "9's" on the tender as had struck the "9" on the letter which had been altered.

G. Wallace, mechanic employed by L. C. Smith and Bros., expressed a similar opinion.

Arthur Edgar Lewis, buyer for the Irrigation Commission, said he had no knowledge of the alteration of the date on the letter. He had not informed Mr. Spriggs, junior, or any other inquirer that there was only one tender in for asbestos sheeting. He was not allowed to give information respecting tenders, and it was unlikely that he had done so. He could not remember the opening of the tender box on June 29, 1915, as there was nothing to distinguish it from so many other similar openings.

The Commission adjourned to 10 a.m. today.

Mr. GEO. COOK, "Claremont," Boundary-street, Wav., writes:—"Four years ago I suffered from liver troubles, and I believe that was the cause of my nerves being run down. My decision is that Clements Tonic has no equal for those complaints."—Advt.

RANDWICK TRAINING NOTES.

INTERESTING GALLOPS.

CLYDESIDE, COSTELLO, AND KILBOY SHAPE WELL.

A surprise awaited the early risers at Randwick yesterday morning. The racecourse was enveloped in a white sheet of frost, a condition that greatly surprised the Victorian and New Zealand visitors, who were present in force. The bulk of the work was done on the middle grass track, which was used for the first time this season, and was in excellent order. Among the newcomers noticed were Diavolo and Kooya, a couple of New Zealanders; and P. Nailon, the well-known Brisbane trainer, was out working the English horse Bachelor's Persse and a Petrillo colt named Deed, both of whom arrived from the north in good trim.

Adam Skirving, who arrived from Melbourne the previous day, was out with Mr. "S. A. Rawdon's" trio—Blague, Bucklaw, and Seigneur. Bucklaw, who is "Mr. Rawdon's" Derby candidate, has filled out into a magnificent colt, and is in the pink of condition. He was a high-priced yearling, bred by Mr. W. F. Moses at Arrowfield, and is by Earlston (imp.) from Velox, by Bill of Portland; therefore, is a brother to Hayston, with whom Skirving won a number of good races for "Mr. Rawdon." Seigneur is a two-year-old. Blague is now a much different horse to what he was when last here and when he was attacked with skin disease. Now he is as round as an apple, as strong as an ox, and a true Bobadil from stem to stern. Mehi King, Cansone, and Ready Aye Ready covered six furlongs together in 1m 18½s, while Dick Wedgewood and Taquisara ran seven furlongs in 1m 35s.

Windlesham, a big English horse trained by J. Lynch, bandaged in front, was out for useful work, and his two shipmates—Tosson and King's Chancellor—were pottering about. The two best gallops of the morning against the watch over six furlongs were executed by two English horses. Costello (imp.), who was one of the earliest out, ran the distance in 1m 16s; and later in the morning Clydeside (imp.) equalled that record with a fair weight up. Blague ran seven furlongs in 1m 32s without trouble, and Bucklaw did the last six of seven in 1m 22s. Early in the proceedings Pretty Bobby knocked off a mile in 1m 44½s; Mr. J. B. Reid's colt Kilboy, assisted by Reval for seven furlongs, ran a mile in 1m 45s; and King Korn, another Derby candidate, did a mile working gallop. He looks rather light. Mafioso and Royal Dude did a solid working gallop together, as did Unwela and Allaru.

Prince Bardolph accounted for a mile in 1m 47s, and Woorak did a working gallop over that distance in 1m 50s. Sydian rattled over five furlongs in 1m 3½s, and Panacre left six furlongs behind in 1m 19s. Cetigne stayed with Rouen to the end of a mile run in 1m 46s, and Cagou galloped a similar distance in 1m 44s. A Derby colt, Eastcourt, paced it with The Christian Brother over a mile in 1m 46s; and two of Foulsham's three-year-olds—Isle of Skye and Court Jester—traversed 7 furlongs in 1m 32s, a record which Gallipoli improved upon by a second, and carried Myles Connell. Wolaroi was let off with some half pacing. Wallace Isinglass and Lord Disgrace were not extended to run a mile and a quarter in 2m 25s, and Lingle was let off with a very light task. Kingsburgh and Ulva's Isle covered nine furlongs in 1m 59s, and a mile in 1m 48s went down to Rushford and Gadabout; while Three Star and Gal ran the last four of six furlongs in 51s. Six furlongs in 1m 17s was recorded by Machine Gun, and Narivo and Gigandra galloped seven furlongs in 1m 33s. Tartanus did six in 1m 18½s. Merimee and Colugo were each let off lightly, while Plenty, Irish Comedy, and Galtee Queen did some three-quarter pacing. Petalstar beat Cookamidgera over five furlongs in 1m 4s, and Common Law ran ten in 2m 16s. Thurnham accounted for six furlongs in 1m 19s; and Karanaud King went two miles at a working pace. Bibbenluke, a steeplechaser, was out for easy work, and Carlita did some cantering. Bee, who has been heavily backed for the Caulfield Cup, was not noticed out, and Hopfield, who is in physic, was not present.

DUBBO JOCKEY CLUB.

SPRING MEETING.

ORRYSMITH WINS PRESIDENT'S HANDICAP.

DUBBO, Tuesday.

The spring meeting of the Dubbo Jockey Club was concluded yesterday in beautiful weather, and the attendance was a record for a weekday. A few years ago this club was on the down grade, and the greatest effort was necessary to secure even a moderately successful meeting, all interest being centred in amateur meetings. Four years ago a bold effort was made to revive professional interest, but a big proposition confronted the new organisation, but energy and enthusiasm succeeded. Now the D.J.C. is one of the professional clubs, and the Garryowen and [illegible] and Hospital clubs all draw strength from its prestige. Results:—

THE WORLD'S GREAT WAR.

THE "BIG PUSH."

GREATEST CANNONADE IN HISTORY.

A MIGHTY CONTEST.

In a letter from 2nd Lieutenant Adrian Consett Stephen, R.F.A., France—one of the most stirring narratives yet received from the great battlefield in France—the following account of the "big push" is given:—

"It was not until I returned from the Artillery School that I realised the 'big push' was upon us. After arriving at the waggon line I had dinner and then rode up to the guns at about 9 p.m. The wood was seething with traffic—ammunition waggons, guns, transport, and marching men. A deep low growl filled the air. Silent, pierced with the lumbering of endless wheels. It was the 'big push' at last! It was upon us, undeniable, gripping us with a strange excitement, the excitement of feeling oneself an atom being swept along in a crowd, with a sense of vast power behind and the unknown destiny in front. It was the 'big push' and it made us nervy. For the next few days we worked hard; there was much to do. Wire had to be laid, gun-pits improved, dug-outs to be made into strongholds, like the control top of a battleship, and observation positions had to be explored, and [illegible] had to be filled with sandbags for many days in case the [illegible] officer was besieged during the bombardment. Every night the transport packed the roads, and every night till two or three in the morning the gunners unloaded waggons of ammunition, until the gun-pits and ammunition dumps were filled row on row with gleaming shells.

"The Boche, of course, knew something was afoot, and put out notices, 'Why attack us? we have more guns than you?' But probably he did not know the exact starting point or the [illegible] of our offensive. There were [illegible] days, and our mess was [illegible] with some microscopic joke. The [illegible] of our guns was an interesting [illegible]. Many hours each day were spent watching each wood and road [illegible], and, above all, measuring and studying the intricate maze of trenches that twisted and curled and looped and [illegible] running around the two villages [illegible] that were our immediate objective. Our battery was split into two sections, one under the captain and T——, the other half a mile away, under F—— and myself. We were left to work out our own schemes of bombardment and methods of fire, subject, of course, to brigade orders and orders from the captain.

"F—— is a Canadian, and together we managed to knock all the fun out of the show that was possible. I believe that the mixture of Canadian accent and Australian slang over the telephone was at once the delight and the despair of the signallers. 'Hello, Australia, how's things?' 'Oh, we're winning.' 'What?' 'The war.' 'Is there a war?' 'Oh, that accounts for the funny noise.' 'Fire a few rounds and call the show.' 'Right, let them go.' 'Say, Bill, what about a small one first?' 'Sound idea, cheero.' 'So long.'

BOMBARDMENT NIGHT AND DAY.

"And thus, in fashion somewhat undignified, we would continue the greatest cannonade in history. A little relief from text book formality helps to keep one awake, and with only two or three hours sleep every night a theory [illegible] is sometimes required. The actual commencement of the bombardment was hardly noticeable. There was no united crash of guns, just one or two field guns opened the morning much as usual. Then a few Howitzers chimed in, till gradually battery after battery swept with a roar into the chorus. Even then the rate of fire was slow, but the whole bombardment—except for brief periods in the day—was unique not for its intensity but for its ceaseless continuity. Night and day there was never a silence.

"From the observation post, which we shared with another battery, and where we sat on high stools looking through a slit in a bank, we could overlook a large stretch of country and follow for miles the tracings of the Boche trenches. It was a fascinating sight. Hour after hour the woods and villages and trenches spouted puffs of smoke and columns of mud and timber as they were pounded beneath this steady rain of shells. When the heavy guns fired one could see whole villages shrouded in dust and smoke and trees tossed about like matches. One could watch the shells actually falling.

"An observation post is a combination of conning tower and telephone bureau, and an officer engaged in ranging the guns and endeavouring to distinguish his own shells is harassed with all the troubles of a telephone system. 'Left section action.' 'Hello, left section—Hello! Hello!' 'Git orf the line, yer fool.' 'No. 1 fired, sir.' 'No. 1 drop 50.' 'Hello, Hello—the chap on the other end is a fool, sir.'

"It is a universal privilege with telephonists to consider 'the chap on the other end' as a fool. 'Wire cut, sir.' 'Get through by brigade exchange.' 'Hello, Exchange, etc., etc.'

"When two people are shouting from the same observation post each must keep his head and temper as best he can. One soon settles down, however, and then nothing is heard save the steady stream of orders passing quietly and monotonously down the 'phones. Anyway, I would sooner use a military 'phone in the hottest bombardment than try my luck in the ordinary civilian way with a penny in the slot machine.

CEASELESS ROAR OF GUNS.

"Down at the guns one has an even busier time. Messengers burst in at all times of the day. 'Target 17, report when ready,' comes from the observation post. 'Engage hostile battery at Z 2486,' comes by wireless from an aeroplane. 'Gas discharge at such and such a time' comes from divisional headquarters. After a few hours of this, coupled with the ceaseless roar of guns in the ear, the subaltern in charge sees nothing but a smoking gun, a reeling gun pit, and a circle of orderlies flapping messages at him. He begins to feel he is engaging the whole German artillery—not a bad feeling, anyway, if you don't take it too seriously. And even if your servant does spill the dinner down a sump hole, and upset the pickles over your best map; well, these homely things will happen in the most historic battles!

"But there are always compensations. A gun pit may be uncomfortable, it is sometimes a nervy place, yet it is nearly always fascinating. The roar and flash and biting smoke, the misty figures moving swiftly and quietly, the thin metallic voice down the telephone, and the throbbing of other guns around, all make a picture and a sensation that few will forget, and many will recall half wistfully in the future days of civilian ease. Beyond this there was little excitement during the preliminary bombardment; the Boche retaliated tamely; in fact, we were able to walk freely to the observation post and back, and altogether we only sustained four slight casualties. It may surprise you to hear that I could have lunch outside the observation post sitting in a little trench, munching sandwiches and waiting while a telephonist made tea on a little stove. Except for the noise, it was quite a Manly Beach sensation!

DAY OF THE ASSAULT.

"The day of the assault arrived at last, and there was no mistaking the bombardment this time. I went down to the observation-post, and waited. Not till a few minutes before the assault was the climax reached. Then of a sudden the guns opened their throats, and the world burst into a gigantic roar, that was flung from horizon to horizon, as thunder is tossed about mountains. The bark of the 18-pounders, the cough of the howitzers, the boom of heavy guns, and the lightning rush of naval guns, swelled and merged into a jerky rumble. It was wonderful music, the mightiest I have ever heard. It throbbed exultantly with a sense of infinite power. Somehow one felt inclined to laugh with the exhilaration of it.

"From the observation post I could see the smoke cloud. A line of trenches flickered with short flames, which sent up dense columns of white and orange smoke that twisted and curled and mingled and then swept forward a solid rampart towards the German lines. Shells exploding in the white smoke splashed it with scarlet. Rumours came dancing down the line. 'Infantry have taken first line;' 'Prisoners are pouring in.' But I could see nothing; not for several hours after could I even see the trenches. Not a movement, not a sign of a soldier. German shells falling in their own trenches gave me a hint of our progress. Throughout the smoke and the bombardment a Bosche machine-gun played steadily. What fighters they are!

THE COUNTER-ATTACK.

"In the afternoon the Bosches counter-attacked. I couldn't quite see the attack, but I felt it. The old observation-post began to sway and shake itself after an explosion like a ship coming out of a wave. A corporal who was there insisted on reporting the damage. 'Roof sagging, sir.' Pause. 'Doorway caving in, sir.' Long pause. 'Shall I ring for a digging party?' At this stage we stopped his lugubrious bulletins. We were quite all right. Things always sound worse than they really are. The captain from another observation-post could see the counter-attack, and by switching the guns on checked it considerably. Our gunners were very 'bucked' at firing on the Bosche infantry, and sweated like navvies, while the old guns steamed like a horse after a gallop. But what our own infantry went through—well, we must take our hats off to the infantry every time. Many of them are lying out there now between the lines, the sun flashing on buttons and metal discs. Not far, poor fellows, on the way to Germany. In the evening everything quietened. The chief noise was the throb of aeroplanes circling slowly against the sunset. The assault day had ended."

A D.S.O. HERO.

LIEUT. F. S. KELLY,

Brother of Mr. W. H. Kelly, M.P., and of Colonel T. H. Kelly, of the Military Intelligence Department, who is an alderman of the City Council.

Lieutenant Kelly, of the Naval Volunteers, who has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order for work done in Gallipoli, is well known as a musician and athlete in Sydney. He enlisted in London in the Royal Naval Division in December, 1914. Lieutenant Kelly had a brilliant career in his University days as an oarsman. In 1902, as a representative of Balliol College, Oxford, he won the Diamond Sculls, the most coveted amateur sculling event in the world, and was again successful in 1903 and 1905. He also won the sculling championship of Oxford, was in the boat that won the Henley Grand Challenge Cup, and carried off the Wingfield Sculls, the famous events in the aquatic world. He was wounded last year while at the Dardanelles.

EDUCATION OF THE WOUNDED.

WORK IN FRANCE.

(BY MAURICE BARRES, in "L'ECHO DE PARIS" OF JUNE 15.)

We aim at three objects—to study the needs of each individual case, to train the patient for some new calling, and to find him work when his training is complete. The State is bound to provide the necessary limbs to all who are crippled, but if anyone needs some special apparatus in order to resume his old trade or to take up some new one that we have taught him, we make it our business to provide him with one, and whenever some generous person desires to make sure that a man who has lost a limb shall be given the one he needs, we undertake half the expense ourselves, provided, of course, that an expert certifies that it is in the interest of the wounded man for us to do so. So much for preparation. The really important affair is for us to help men who are wounded in the war to recover their place in society, and to do so by providing them with work which is at once honourable and permanent. In many cases they are really unable to resume their former occupation, but in many others they are prevented from doing so by unfounded discouragement, by an excessive mistrust of their strength, and of their fitness. Many of the wounded before the war were agricultural labourers. If they come to us we take care to send them to one of our schools, to Limonest, near Lyons, or to Beauvais, where each man's individual difficulties are taken into account, and he is set to till the soil under the direction of the Federation of Rural Unions of the South-east, and under the auspices of the French Society of Agriculturists. It is, however, only too true that some wounded men cannot return to their former trades. Well, then, they come and have a chat with us, and we try to find out what work will suit them best. "Which of these trades," we ask, "attracts you—office work, shoemaking, harness-making, tailoring, tin-making, bookbinding, basket work, printing, jewellery, glass-blowing, or toy-making?" When the patients are married or can find homes in Paris we provide for their training in the workshops, where they work during the day. Of these the most important are directed with great success by M. Kula and the Society of Apprenticeship. Others who have lost limbs work under the patronage of the Union of French Jewellers. Others learn to make toys, under the care of M. Francois Carnot. Very charming their toys are, and I recommend you to go and see them and buy them. Others are fitting themselves for office work, either at the Institute Administrative or at the Ecole Pigier. All these pupils, all these apprentices, are looked after by us until the moment when they have learnt their trade and know their business, and can earn their living like other men. But we pay them 1 fr. 50 for a full day's work from the moment after they have begun their course of re-education and are learning their new trade. To this gift from us the State has now begun to add something, generally 1 fr. 70 per day, which it pays them while they are waiting for their pension.

LOVING AND SERVING.

This is the treatment of our out-patients, but some of the wounded cannot find a home in Paris, either because they come from one of the invaded provinces or because they are, for some other reason, isolated. They find what they need in the home. We have an establishment very comfortably fitted up, where each wounded man has his own bedroom, and there is a dining and meeting room in common. The house includes workshops for cobblers and tailors, and a school of accountancy. The wounded are kept there, and get their board and lodging at our expense, and we retain nothing from the franc 70 which they receive from the State. This is the house to which General Vieillard gave his last years, and which his assistant, General Goetschy, is anxious to carry on today. There the wounded have the friendship and encouragement of a group of ladies, of whom the president is Madam Geoffray, the wife of our Ambassador at Madrid. There M. and Madam Duhamel honour the memory of their son by devoting themselves to the service of these heroes of the war in which he fell. The house has all this to commend it, but it has one fault. We can put up there only 80 boarders. This, then, is the reason why we met yesterday afternoon to open a new home for the re-education of the wounded. To whom do we owe this enlargement of our work? The house has been freely placed at our disposal by Madame Francis de Croisset, whom we thank for her generosity. The Societe francaise de secours aux blesses of which Madame the Countess d'Haussonville, and my eminent colleague, the Marquis de Vogue, are the presidents, has given us 20,000 francs to help us in fitting it up, and already many of the subscribers whose subscriptions amount to more than 20,000 francs, ask that their gifts be allocated to this new home. The Viscount d'Harcourt, vice-president of the Paris committee, together with Frederic Masson (honorary president), and Louis Barthou (acting president), has agreed to take the first share in the direction of the home, and at the same time a committee of ladies has been formed to look after it. I apologise for giving these particulars. I think, however, that it is my special duty to do so. I am speaking to my fellow workers. My readers are men and women who have given this money, and from whom I am going to ask more. Of my own initiative I would speak rather of the kindness, the courtesy, and the simple nobility of these heroes, who have saved the country at the cost of their own suffering, and who never utter a complaint. But by this time no one has any need of persuasion to love and to serve the wounded, the martyrs of France, the living witnesses of a great devotion. I have taken up a definite task. I am fulfilling it to the best of my ability. I am answering the perfectly natural question—tell us what progress has been made with our organisation for the benefit of the wounded.

A TRUE RE-EDUCATION.

We have a workshop for shoemakers. We are teaching that trade already to the out-patients and to the in-patients. The results are very encouraging. After a few months the apprentices quickly become capable of earning a living either in the town or in the country. We have a school of hairdressers. I am told that this will be a great success. We shall teach industrial drawing and architecture. Many of the severely wounded used to work in the building trade, and so are prepared for draftsmanship in the particular branches which they understand. We are opening a school of harness-making. We found need of it. This calling is very easily practised by the wounded. We are often asked for it, and it has this immense advantage that it can take the soldier back to his own village. We find a home for 80 boarders, and very soon our guests will see 20 of them already put to work. It is quite clear that the new establishment will cost a considerable sum. How are we going to meet the expense? You know by the reports of the secretary of the Paris committee, M. Schurhon, professor of law, what are our general results. Out of the proceeds of our subscription, which is by no means exhausted, we have already given 1547 limbs, either legs or arms, without counting 162 pairs of orthopedic boots, hundreds of sticks, bequilles, and rubber bequilles. We have had or have now a total of 727 men being educated for trades of all sorts; 325 have finished their re-education, and are already earning their living in the trades which we have taught them. I insist that this figure—727—is very considerable. It seems small enough when one thinks of the great numbers that have been wounded, but to appreciate it we have to remember the expense and the difficulty of a true re-education. Finally, our employment agency shows that 1951 wounded men have been found work with success. Our work must be continued. We cannot cut down our expenditure. We ought not to draw upon the funds provided for our work for this new house. The result will be to compromise the future of our other schools and to make it more difficult for us to continue our gifts of artificial limbs. The wise course would be to make the new school self-sufficient, and we would like to make it live by the establishment of bursaries, of which there are already a considerable number at the Rapee. Every subscriber who pays 800 francs founds an entire scholarship, by which the rayser as tradesman of one wounded man will be assured. If the founder has a friend of his own he can point him out as the object of his gift. It will be very useful also to give half scholarships worth 400 francs. This sum is not sufficient to enable a man to take up a manual trade, but it often will suffice to enable the wounded to enter on a commercial career which is more suitable for some of them. Those of our subscribers who are not willing thus to found one of these scholarships may pay any sum they please for the general support of the house. I must excuse myself for the length of these explanations. Clearness is the sister of honesty. It is a guarantee of good work. From month to month we continue our work with general approval and with general success, which is due to the assistants whom I have had the honour and the good fortune to collect about me. Thanks, above all, to the authority and the energy of M. Hebrard de Villeneuve, member of the Committee of the Federation, we have succeeded in gaining the gratitude due to a public utility. Delegates from the trades unions help on our committees, for they realise that the wounded must not be allowed to have to bargain for their wages, and that they should be assured of an adequate return for their work. They have declared themselves satisfied with our methods and with our work.

AWARDED THE VICTORIA CROSS.

LIEUT. ARTHUR SEAFORTH BLACKBURN,

Son of the late Canon Blackburn, of Woodville, South Australia, step-brother of Dr. C. Bickerton Blackburn, of Macleay-street, Potts Point (who recently left with the rank of lieut.-colonel to go to the front), and a family connection of Dr. Percy Moore Wood, of Ashfield.

With 50 men he directed a drive at the enemy at a strong point, and, with dogged determination, he eventually captured the trench, after personally leading four separate parties of bombers, many of whom met with casualties. Lieutenant Blackburn captured 250 yards of trench in the face of fierce opposition; then, after crawling forward with a sergeant to reconnoitre, he returned, attacked, and seized another 120 yards of trench, thus establishing communication with the battalion on his left. Lieutenant Arthur Seaforth Blackburn, who is in his 25th year, was educated at St. Peter's College, Adelaide, and is a barrister by profession. He enlisted as a private at the outbreak of the war, and took part in the famous landing in Gallipoli. He received his commission during the campaign on the peninsula. He was among the first of the Australians to go to France from Egypt.

A QUEENSLAND V.C.

PRIVATE JOHN LEAK.

He was a member of a party which finally captured enemy positions at a strong point. During one assault, when the enemy's bombs were outranging ours, Private Leak jumped out of the trench and ran forward in the face of heavy machine-gun fire to close range and threw three bombs into the enemy's bombing place. He then jumped in and bayoneted three Germans. Later, when the enemy in overwhelming numbers was driving back the party, Leak was always the last to withdraw. At each stage he kept on throwing bombs with courage and energy, with such an effect on the enemy that, reinforcements arriving, the whole trench was recaptured. Private Leak, who is 24 years of age, left Australia with reinforcements to a battalion raised in Queensland.

ANZAC RAIDS.

IN NORTHERN FRANCE.

A MAORI'S BRAVERY.

(BY WILLIE WOMBAT.)

NORTHERN FRANCE, July 18.

During the past month I have told several stories of raids carried out by Anzac troops into the enemy lines. Official sources up till two days ago stated that eleven of these adventures took place during the month, so it is evident that these "stunts," as the lads call them, were justified. Recent events have proved their usefulness, and the more the Anzacs come in contact with the enemy the more they are satisfied that their midnight excursions have served a very useful purpose.

When these raids were first inaugurated they proved a complete surprise to Fritz. Our artillery continues to pour shells into the enemy trenches, causing infinitely more harm and havoc than any the Huns have ever thought of. As the raids continue, so does the nervousness of the Huns grow. And the proof of it goes on from day to day; so much so that captives candidly admit that the suspense and continual watch for our boys are simply nerve-wracking and a great strain. It is believed that the Anzacs are simply "tickling the Huns to death."

As time goes on, and as experience is being gained, these raiding parties have grown in numbers—the teams now consist of more men, with the result that things are becoming desperate with the enemy. I have been informed that a raiding party of Maoris carried out a skilful piece of work a few nights ago, and that they carried the whole affair off with great credit to themselves and everybody connected with them. It was their first try, and they gained their ends. The event was one which they had been training hard for, and the courage and dash which they exhibited have won for them great praise from all the troops as well as their superior officers. Under cover of a furious bombardment the New Zealand natives and their officers calmly made their way across "No Man's Land." It was a passage full of excitement, and before they had gone very far enemy machine guns commenced to play all round them. They soon got down to it, and continued their journey in a crawling attitude. One Maori lad, who is considered to have the speed of a snake in such performances, got well ahead of his mates, and continued through the barb wire right up to Fritz's parapet. With great care he succeeded in having a peep into the enemy trench. He very quickly discovered that the enemy were making preparations to attack the raiders, and also that men were being brought up from the support trenches. There was no Tai hoa, and this lad immediately set out to pick up those he had left behind. He reported the matter to his officer, who at once despatched a messenger back to the trenches to inform the artillery of the movement. The rest of the men he moved up to the barb-wire, where a series of noises and tappings were made on the wire along a fair stretch of front.

It was a few minutes of great suspense. It was not for long. The Maori lad brought back such accurate information that within the first few minutes our shells were churning and milling the enemy trenches with such effect that the ground fairly trembled for miles around. It was a quarter of an hour's terrific pounding, and the slaughter must have been considerable, besides the damage done to the enemy's earthworks. The Maoris did not get into Fritz's trenches, and it was lucky for them, too, because everything was in readiness for them, and there might have been many casualties. Anyhow, thanks to the daring native lad, all returned safely, and Fritz once more got the worst of the affair.

Last night a company of New Zealanders were again in the field, when they made a glorious attempt to raid a section of the enemy's front line. The move had been anticipated by Fritz, and the raiders met with a withering fire from machine-guns. They abandoned the attempt after some loss, which was mainly due to taking cover in a sort of creek or channel which traverses No Man's Land at this particular place. The enemy expected such to be the case, and had their plans laid accordingly.

A striking example of the devotion of officers to their men was afforded that night. A major and captain each returned with a wounded man. The former returned a second time, and once more rescued an unfortunate soldier. The third attempt resulted fatally to himself. Captain —— brought in three men, and in his attempt to bring in a fourth, he, too, died nobly in No Man's Land.

And as the result of that night's work an incident occurred which I can never forgive the Huns for, and is in direct opposition to an affair recorded by an Australian representative of the press, and which, of course, I do not for a moment suggest as incorrect. The incident reported was that a famous British regiment had made a glorious attempt to reach the German trenches, but owing to the long distance across No Man's Land, the enemy beat back the attempt by a furious machine-gun fire. The correspondent continued: "I do not know whether the Germans were touched by their gallantry, but they did what was unprecedented in this theatre of war—helped the British to carry in the wounded." Unprecedented was the word to use. And the isolation of the case no doubt tempted the publicity of it. The incident which I refer to is this. As soon as daylight began, wounded New Zealanders were to be seen up to their waists in a swamp signalling for help, and a party of Red Cross men immediately set out to their assistance. But the Huns, who were nervous and harassed, and who now had their parapets well manned, opened fire on the Red Cross party. Several attempts were made to give assistance, but the machine guns from the parapet rose in a constant crescendo in every instance. It is one of those instances which are occurring very often on the Anzac front, and which are spurring our boys on to greater determination.

It is a pretty well-established fact that the Anzacs are keeping some of Germany's best troops in a state of continual torment. An Anzac who was through the Gallipoli campaign said to me a few days ago: "Thank God I came through that lot all right, and I'm certain my luck is in to be privileged to have a box on with these curs. The Turks were fair fighters, but those over there," indicating the Hun lines, "they're ——."

GLORIOUS CHARGE.

THE 1st OF JULY.

NO COWARDS OR WAVERERS.

After the great attack of July 1 the following message was addressed by Lieutenant-General Sir Aylmer Hunter-Weston, K.C.B., D.S.O., to all officers, N.C.Os., and men of the VIII. Army Corps:—

In so big a command as an army corps of four divisions (about eighty thousand men) it is impossible for me to come round all front-line trenches and all billets to see every man as I wish to do. You must take the will for the deed, and accept this printed message in place of the spoken word.

It is difficult for me to express my admiration for the splendid courage, determination, and discipline displayed by every officer, N.C.O., and man of the battalions that took part in the great attack on the Beaumont-Hamel-Serre position of July 1. All observers agree in stating that the various waves of men issued from their trenches and moved forward at the appointed time in perfect order, undismayed by the heavy artillery fire and deadly machine-gun fire. There were no cowards nor waverers, and not a man fell out. It was a magnificent display of disciplined courage worthy of the best traditions of the British race.

Very few are left of my old comrades, the original "Contemptibles," but their successors in the 4th Division have shown that they are worthy to bear the honours gained by the 4th Division at their first great fight at Fontaine-au-Pire and Ligny during the great retreat and greater advance across the Marne and the Aisne, and in all the hard fighting at Ploegsteert and at Ypres.

Though but few of my old comrades, the heroes of the historic landing at Cape Helles, are still with us, the 29th Division of to-day has shown itself capable of maintaining its high traditions, and has proved itself worthy of its hard-earned title of the "Incomparable 29th."

The 31st New Army Division and the 48th Territorial Division, by the heroism and discipline of the units engaged in this their first battle, have proved themselves worthy to fight by the side of such magnificent regular divisions as the 4th and 29th. There can be no higher praise.

We had the most difficult part of the line to attack. The Germans had fortified it with skill and immense labour for many months; they had kept their best troops here, and had assembled north, east, and south-east of it a formidable collection of artillery and many machine guns.

By your splendid attack you held these enemy forces here in the north, and so enabled our friends in the south, both British and French, to achieve the brilliant success that they have. Therefore, though we did not do all we hoped to do, you have more than pulled your weight, and you and our even more glorious comrades who have preceded us across the Great Divide have nobly done your duty.

We have got to stick it out, and go on hammering. Next time we attack, if it please God, we will not only pull our weight, but will pull off a big thing. With such troops as you, who are determined to stick it out and do your duty, we are certain of winning through to a glorious victory.

I salute each officer, N.C.O., and man of the 4th, 29th, 31st, and 48th divisions as a comrade-in-arms, and I rejoice to have the privilege of commanding such a band of heroes as the VIII. Corps have proved themselves to be.

AYLMER HUNTER-WESTON,
Lieut.-General.

PATRIOTISM IN FINANCE.

AN AMERICAN TRIBUTE.

In the "New York Nation" for June 29 there appears an interesting article on "How Britain Finances the War," in which the writer pays a high tribute to the spirit in which Great Britain has met the crisis.

"It is not only the role of her navy," says the writer, "that Britain plays a unique part among the nations in the great war. The story of her finances, and especially of the policy of taxation which has gone along with her immense expenditure, is one of the most remarkable developments of the great conflict. The way in which successive increases in taxation have been received by the country bears the most eloquent possible testimony to the unfaltering loyalty of the nation."

The article concludes with an expression of "profound respect for the spirit in which the prosperous classes of Britain have met a duty less inspiring, but no less exacting, than that of facing the enemy in the field—the duty of clear-eyed and willing submission to the fiscal demands of their gigantic warfare."

The women of Aalst, a thickly-populated manufacturing town between Ghent and Brussels, have resolved to organise hunger demonstrations similar to those at Ghent and previously at Courtrai.

AUSTRALIANS.

VISITS TO LONDON.

THE HOSTEL QUESTION.

(BY OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, July 27.

Is there no possible habitat for the Australian soldier in London other than the slums of Westminster? This question obtrudes itself by reason of the proposal now in hand to establish a hostel for the accommodation of some hundreds of the Australians certain to be at large in London during the coming months, either as convalescents or as soldiers on leave. It is a proposal which issues from the Commonwealth Military Offices. It has in view the establishment of a resting-place and sleeping-place of a capacity that will suffice to make it the central rendezvous of the Australian soldier in London. Such a rendezvous is very desirable. It is, indeed, imperative. But why it should be set up in a slum lane of Westminster, and in a disused venereal hospital at that, is one of the mysteries of Australian military administration, more than one of which the writer finds unfathomable. For that is the project. In Great Peter-street, Westminster, a miserable locality, a mean street if ever there was one, and set in a hive of mean streets that are covered with dwellings of the poorest class, a place of heat and dirt in summer-time, and in winter-time a place of utter dreariness and desolation, is a large building which once was a hospital of no particular reputation. Because it is a large building, apparently, it is considered to be just the building to serve as an appropriate home for thousands of young Australians in London with the object of seeing London. Also, perhaps, because it is to be had fairly cheap. Other considerations, seemingly, have but small part in the scheme—though some of them affect vitally the well-being of Australia.

The reasons named, though they are advanced by the military authorities, are not the only reasons they plead. They say they cannot find a suitable building anywhere else. With all due regret, I do not accept that statement. London is a vast place, and I cannot think that in all its spread—here, there, and everywhere—nothing better can be found for the Australian lads than an old hospital in one of the most disreputable slum localities in the whole of London slumland. As a matter of fact, a site on St. James's Park was offered to the Australian military authorities, where, in an ideal surrounding, temporary buildings could be set up. That proposal, however, was rejected on the score of expense, an objection which I presume would also rule out the method adopted over and over again by the British Government of taking over a London hotel. For the sake, therefore, of a saving of a few hundreds—or is it thousands—of pounds the Commonwealth authorities decide upon Great Peter-street—and by so doing not only condemn the Australian soldier to a surrounding which, by no possible argument, could be held to be beneficial to him, but one which, on the contrary, is notorious in London for its possibilities of evil.

One of those possibilities was before us a day or two ago in the police court case of the woman who lived by selling drink to soldiers in her particularly disreputable corner of this slum area. That, however, was but one of the sidelights open to the observer of life in Westminster. In the curious, but familiar, way of London, this submerged locality is at the very edge of the Abbey precincts, and the nobly open highway of Victoria-street. But at one step you are within it, within the filth and degradation of its hovels, its barrow-markets in the midst of the traffic, and their swirl of slum merchandise, the swarm of its slum population, and all the pitiful squalor of the underworld, of which it is a part. Thereabouts is Great Peter-street, to reach which, and the hostel that is to be their temporary home, Australian soldiers must go in and about this labyrinth of dirty lanes and all that it holds of evil. For not least of the notoriety of the slumland of Westminster is in the fact that it is the haunt of a particularly degraded type of street woman. The temptations in that respect of the young Australian soldier in London are obvious and unescapable, but they need not be complicated by this housing of him in one of the lowest quarters of the city.

There is, too, a complaint against the military authorities on the ground that this hostel should be in the hands of the Australian ladies who have done so much in the way of ministering to the needs of their compatriot soldiers in London rather than in the hands of the official administration. I am not concerned with that quarrel, nor with the official answer to it that the Cairo hostel arrangements are certain to succeed as well in London as in Egypt. The point I wish to raise is that, however it may be in regard to the convenient building used as the military offices of the Commonwealth, the slums of Westminster are in every sense an undesirable residential quarter for Australian soldiers, that effort should be made to house them in the open spaciousness of a finer London, and that the objection of expense is a poor cry to raise in such a regard. And by way of answer to the plea that no other locality is available, at the very moment in which it is advanced by the Commonwealth authorities New Zealand organisations open two rendezvous for New Zealand soldiers in Kingsway and Russell-square respectively—places that are as mercifully different as they are far removed from the slumland of Westminster.

POULTRY.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Hon. Secretary: The circular was received too late for notice.

Soldier's Wife: Write to the Under-Secretary for Agriculture for particulars of the poultry course at Hawkesbury College.

Mimosa: You can safely mate your birds as you suggest. [illegible] When eggs are sold for incubation, infertile ones are replaced. When only two or three infertiles are found in an incubator lot, few people trouble about them, but the two will no doubt be replaced by the vendor. When there are a large number of infertiles, results are rarely good, germs and stale eggs being responsible for many dead in shell.

Coonamburst: In a flock of 200 the loss of a bird daily is unusual. The feeding is correct, but healthy fowls on a large free run do not require the drugs you mention, which should be discontinued. Pollard, bran, wheat, and maize are the best and simplest foods. Sick birds should be isolated, and each given a small dose of castor oil, afterwards feeding on boiled rice. If this is not effective, a pill should be given night and morning made of five grains rhubarb, five grains chalk, three grains cayenne.

Capon: White Leghorn cockerels will find a ready market at from four to five months old; up to that age capons do not sell better. If you desired to keep them for, say, 12 months, the capons would be superior, but for market purposes they would have their heads eaten off twice over. Any bookseller can supply or procure you a book on the subject.

Cert.: There is no better food for young chickens for the first few days than flaked oatmeal. Afterwards feed with the usual chicken mixtures, obtainable at most produce stores. The trouble may have been caused by the chicks trampling in the food. Chickens should be fed regularly, just enough at a time. Discontinue the eggs. A brooder kept too hot or too cold may also be responsible for the trouble.

Most people nowadays are interested in poultry-breeding. At the Woman's Industrial Exhibition at the Town Hall the various phases of the industry are daily demonstrated.

The scare about Asiatic eggs has subsided. There is still a number of them in the Sydney cool chambers that can, it is said, be had at a price showing a considerable loss to importers. Established poultry farmers, realising the almost prohibitive 9d per dozen for duty, freight, insurance, etc., never worried over the matter. The trouble in the local egg market is not through the Asiatic article, but the free interstate arrivals from Adelaide and Brisbane.

Last week was a record one for prices for poultry of all varieties. Old hens for boiling hardened to 9s, and a few 9s 6d per couple; Muscovy drakes to 15s, cockerels to 10s 3d, and turkey hens to 18s; while 3s was current for pigeons.

Permanganate of potash is antiseptic, and in the poultry yard may be used as a disinfectant, in the case of roup and other contagious diseases; but to compel fowls to drink this chemical is absurd. A flock of fowls on a free run, if fed on pollard, bran, wheat, and maize, given fresh water daily, and kept in open-fronted houses, should keep healthy.

It is now just over 30 years since the late Mr. W. Cook brought before the public a new breed of fowls, and named them after the small Kentish town in which he resided—Orpington. About a dozen years after their introduction black Orpingtons had become the most popular show pen fowl in England, and with the buffs continue so, with perhaps a single exception. Australian breeders soon adopted the breed, the exhibits at the shows frequently totalling over 200. Of late years, while this number may not have been reached at the exhibitions, the breed is well established with poultry farmers, who of late have only realised that apart from a fancy or show bird, the Orpingtons are the leading utility fowls of the State. The cockerels of this breed have realised recently 10s per couple, old hens last week fetched 9s, even the newly hatched chickens bringing 1s each. There are poor laying strains of Orpingtons, as in other breeds of fowls, but perhaps fewer. Those extremely short in the legs, and of the Cochin type, are rarely good performers. The majority are, however, in the front ranks as layers. Last Saturday's "Herald" showed that at the Hawkesbury College competition, of the 70 pens competing for the first year, two pens of this breed easily lead, while as individual layers there are records at the same tests of 143, 138, 128, and 122 for the five months and five days of the competition. As table fowls the skin and flesh are white. The chickens are easily reared, and when well fed can be marketed at an early age. Orpingtons of whatever colour are a leading utility fowl, with an established popularity.

Sydney Silky, Aust., and Y. T. Club	Oct. 14

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

F.M. (Sydney), R.H.J.B. (Glebe), A.F. (Sydney): Received with thanks.

A DISPUTED MEDAL.

"Gold Medal" asks for a decision on the following question:—A club in 1912 offered a gold medal for competition at each annual show. It was to be the property of the exhibitor who won it three times, not necessarily in succession, or with the same exhibit. Results to date are:—1912, won by A; 1913, won by B; 1914, A and C were placed equal by the judge; 1915, won by D; 1916, won by A. Is A entitled to the medal under the conditions? Answer: There is no argument involved. A is not so entitled. He has scored only two wins and a half a win; and no reasoning can make that equal to the three wins necessary for possession of the medal.

BULLDOGS.

Mr. Cussen, hon. secretary of the W.A. Bulldog Club, writes to Mr. M'William, president of the Bulldog Club of N.S.W., as follows:—"It will, no doubt, interest you to know that recently we had a conference with the committee of the W.A. Kennel Club with a view to coming to an amicable arrangement with that body in reference to holding our show under other than their rules. I am pleased to say that we were successful in achieving our object, and our show will be recognised by the W.A.K.C., and will be supported by its committee."

The W.A. Bulldog Club's show will be held on October 21 in Perth, and there is a likelihood of at least two Sydney dogs making the trip over to represent the N.S.W. Bulldog Club.

Bulldog owners are reminded that entries for the Bulldog Club show to be held at the R.A.S. grounds on 29th and 30th instant, must make their entries with the hon. secretary at the Hotel Arcadia by Saturday next.

POMERANIAN AND TOY DOG CLUB.

"Club Member" writes:—In "Kennel Notes" of the 6th instant appears a clipping from the "Australasian" criticising the club over the recent show. Being a distorted statement, kindly allow me a few lines for reply. The writer states that Sydney is miles behind Melbourne; to use an old Scotch phrase, "Maybie; or it mightna." The vet. was unavoidably detained on the opening morning, but the same accident might occur to the most perfect Melbourne club. Then came the surprise that there were no cages. I have been exhibiting for some years in New South Wales, and have never met them yet. The writer complains, but does not show where the club is in fault with its special prize section. I always understood that donors could allot prizes to what they liked, provided that they conformed to the K.C. rules—and I think they did. Then complaint is made at the club refusing to enrol new members at the eleventh hour, and that 14 names were thus lost to the membership roll. On referring to the secretary, I was informed that four applications were received after the schedules had been issued, including one from Melbourne. A meeting of the club was held to consider this unusual request, and it was decided not to enrol new members until after the show. At the monthly meeting of the club, held on the 5th inst, the applicants (who had been notified of the decision), together with a number of others, were nominated for membership. That should convince the writer that no insult was given.

PUG AND POODLE CLUB.

The annual championship show (under Kennel Club rules) of the Pug and Poodle Club of New South Wales, will be held on Eight-hour Day (October 2), at the Royal Show Ground. Mr. T. M. Woolston will make the awards. Entries close on the 23rd inst. The prize money, 5s first and special, if any, and 2s 6d second, is not alluring, especially as nothing is given if less than three entries are made in each class. Several specials are offered for the open class, and others have been promised. The classification follows:—Fawn pugs: 1, puppy dog; 2, novice dog; 3, limit dog; 4, open dog; 5, puppy bitch; 6, novice bitch; 7, limit bitch; 8, open bitch; 9, maiden dog or bitch; 10, brace. Black pugs: 11, puppy dog; 12, novice dog; 13, limit dog; 14, Australian-bred dog; 15, open dog; 16, puppy bitch; 17, novice bitch; 18, limit bitch; 19, Australian-bred bitch; 20, open bitch; 21, maiden dog or bitch; 22, brace. Poodles: 23, puppy dog; 24, maiden dog; 25, novice dog; 26, limit dog; 27, open dog; 28, puppy bitch; 29, maiden bitch; 30, novice bitch; 31, limit bitch; 32, open bitch; 33, brace; 34, team.

Mother and father and sister Jane
Went to the show and came home in the rain;
Mother got "flu"—and sister, too—
While father took to his bed again.
My haste to secure some Woods' Peppermint Cure
Was justified early next day,
For father and mother and Sister Jane
Are as bright as the larks and as gay.—Advt.

THE MAN FROM EGYPT.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

THE STORY IN THE DEAD FACE.

The vicar of Bingham Parva was in his study, composing one of those sermons in which, as he had told Raven, he preached the virtue of telling the truth. It must have been a hobby with the good man, based on his own innate hatred of mendacity, for it is not on record that the natives of the Kentish parish were worse liars than their neighbours.

Suddenly the Rev. Mr. Tonson laid aside his old-fashioned quill with a sigh. A tap at the door told him that his homily was to be interrupted. He uttered a gentle "come in," wondering if the disturber of his peace was his wife or his irrepressible six-year-old son. If it was the latter, he knew that his morning's work was as good as over. In five minutes' time he would be playing leap-frog on the lawn with the urchin whose likeness to that other urchin of the Lambeth slum had so startled the man from Egypt. But the vicar's brow cleared when a buxom, comely lady bustled in.

"Sorry to disturb you, dear," she said. "The postman has just been. Nothing for you, but a most extraordinary letter from my mother. I couldn't answer it without consulting you."

"Your mother?" gasped the vicar. "Why, I thought we were not on speaking terms. We have not heard from Mrs. Marazion for years."

The plump little woman, who must have taken after the late Reverend Robert Marazion rather than after the gaunt shewolf whose fortunes have mingled with this story, perched herself on the edge of the table, and handed a letter to her husband.

"I can't make it out, dear," she said. "See what you can do with it. Truth is your strong point. I hope it is mine, but it certainly never was mother's."

Mr. Tonson took the screed in his nervous fingers, and read as follows the angular writing, every point like a dagger-thrust:—

"c/o Mrs. Blessard,
"Trafford,
"Hampshire.

"Dear Dora,—I have not corresponded with you for a considerable time. I have had to maintain myself in a manner derogatory to the position of a clergyman's widow. But that employment has now been terminated by the disgraceful conduct of my late employers. I have left Trafford Abbey and am staying for a few days in lodgings in the village. I am not in pecuniary need, but you will understand that it is very humiliating for a lady to be talked about as a discharged servant. I therefore write to ask if you will take me in as a paying guest for a short time, from Friday next. I am detained here on private business till that day.

"I am aware that you and your husband are not well disposed towards me, and I do not base my request on any higher grounds than that you will reap material advantage by accepting this proposal.

"Your mother,
"Judith Marazion."

"Queer, isn't it?" said Mrs. Tonson, as her husband finished perusal. "What do you make of it, dear?"

The good vicar was a charitable man towards the whole world but the mother-in-law who had led him a dog's life in his curate days—when she had time to spare from worrying her own children and bullying the parish. To him she was an execrable person, devoid of all moral sense.

"I make this of it," he replied. "Your mother has done something disgraceful which makes it necessary for her to go into retirement in natural circumstances which will leave no taint of suspicion. What more natural than that she should come to stay with her own relations in her old home? But I make this of it, also, that her dirty work, whatever it is, isn't finished, and won't be finished till Thursday. That is why she wants to come on Friday if we will have her. And we won't have her, Dora. For one thing, your brother Bob's ghost would haunt me all the time."

Mrs. Tonson slid down from her perch. "That is my feeling," she sighed. "I will write and tell her that her proposal is out of the question. Poor, dear old Bob! How shamefully she treated him. I don't see why you should saddle him with a ghost, though. We shall have news of him some day—blossomed into one of these swell actor-managers who have their pictures in the papers. I saw one in an old 'Sketch' the other day that had a faint look of Bob. Albany Tenniers his name was."

The vicar nodded and bent over his sermon paper, as one in complete accord with his wife, expecting nothing but the acquiescence he had obtained.

At the door Mrs. Tonson was nearly knocked down by the irruption of the tousled general servant, bearing an orange envelope.

'A tellygraff—for the master, mum," panted the freak, salving the missive from the collision and presenting it to the vicar. Telegrams were so rare at the vicarage that Mrs. Tonson delayed her departure.

"Come up at once to see if you can identify dead man. Will meet 12.30 at Charing Cross.—Raven," was the message which the startled clergyman read. And it happened that he read it aloud, not perceiving its purport till he came to the signature. He could not, even if he wised, withhold an explanation from his wife.

"My dear, I must go to town," he said, rising. "This is from a gentleman who called last week. He was trying to trace, from motives of philanthropy, as far as I could make out, a man who had once lived at Bingham Parva and who is now missing from his home. There were vague indications that the man might be Bob, though as there was no certainty we decided that you had better not be told till further inquiry had been made. This looks as if the man, whether Bob or not, has been found and that he is dead."

"I shall come, too. I am better qualified to identify my brother than you are," replied Mrs. Tonson, quietly.

The vicar recognised the tone. It was one his good spouse very seldom used, but when she did it reminded him of Mrs. Marazion. He knew that by fair means or foul the plump little lady would have her way. Fortunately, Mrs. Marazion's youngest daughter had not inherited the qualities which had driven her mother into tortuous paths, and her methods of "getting there" were never foul.

"Magna est femina, et praevalebit, which, translated, means 'Great is the woman, and she will prevail,'" the vicar cracked his little joke. "Get your things on, dear. We haven't much time."

When the 12.30 slow train from the wilds of Kent delivered its passengers at Charing Cross, the door of the Tonsons' compartment was hardly opened when Raven was shaking the vicar's hand, and, instinctively realising their relationship, helping Mrs. Tonson to alight. It was "Mr. Richard Raven" no longer in ill-cut habiliments of provincial mourning, but Claude Raven, the clear-eyed, clean-built Egyptian police-officer on leave, clad in summer tweeds.

"Can't say I'm glad to meet you, Mrs. Tonson," was his brusque acknowledgment of the vicar's introduction. "It is a disagreeable task that I have set your husband. No need why you should be distressed."

"It was really me you ought to have sent for," replied the lady, firmly. "I am not easily distressed."

"Then we will get a cab and have it over," said Raven, when a quick glance had told him that his recent visit to the vicarage was no secret between the couple. "But first let me make you known to Mr. Sidney Dalrymple. He shares with you the responsibility of your sad errand."

The tall, dilapidated old man who doffed his shabby silk hat was the decayed tragedian whom Raven had discovered in the saloon bar at "Poverty Corner," and who had given the first clue to Bingham Parva as the missing Bob Winstanley's birthplace.

"Madam, it is an honour and a pleasure to share anything with you," he declaimed, in his quavering bass. "Would that it were a happier meeting, but better this than none. Lead on, my friend."

Raven "led on"—to the taxi which he had beckoned—and bundled his charges into it. He followed in another, with a stout man who had watched the arrival of the Tonsons from the background. He sighed heavily as he seated himself at the side of Raven.

"Come, buck up, Marfleet, and understand that no blame attaches to you," said the latter. "Sir Leicester quite sees that if you had had my luck in clues, and in social advantages, you would have gathered all these threads yourself. I am out to help friends, and not for credit. You will get all that, if anybody does. They are not caught yet, and it's up to you to catch them. The only stipulation I am going to make is that, as the hound who struck the scene first, I am to be in at the death—if there is to be a kill. But I am out of the picture on the film."

"You are very generous, sir, but I shall never forgive myself," replied the inspector, humbly. "And though public credit is bread and butter to us, self-respect is the wine of life to a detective who loves his work."

THE TYRES THAT LAST LONGER.

PALMER CORD TYRES.
PALMER CORD TYRES.

Durability is built right into the Palmer Tyre. The foundation of impregnated rubber cords, the extra strength at the bead, and the extremely serviceable rubber used in the thread, equip these tyres for the severest usage. The Palmer is the only tyre absolutely devoid of canvas—it will not sag nor creep.

FARM AND STATION.

QUALITY IN WHEAT.

Quality in wheat is not recognised sufficiently in the prices paid the grower. This is a disadvantage that should be remedied by the introduction of the bulk handling system. Therefore, in the consideration of the innovation it should not be forgotten that it will result in the encouragement of better farming, which, in turn, will mean greater and more profitable production. Under a complete and effective system of handling wheat in bulk, the grain will be graded and paid for according to quality. One of the greatest faults of the present system is that the producer of good quality, superior grain does not receive a sufficient recompense in the market. It is time this was altered, and more attention given to quality. In this regard Mr. J. T. Pridham, plant breeder, says in the course of an article in the "Agricultural Gazette:"—

"The purchase of wheat on grade and quality, as is done in America, is likely to come into force when bulk handling is introduced, and under this system a farmer would not only get the benefit of having clean and well-grown wheat for sale, but the quality of the grain would receive consideration. Wheat is in an anomalous position in this respect. Buyers seldom pay more for quality, except in the case of Bobs, Cedar, and Comeback—wheats which are now grown only to a limited extent. Wool, cream, fruit, chaff, and other products are sold on the basis of quality, and yet so long as wheat is reasonably sound and free from smut the buyer usually gives the full price. That quality in wheat is coming by degrees to the front, however, is indicated by the fact that strong and medium-strong samples are bought up by local millers, only the softer varieties being exported. As in the Argentine, the amount of hard wheat as yet grown here is relatively small, though Carleton estimates that in the United States of America the yearly output of hard wheat is approximately 250,000,000 bushels, or about half of the total wheat production. The Royal Agricultural Society has made special sections for the exhibition of wheat of good grain quality. Mr. Guthrie has drawn attention to the fact that farmers in the northern districts of the State had a reputation for the production of soft grain, but that now a harder type of grain is raised, which is more in favour with millers. The introduction of harder wheats must be a gradual process, because the softest varieties yield, as a rule, more grain per acre than the harder sorts, and on that account are in favour with the farmer, who naturally grows what pays him best. The late Mr. W. Farrer believed in aiming high, and he brought forward the varieties Comeback, Bobs, Jonathan, and Cedar. These wheats are ideal for bread-making, and are valuable for blending purposes; but they do not yield well enough to pay the farmer under present conditions. Varieties of the medium-strong class are more extensively grown, such as Yandilla King, Marshall's No. 3, Rymer, and Bunyip. Federation, which is more largely grown than any other, really belongs to the weak-flour class, although it is often called medium-strong. 'Hard Federation' is a distinct variety, and a promising member of the medium-strong class. Sir J. H. Carruthers has called attention to the question of grain quality in his advocacy of the Canadian variety Marquis. We have, however, wheats equal in flour strength to Marquis, and better adapted to the climatic conditions of the State; for instance, the variety just mentioned, Hard Federation."

In regard to the quality of wheat, it must be admitted that one of the worst features of the wheat-pooling scheme is the fact that it does not encourage the growing of best milling wheats. Providing the wheat reaches the f.a.q. standard, one wheat is worth as much as another, whereas hard wheats should realise threepence per bushel or more over varieties of inferior milling quality. Otherwise it does not pay farmers to grow the best wheats. No doubt the exigencies of the occasion made such inequalities unavoidable, but the authorities certainly should consider whether a higher price cannot be allowed for high quality wheat this season. As it is, the pooling scheme accentuates one of the worst features of the bag system as conducted in the past. Millers, before the Government took over the business, at least did give a penny or two at times over the price of f.a.q. wheat for varieties such as Bobs and Comeback.

CHEESE EXPORT TRADE.

A FLUCTUATING MARKET.

LONDON, July 27.

The cheese market has been subject to very violent fluctuations, and last Friday week there was something like a panic in Tooley-street, with the result that prices were forced down to as low as 80/ to 82/ for best New Zealand, white and coloured, and to round about the same figures for Canadian. There was absolutely no reason for such an extraordinary slump, as was evidenced by the almost immediate reaction which took place. Incredible though it may appear, the market within a few days had recovered to about the extent of 8/ to 10/ per cwt. Quite apart from the fact that a few houses became unduly nervous, and let go at almost any price, fearing a repetition of the disastrous drop in quotations about the same time last year, there is no doubt that the abnormal drop was brought about largely through artificial causes. As a result, those firms who were able to buy Canadian cheese at 80/ to 84/ c.i.f. London for finest section, and at 1/ to 2/ less for other descriptions, will undoubtedly reap a rich harvest. Already during the course of the past week c.i.f. values have advanced about 6/ to 10/ per cwt., and the nearest quotations to-day are 88/ to 92/ for best cheese, with other descriptions 1/ to 2/ per cwt. less. Naturally the market is somewhat subdued, but the statistical position is sound, and it is expected that prices will remain at round about the present values for some time to come. There is considerable talk in the market in regard to the probable commandeering by the British Government of the whole output of New Zealand cheese for the season 1916-17. Should this come about, and it seems highly probable, it will no doubt have a hardening effect on the price of Canadian, spot values of which to-day range from 88/ to 90/ per cwt. New Zealand is 90/ to 92/, fully 6/ to 8/ per cwt. dearer than the lowest prices recorded a fortnight ago. Comparing cheese imports for the year ended June 30 with the previous year, there was a net decrease of cheese import into this country of 81,476cwt, or 3.10 per cent. The decrease in New Zealand cheese landed here was 18,322cwt, and Australia 20,950cwt.

NEW ZEALAND CHEESE FACTORIES.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Sunday.

The cargo of the Tongariro, which has been lost, included a large quantity of rennett, and there is in consequence a probability of a number of cheese factories in the Wellington district being forced to close, at least temporarily.

LAND FOR RETURNED SOLDIERS.

TUMBARUMBA.—The Closer Settlement Board has been inspecting Manus Estate, adjacent to Tumbarumba, with a view to its resumption for returned soldiers. The farmers on Manus and parents of soldiers interviewed the chairman and members, and expressed their strong desire to secure their present holdings for themselves and for their farmer sons, many of whom are at the front. The deputation urged that such a magnificent stretch of farming and dairying land as Manus should at once be made available for returned men. They pointed out, however, that it would be better for the men and the district if those tenants who were so disposed could secure the farms they now work on the shares, as by so doing they would be able to assist the returned soldiers with their active help and experience. The tenants generally held that areas ranging from 300 to 400 acres for mixed farming would provide a family with a good living. They pointed out that the land was suitable for dairying, pig raising, oaten hay and wheat crops, apple and cherry gardens.

THE YASS DISTRICT.

YASS.—Conditions generally, both pastoral and agricultural, are very encouraging. The heavy rainfalls for the last ten weeks, which have been assisted by lighter falls this week, have soaked the ground thoroughly to the sub-soil. This has made work in the cultivation paddocks very difficult. Feed is plentiful, and should last well into the summer, the moisture in the ground being sufficient to keep it green for some time to come. On the river flats and in other areas the growth of herbage is more luxuriant than has been known for many years. The rainfall for August and July was the heaviest recorded for the same period since records were taken, especially at Yass, the total being 1407 points. The nearest approach was the total of 1405 points recorded in 1891 for the same period. During the months of July and August there were no less than 48 wet days out of 92. Although on the wet side, the weather has been extremely mild, only about three or four sharp frosts having occurred during the winter. This is phenomenal, and has allowed grass and herbage to make good growth, but crops have been somewhat hampered by excessive wet. The fruit trees are budding strong, and the earlier apricots and plums are breaking into blossom. So far as can be judged, the fruit will flower very heavy. Rabbits are fairly plentiful, but there is nothing like the quantity coming in that was noticeable early in the winter.

YANCO CLAIMS.

LEETON, Tuesday.

When the Compensation Commission resumed its sittings this morning, the Commissioner, Judge Bevan, announced that he was leaving for Sydney in the afternoon, in response to a telegram from Sydney that the Premier and Minister for Agriculture wished to consult him with regard to the new situation that had arisen out of the deputation from the Leeton Farmers' Union to the Premier last week. The Commission adjourned till next week, when the sittings will be resumed at Griffith.

CLOSER SETTLEMENT.

COONAMBLE.—The Progress Association has decided to urge the Government to resume the Warrana Station for closer settlement, under the provisions of the new Act.

SOUTH COAST.

RAIN BADLY NEEDED.

DAPTO.—Dry weather continues, and the outlook for dairy farmers in the district between Shellharbour and Wollongong is alarming. Every shower of rain is followed by a gale of wind, which renders growth impossible. There is no grass, and the crops of oats and wheat are so light that they will be soon cut out. There is not a ton of silage in the whole of the district, as farmers have had no chance to fill their silos for over a year. Water is so scarce that the Dapto Butter Factory has been unable to manufacture butter for some months past.

COWRA SHOW.

COWRA.—The 36th annual exhibition of the P.A. and H. Society opened yesterday under most favourable auspices. The weather was fine, and the attendance was quite up to previous occasions. Horses, cattle, and sheep were strongly represented. In the cattle section there were record entries in Shorthorns. The pavilion exhibits were extremely attractive and meritorious, representing the numerous and varied products of the town and district. Farm produce showed an improvement. Awards:—

STALE BREAD.

CONSIDERATION FOR PUBLIC.

JUDGE'S OPINION.

Mr. Justice Heydon, in the Industrial Court yesterday, in the course of a judgment on a matter in which a firm of master bakers sought, among other things, for an alteration of the starting hour from 8 a.m. to 6 a.m., referred to the changes which had been made in the hours for beginning work, and said that each of those changes made the bread supplied to the public staler than before, and if that was a hardship it was one from which the poorest people in the community suffered the most, for they ate more bread, in proportion to their other food, than anyone else. "The employers," he proceeded, "told me that they were opposed to this last change, but were compelled to yield through fears of a strike. It has proved so inconvenient that several master bakers have obtained exemptions on special terms, allowing them to begin work at 6 o'clock in order to make rolls. The pressure by the public to get fresh bread has been very insistent, and at one time members of the public, or persons seeking to supply the public, sent their own carts to the bakeries to get fresh bread. This intolerable piece of impudence was soon put a stop to; the union interposed, and insisted on the bread being kept until it was stale. Still, however, the selfish and inconsiderate public keeps on trying to get fresh bread whenever it sees a chance. Even counsel for the union admitted that he tried to get some. Fortunately he was prevented. It was shown to my satisfaction that if the exemption now asked for were granted the public would be able to get more fresh bread than it can get now, and I think it is entitled to some consideration. The present applicants have adopted a system of two deliveries a day, which will be rendered much more effective if the bread-making can be started earlier; and, though it seems quite hopeless now to look for fresh bread at breakfast, except rolls in some cases, the desire of the public for fresh bread is so strong that the various bread-sellers have to transfer their custom to the baker who can deliver to them earliest. For this reason the improving of the applicant's system of two deliveries a day may, within the radius of their deliveries, put pressure upon some other bakers to make two deliveries a day also, and that, it seems, would not suit them all, and might put them to extra expense. I am sorry for this, but I think that the advantage which, it seems to me, will be obtained for the public must be considered and should prevail."

Referring to the non-delivery of bread on holidays, his Honor said that the public deserved a little consideration. "The next thing," he added, "will be that anyone will get six months, without the option, who dares to have about his home in holiday time a piece of bread fresh enough to be eaten without breaking his teeth. On the other hand, the public should pay a fair thing to its holiday workers."

POLLUTION OF THE BEACHES.

With the advent of summer the question of garbage disposal at sea and the pollution of ocean beaches is occupying the attention of the Board of Health. In regard to the possibility of ocean-going vessels discharging refuse shortly after passing through the Heads, communications have recently been addressed to the Federal authorities, under whose jurisdiction this matter is, with a view to having some understanding with the owners and masters of ocean-going vessels, so that they will not commence discharging until they are some distance outside Sydney Heads.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1916.

GERMAN ADMINISTRATION.

The history of the occupation of Poland and Belgium respectively would almost justify the belief that the German Governors were appointed for the sole purpose of demonstrating to the allied countries what their fate may be if Germany is not utterly defeated in this war. But for their achievements people whose attention is fixed on the battlefields might easily forget the record of militarism in Alsace, and the prolonged attempts to crush national spirit in Posen; many might still be found who would explain the atrocities of the first two months in Belgium as the signs of a passing madness, and not as the product of a fixed national character. The German Governors always manage to awaken the conscience or the attention of the world by some typical act of treachery or brutality, and in almost every case the defence of the act is no less illuminating than the act itself. A bishop is imprisoned, a town plundered, or a woman shot, without a thought that such a proceeding is likely to shock the conscience of the mass of mankind. When the responsible Governor observes how his action strikes the world, and realises that it may not pay him to arouse adverse opinion, he invents some sophistical defence, or offers some consolation, of which the only result is to disclose his contempt both for the reasoning faculties and for the moral sense of his readers. The action of Von Bissing, referred to in our cablegrams this morning, being merely an interference with commerce or with wealth, is less revolting than much of the conduct by which the German occupation of Belgium will be remembered. It is nevertheless a typical illustration of the manner in which Von Bissing and von der Goltz before him, have dealt with this unhappy people. The Governor assumes that he can compensate the Belgian people for the robbery of their wealth and of their means of exchange by a promise to pay interest and to return the principal in two years after the end of the war. The Belgians remember that when the Germans broke their promise not to invade their country they offered another promise which was rejected both by them and by the British Government. Since the Germans entered into possession they have made other promises of a similar kind, and have broken them whenever necessity or expediency prompted them to do so. Last year they increased the illegal tribute levied on the occupied territory by some two hundred thousand pounds per month, and in return for the consent of the Belgian authorities promised that their monstrous requisitions of foodstuffs and goods should cease. The payments have been made, but the requisitions have not ceased nor have they been reduced. The last German war loan, like the present, was supported by compulsory requisitions from the Belgian taxpayers, the alternative to a subscription being the sale of all the taxpayer's immovable property. Von Bissing at the same time began the seizure of vast quantities of coal, timber, phosphates, and metals, and of at least half the output of all the textile mills. After their first outrages it was considered unworthy of mention that a German Governor should violate one or more of the Hague conventions. The significant facts about these proceedings were that they were part of a systematic scheme to crush all the independent economic life out of Belgium, and to force her people in their own interests to join the enemy. The quality of the Belgian nation was shown by the Belgian railways. They were offered extravagant wages to work for the Germans, in order that soldiers might be free for military duties. Under the direction of their own Government they refused, with the result that some 300 of them were carried off to German prisons. The bribe offered to the railway men was on an appropriate scale offered to the whole country. German pamphlets impressed on the Belgians the advantage of sharing the economic organisation of the Germans, and insisted on the folly of any longer expecting deliverance from Great Britain and France. German orators, including the Chancellor, endeavoured to conciliate one section of the people by offering to see that the Flemish-speaking people always got the better of the French. In both of their schemes the Germans failed miserably. The Flemings treated their offers as the Irish prisoners in Germany treated the offers of preferential treatment. Their leader, the head of the University of Ghent, was shut up in prison, and they gave thanks for their resolve. The whole nation has repudiated the offer of a separate peace. The inducement to do so was at one time very great, and the prospect of deliverance very small. But no nation will ever become reconciled to government by a German once it has known his presence and learned the full consequences of submission.

Poland, the other country to experience a systematic German occupation, has undergone experiences similar to those of Belgium, though varying widely in detail. In Poland the Germans found much freer scope for their organising ability, and expected a readier welcome for the material blessings of their rule. Not long after the capture of Warsaw the country was offered the services of German professors, German engineers, and German judges. In the schools Hindenburg insisted that the teachers should be under his control, and by the beginning of this year had decided to introduce the German language, even into the lowest forms. What is to happen in the new Polish kingdom has not yet been disclosed. The new kingdom may be allowed an educational system of its own, but quite certainly it will have no money to pay for it. The Germans have robbed and destroyed in Poland with even greater violence than in Belgium and France. Foodstuffs, cattle, raw material, and machinery have been carried off and money has been extorted wholesale. The new kingdom has been made to start life in such a position that it cannot compete with German industries, and cannot pay for their goods. But Poland, like Belgium, will always be a record from which other nations may learn how Germans would administer a conquered territory. Northern France is a revelation of theft and brutality and contempt for humane instincts without a parallel even in modern history. But Belgium and Poland are the more instructive because they show how the Germans behave in their alternate moods of conciliation and oppression when they are seeking to incorporate another country in their dominions.

A BAIT FOR THE COUNCIL.

The Legislative Council directly will have to consider what is best to be done with the Government's proposals in connection with the Local Government Amending Bill which has been sent up from the Assembly. These have been described as a sandwich in which the meat is poisoned. When moving the second reading last month the Minister in charge explained that the purpose of the measure was "to enact three important provisions culled from the Local Government Bill, which will be submitted in the first session of the next Parliament." A great deal may happen before the new Parliament can meet; and it may be pointed out that, as the Government realised the impossibility of dealing with its Local Government Bill in the last session of a dying Parliament, it proceeded to take from it the most controversial section which relates to the franchise and to sandwich it between one proposal to give relief to architects and builders in Sydney, who cannot erect steel and concrete structures on modern lines, and another proposal to afford country towns larger powers in providing water supplies and sewerage systems. The two reliefs mentioned are the slices of bread, and are urgently required; but the proposal to extend the franchise in local government, so that anybody on short residence shall be able to exercise it, is the meat, as its critics allege, surely poisoned. It is certainly a bait for the Council; and the hope was frankly expressed in the Legislative Assembly that the Upper House would reject the bill. Briefly the Government proposes to let our local-governing bodies become the prey of politicians on the widest possible scale—that is to say, by "the extension to municipalities and shires of the franchise on which Parliament is elected." The Minister in his second reading speech insisted, in effect, that this was common justice. He said it was illogical to maintain that an elector who was qualified to create a sovereign parliament was incompetent to elect a local-governing body such as a shire council. He did not seem to see that it was not a matter of logic, which is often mere hair splitting, but of a possible denial of justice.

The reply to the Government proposals, which are clearly intended to raise an issue with the Legislative Council if it throws out the measure, is that given by the deputy leader of the Opposition, who pointed out that local-governing bodies and parliamentary institutions are entirely different in character. "Men and women are entitled to vote for members of Parliament because we in this House," said Mr. Fuller, "represent flesh and blood against property." There is, of course, more in it than that. The essence of local government is that those who pay for improving the municipality or shire shall control expenditure, and on that point it has been argued that everybody who pays rent or board is ultimately a ratepayer. But the question is one of responsibility, and eventually of economy. The here-to-day and gone-to-morrow resident has no abiding interest in local affairs; and the most extravagant expenditure, with its inevitable increase in rates, touches him not at all. There must be some better basis of responsibility than the Parliamentary franchise if local government is not to go to pieces by its own weight. This is not a matter of property against flesh and blood, but of property as the shield and safeguard of the citizen, of whatever class or financial standing. The poor man wants accommodation at a reasonable rental, but if extravagance in the expenditure of rates is loading property values and holding up development, he will have to pay higher rents. Moreover the Labour party, now about to make appeal to the country, has shown how much it longs to lay its hands upon local government revenues through Labour aldermen and councillors. Does the country want to see a repetition in this sphere of the orgy of extravagance already enacted through the State Parliament at the hands of a Labour Government? This is the real issue with the Local Government Amending Bill in its three simple provisions culled so innocently from the larger measure which is to be brought forward in the first session of the new Parliament. The Legislative Council will do well to discuss and deal with it on its merits, and it will hardly be blamed if it treats the bill as a poisoned bait.

THE REPATRIATION FUND.

A matter of urgent importance meets us in the equipment of the Repatriation Fund for all the purposes for which it has been established. This question has to be faced whether we like it or not, and in spite of possible predilections for some other way of securing assistance for our returned soldiers. In parts of the State a feeling has been expressed for local funds, contributed to by residents, and intended for those who are identified with the districts concerned. Much can be said for this, because the pride of our people in their "ain folk" is a wonderful driving force when local machinery is set going. On the principle embodied in the Chinese proverb, that when every man sweeps in front of his own house the city will be clean, there is a fine asset in this form of individual enterprise; but unfortunately it does not go far enough. A poor district or suburb might have sent many of its men on service, for whom on their return it could do little in the way of repatriation. Another more prosperous place that had sent few men could and would do more for them than they needed, and far more than the poorer district. These inequalities would be very many and undesirable. The only way to cover the ground is to make repatriation a national business and liability; and this the Commonwealth Government is securing by legislation and regulation. No local fund or organisation detached from the central effort can be recognised or allowed. This is as much a certainty as the Constitution of the Commonwealth, because it is the law of the land. We must be willing to concentrate and co-operate for the benefit of Australians who have been abroad fighting and who will return restless, asking an opening for life's work again under new conditions. It cannot be a matter for the State, or for any district in the State, since the concern of all must be the care of each part of the Commonwealth and of every man with a claim upon that part. Can enthusiasm be roused in so large and wide an appeal? Everything depends on our view of public duty. It certainly can if we believe that relief and aid are infinitely more certain under a system of national co-operation than by mere local effort. The estimate at present is that £5,000,000 will be required to repatriate at least 100,000 men. This money can be raised by a special levy and administered by a department of the Commonwealth service; but would that meet the case in the right way? Is not the very essence of success just the personal service and self-denial to be seen in Red Cross work, and in much beside? The Repatriation Fund as now organised is not a Government institution, nor is it controlled by Civil servants. It is intended to be, and should be, the citizens' private benefaction left to the best brains and experience in the community; and if it becomes a true private enterprise it will become a huge success.

REINFORCEMENTS.

DRAFTS ON POPULATION BASIS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) stated today that the required drafts of reinforcements to maintain the five Australian divisions at the front would be obtained from the various States on a population basis. The contribution of each State would be limited to a definite number determined by its population. Each State would be liable for the number so fixed, but no more, so that when the number was forthcoming in any particular State that State would not be liable to be called upon to provide men to make up the deficiency that might exist in any other State.

PROBLEM OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH.

Under the auspices of the "Round Table Group" in Sydney an address will be given by Mr. Lionel Curtis on "The Problem of the British Commonwealth," at the King's Hall, Hunter-street, to-morrow night. The groups are small societies of students throughout the British Empire, who, for the last six or seven years, have been studying the theory and development of the constitution of the British Empire. Incidentally, they have supported the "Round Table Magazine," the purpose of which is to examine and explain the forces operating in the foreign policy of the Empire, and the domestic policies of the Dominions. Mr. Curtis was one of those who helped to frame the constitution of the South African Union. He is admittedly a high authority on the growth of self government among the peoples of the Empire.

PRISONERS OF WAR.

TRACED BY RED CROSS SOCIETY.

As a result of investigations made by the Information Bureau of the Red Cross Society the following additional missing men have been found to be prisoners of war in Germany:—

At Dulmen.—W. H. Crebert, W. J. P. Eaton, F. P. Fry, J. W. Furlong, R. W. Fairweather, G. Gigg, L. D. Hanna, S. E. McGarvey, F. Davis.

At Nuremberg: B. A. Gibbons.

MEANS OF COMMUNICATION.

The Acting Secretary for Defence (Mr. T. Trumble) has issued the following instructions for those members of the public who may wish to communicate with prisoners of war interned abroad:—

Letters, postcards, and parcels may be sent free to prisoners of war (of whatever nationality) interned abroad, and to British civilians interned in Austria-Hungary, Germany, and Turkey, if addressed with number, rank, initials, name, regiment (or other unit), British (or French, etc.), place of internment, country (Germany, Austria-Hungary, Holland, etc), c/o General Post Office, Mount Pleasant, London, E.C. For Turkey (letters or parcels), c/o International Committee of Red Cross, Geneva, Switzerland.

Only letters and post-cards may be sent by letter post. Anything else must be sent by parcels post. Friends of prisoners of war are advised to send postcards in preference to letters, as postcards are less likely to be delayed. If letters are sent, they should not exceed in length two sides of a sheet of notepaper, and should contain nothing but the sheet of notepaper. The writing should not be crossed. Letters to prisoners of war in Turkey must not contain more than four lines of writing. Correspondence should be limited to private and family news and to necessary business communications, and should not be sent too frequently. No references to the naval, military, or political situation, or to naval and military movements and organisation, are allowed. Letters containing such references will not be delivered. Parcels for prisoners of war must be very strongly packed. It is recommended that they be packed in several folds of stout paper, and a duplicate addressed sheet of paper and length of string should be enclosed inside.

If parcels are enclosed in strong wooden or metal boxes they should be packed in such a way as not to impede examination by the censor. Cardboard boxes and thin wooden boxes should not be used. The address must be clearly written in ink in at least two places of the outer cover of each parcel. Remittances to prisoners of war (except those in Turkey) may be made by means of money orders and telegraph money orders, which can be sent to the Prisoners of War Help Committee. The orders may be made payable to the committee, and the ordinary charges must be paid on them. Postal orders, Treasury notes, and bank notes should not be sent. The transmission of coin, either in letters or in parcels, is prohibited. Remittances of money not exceeding £5 for prisoners of war in Turkey may be despatched to the International Committee of the Red Cross, Geneva, Switzerland, for transmission to the Ottoman Red Cross Society at Constantinople, by whom payment to the recipients will be effected, and a receipt returned to the International Committee at Geneva. Persons seeking information and advice with regard to British prisoners of war are invited by the Prisoners of War Help Committee, 5 Southampton-street, Strand, London, W.C., to apply to it.

SOARING WAGE RATES.

"ETERNAL AGITATION."

A LARGE POSTAL DEFICIT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Arguments were heard by Mr. Justice Higgins in the Commonwealth Arbitration Court yesterday, in connection with an application made on behalf of the linesmen and mechanics in the Post and Telegraph Department for increases of wages.

Mr. E. F. Neier, general secretary of the Postal Electricians' Union, and Mr. G. A. Brown, general secretary of the Telegraphic Linesmen's Union, had at former hearing quoted his Honor's statement that on the Commonwealth Statistician's figures, the basic wage ought to be £144 for both classes of employees. His Honor thereupon asked Messrs. W. J. Skewes and J. Hesketh, representing respectively the Public Service Commissioner and the Postmaster-General, to consult their principals.

Mr. Skewes informed his Honor that no agreement had been come to. The Public Service Commissioner opposed the fixing of a basic wage for linesmen and mechanics, on the Statistician's figures, at £144 a year, as they did not show the increased cost of living, but only the decreased purchasing power of the sovereign, and they did not take into account the changes in diet regimen, which would combat the latter development. Mr. Skewes quoted the decision by the Deputy President of the Court, which he said supported the view that so long as men were being paid above the living wage, they could not expect to be paid the rates based on the abnormal conditions.

His Honor: "I am very glad to be largely with you there. I will not increase the wages of skilled workers in proportion to the increase in cost of living."

Mr. Hesketh handed in a memo. from the Postmaster-General, stating how difficult it was to administer his department, owing to the eternal agitation and discontent engendered by variations in the wages rates. The amount involved immediately in his Honor's anticipated adoption of Mr. Knibbs's figures regarding linesmen and mechanics was £52,446; and when what was involved in other awards was added in the whole service the total might easily soar to between £250,000 and £500,000 yearly; while the present inevitable departmental deficiency was about £500,000. The Court, he thought, should lay down some rule whereby adjustments should be made in wages based on the cost of living periodically by some automatic method, which would relieve the Minister from the task; otherwise adjustments should be made according to what the rise or fall in the cost of living warranted.

Argument was not concluded, and the hearing was adjourned sine die.

FEDERAL CAPITAL.

INQUIRY IN SYDNEY.

COLONEL MILLER'S EVIDENCE.

Yesterday Mr. Wilfred Blacket, K.C., the Royal Commissioner who is investigating matters in connection with the Department of Home Affairs, continued the inquiry in the Commonwealth Rooms, Pomeroy House, York-street. Mr. W. Webster (Postmaster-General), Colonel Percy Owen (Director-General Commonwealth Public Works), Colonel David Miller, and Mr. W. B. Griffin (Director of Design and Construction at the Federal Capital), were present.

Colonel David Miller, in reply to the Royal Commissioner, said that his letter to the Acting Secretary of the Department of Home Affairs in 1914 might have been taken as a refusal to give information to Mr. Griffin unless directed to do so by the Minister. As administrator he (witness) claimed the right to refuse to discuss certain matters with anyone save the Minister. He never communicated direct with Mr. Griffin. He did not think it was necessary to do so. In his opinion the proposed withdrawal of the plan of the Federal city was purely a matter of administration. Mr. Griffin's technical knowledge and experience were not questioned. In all recommendations he (witness) was always guided by the advice of the Director-General of Public Works and the responsible officers of the department. He did not regard Mr. Griffin as an officer of the department. No slur or reflection on Mr. Griffin was intended when he wrote to the Minister (Mr. Kelly) in 1914 about the contract which was drawn up in 1913. The general design had not been placed before the Minister at that time. He was anxious that Mr. Griffin should complete his contract with the Government, and said so in the communication to the Minister. The statement about delay was also made in a communication to Mr. Kelly's successor. He was not aware that there had been any progress in the works at Canberra since the completed plan was furnished by Mr. Griffin in 1915. Mr. Griffin, who was responsible to the Minister, had a staff working under him in Melbourne.

It was not true, Colonel Miller said, that any departmental information had been withheld from Mr. Griffin. When Mr. Archibald succeeded Mr. Kelly as Minister the procedure in regard to Canberra was fully explained to him. Before that witness had opposed the request of Mr. Griffin to have surveyors placed under him. His reason for doing so was because he did not think a special survey staff was necessary. Mr. Scribner, the chief surveyor, had protested against surveys being carried out under Mr. Griffin's direction. Mr. Scribner was ready and willing to carry out any surveys which were required by Mr. Griffin. Mr. Kelly, as Minister, and issued instructions that departmental surveyors were to be placed at the disposal of Mr. Griffin. This was not done.

The sitting closed at 4.30. The Royal Commissioner intimated that there would be another sitting in Sydney after the taking of evidence at Canberra.

This morning the Royal Commissioner will leave for Canberra. The first sitting there will be on Saturday next.

DEATH OF MR. GRESLEY LUKIN

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

Mr. Gresley Lukin, editor of the Wellington "Evening Post," died this morning.

[Mr. Lukin was a Tasmanian native, born in 1840, and began life in the island State as an apprentice to an engineering firm, but as the work did not suit his temperament. When 20 years of age he transferred himself to the mainland and going north settled in the Lands Office of Queensland. He rose to the chief position there and, though not actually a politician, helped materially to draft the land legislation of his time. He was one of the foremost figures in the public life of Brisbane 30 years ago. He founded the Johnsonian club there, was one of the founders of the Queensland Agricultural and Pastoral Association, and took a prominent part in the establishment of the Australian Natives' Association. His literary proclivities threw him into journalism, which had always attracted him, and he became part proprietor and editor of the Brisbane "Courier" and its offshoots. Then followed his connection with "The Boomerang," which, although not a financial success, was distinguished for the literary ability with which it was conducted. In time he gravitated to Sydney and became managing director of the old "Globe" and "Sunday Times" Company. When the papers were separated he remained with the "Globe" till it passed out of existence. About 22 or 23 years ago he made his home in New Zealand, partly for health reasons, and there became associated with the Wellington "Evening Post." He did excellent work in the Parliamentary press gallery for some time until, on the death of Mr. E. T. Gillon, in 1896, he succeeded to the editorship of the paper. He filled that chair with conspicuous ability and was always in the vanguard in promoting and encouraging the democratising influences that have been such a feature in the public affairs both of New Zealand and Australia. He was an influential advocate of the new national system of defence and of the wider Imperialism. He was a man of high purpose and of broad outlook, much loved, honoured, and respected by all who had the privilege of knowing him. Mr. Lukin was one of the New Zealand representatives to the Imperial Press Conference in 1910, but ill-health prevented his enjoyment of the trip. He had been in ill-health for some time. A lift accident which befel him recently hastened the end.]

D.C.M.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

Corporal Frederick Godfrey, of Kenmore, has received the D.C.M. All the men on his gun were disabled but himself, and he continued to work the gun under heavy fire.

PROGRESSIVES.

TO WATCH COUNTRY INTERESTS.

For the first time in the political history of New South Wales there are to be three distinct parties before the people at the next general elections without the [illegible] of triangular, vote-splitting contests. In itself, this is an achievement in political organisation of no mean merit. Furthermore, it indicates, with somewhat unique clearness, how the revulsion of feeling against the party which has had control of the Treasury benches of the State for the past six years is growing, and finding concrete expression in the consolidation forces against the Holman Government. The leaders of the two opposing parties, which have thus so effectively consolidated their opposition, are to be congratulated upon their achievement, recognising that the beginning of all the reforms which the past six years have shown to be necessary is the displacement of the Holman Government. Messrs. Wade and Beeby have arrived, after the most serious deliberation, at a working agreement which makes the prospect of a defeat of the always-united Socialistic forces brighter than it has ever been before.

Yet it is absurd for those who desire to belittle the combination to say that there is no difference between one and the other. It would be just as reasonable to say that, because the two great parties in England have joined hands in an hour of national crisis to fight the common enemy of both, there is no difference between them. Already an effort has been made to apply the "tarred with the one brush" argument against the [illegible] for campaign purposes of the Liberal and Progressive organisations. This argument, indeed, is likely to be abandoned because it will be found to recoil against those who use it in support of the Holman Government's claim to a renewal of the confidence of the people. If it can be used with any effect against two such distinct political entities as the Liberal and Progressive organisations, with how much greater force might it not be used against the Holman Government at such a time as this, when they find themselves at complete loggerheads with the outside, irresponsible P.L.L. executive, which governs the Government of this country? And to say of the Holman Government and its supporters, at this time, that it is tarred with the same brush as the P.L.L. executive is apparently to utter the grossest slander against either the one or the other, or, perhaps, both.

That there is need for a distinct political entity, charged primarily with the duty of watching essentially country interests, has now been generally admitted. The fact that the Progressive Party has arrived at a working compact with the Liberals is nothing more nor less than astute political campaigning. There is no doubt that for a quarter of a century country interests have been sadly neglected, because of the preponderance of representatives in Parliament, who had no adequate conception of the needs of the people who live away from the large centres of population. Past experiences have proved that to raise the city versus country cry in an effort to solve the problem is to offer a cure that is as bad or worse than the disease. There is no need to raise any such issue. In a well-balanced Parliament, in a community governed on sound lines, there can be no such issue really. The whole community is interdependent. Without the primary producer the lot of the city dweller would be a sorry one indeed. But by a parity of reasoning it becomes plain that big cities, large [illegible] and central facilities for the thousand and one commercial transactions on which the stability of the whole community depends, are just as much a necessary in any modern well-governed State. But there are a variety of ways in which the neglect of one or other may be reflected in lost trade, irritating anomalies, or, worse still, a discontented community. So it becomes of the first importance that these matters should be reconciled, and they can only be reconciled, from a legislative point of view, in one way. There must be a fusion of interests and a consolidation of forces to bring about the one desired end—a sound legislative programme, and a return to the eminently desirable idea of a Government directly and absolutely responsible to the people and to the people alone.

This is what Mr. Wade and Mr. Beeby have done, and it is because of that fact that the new Progressive party is welcomed into the political arena of the State. It was the lack of just such a combination which resulted in the gradual conquest by socialistic politicians of a number of country constituencies which would appear to have nothing to gain and everything to lose by any further extension of the policy of socialistic political experiments. The task of bringing these constituencies back to a recognition of their own particular needs and an adherence to sound principles of responsible government has been entrusted to Mr. Beeby and the candidates of the new Progressive party. They start out with a great deal in their favour. They have a definite platform to advocate, and they have a platform, moreover, which has been specially designed for the purpose of remedying the ills from which country constituencies have long suffered—just because no means had been established through which they might speak in the legislature of this country. Take, for instance, the following planks in the Progressive platform:—

"The passing of legislation that is in the interests and welfare of the community as a whole." Too long has this country suffered from an epidemic of class legislation. The powers that be, and that it is desired to overthrow, candidly admit, as a matter of fact, that they were elevated to power to initiate legislation of a distinctly class nature. But that regime has had a long enough run. The primary producer is suffering heavily to-day because that idea has been faithfully and vigorously carried out.

"Full encouragement of private enterprise to developmental and general public utilities." This is, perhaps, a drastic proposal, which would never have been necessary to [illegible] the forefront of a new political programme but for the astounding abuses which have sprung up under a system which refuses to concede any right at all to private enterprise in any of these things.

"The complete separation of the finances of all State enterprises from general revenue; the encouragement of co-operation as against class warfare; the removal from industrial and social legislation of all provisions which lessen efficiency or restrict output." All these are aimed at, subverting the infamous [illegible] that iniquitous principle which has been insidiously introduced into so many spheres of to-day, public and private alike—the policy of "go slow." The tyro in political economy can see that the logical outcome of "go slow" is complete stagnation. Should it ever become necessary—and there is little fear that it will—for the primary producer, by himself going slow and refusing to produce, to demonstrate the extreme fallacy of such a doctrine, it could be done in the course of a very few months. But that way lies disaster. That would be the end of all government, the end of all order, the end of everything for which a community of enlightened human beings stands for. It is far better to cure the disease by wiping it out than by allowing it to spread until it exhausts its opportunities for evil.

And then there are a series of new proposals which affect in the most direct manner possible the primary producers. But of these there is no need to speak. The [illegible] of first importance is to restore [illegible] wholesome government, which shall take in its purview the community as a whole. That will alter our entire political outlook; it will enable us to adjust our legislative activities so that the natural resources of the country, primary and secondary, will be allowed to develop along natural channels. But not until then, will there be any legitimate hope for permanent prosperity. All other methods of government [illegible] together false appearance of prosperity, based upon unstable finance and [illegible] administration, and such measures [illegible] disastrous effect upon the country [illegible] them for any length of time.

It is for the promulgation of these [illegible] that Mr. Beeby and his new party [illegible] the country constituencies of New South Wales to-day. Whilst the Liberal party [illegible] be depended upon to hold the fort in [illegible] number of populous constituencies, [illegible] and country, Mr. Beeby's party [illegible] charged with the task of wresting [illegible] important country seats from the [illegible] Government party. It is by no means a [illegible] task, and for that the new party is [illegible] to the greatest respect. But the [illegible] soundness of the new policy [illegible] to make its influence felt, [illegible] the display of failure of the [illegible] by the present Government, [illegible] to all.

BULGARIANS COUNTERED

HALICZ

THE KEY TO LEMBERG

Beyond the repulse of further determined counter-attacks there have been no new developments on the Somme.

It is unofficially reported that the Russians, in co-operation with warships, are advancing down the Black Sea coast of Dobrudja; and that they have forced the evacuation of Dobric by the Bulgarians and are threatening Varna.

The Roumanians are advancing on Hermannstadt, and the enemy is falling back on the River Maros.

The Roumanians have also seized a town towards Bistritza, towards which point the Russians from Bukovina are also advancing.

Military critics expect the Russians soon to capture Halicz, which at present protects Lemberg and the flank of the Austro-Germans in Galicia.

An Italian super-Dreadnought was blown up in harbour on August 2. Enemy agents are suspected.

REPORTS FROM SOMME.

GERMANS ATTACK GINCHY.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

In his final report on Monday night Sir Douglas Haig stated:—The enemy's counter-attacks about Ginchy led to fierce hand-to-hand fighting. Upwards of 200 prisoners were taken.

Our artillery and trench mortars quickly silenced an attempted trench-mortar bombardment of trenches north of the Bluff.

Sir Douglas Haig, in his noon report on Monday, says: We repulsed two more counter-attacks at Ginchy, and drove off several small detachments of infantry at Mouquet Farm and Pozieres.

We entered the German trenches at several places between Neuville St. Vaast and the La Bassee Canal, taking some prisoners.

FRENCH AIR RAIDS.

A French communique states: The Germans made several night attacks at various points on our new front. Our artillery and machine guns inflicted severe losses.

We stopped five attacks, accompanied by liquid flame jets, between Berny and to the south of Chaulnes.

Ten of our aeroplanes dropped 60 bombs successfully on important military depots south of Bruges.

Our air squadron dropped 164 bombs on munition stores. Violent explosions were heard.

Others dropped 20 bombs on barracks and the aerodrome at Sarrebourg, with important results.

FRENCH REPEL ATTACKS.

A communique issued in Paris on Monday night stated:—The only feature today was a rather violent artillery struggle on the Berny, Vermandovillers, and Chaulnes sectors.

GERMAN CLAIMS.

A German communique states:—We repulsed vigorous English attacks on the Pozieres-Le Sars high road and the Ginchy-Combles sector. Fighting continues for the possession of Ginchy. We lost advanced trenches near Longueval and Leuze Wood.

The French attack at Belloy and Vermandovillers failed. We recaptured a few houses at Berny.

VERDUN.

AN IMPERISHABLE MEMORY.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE'S HOMAGE.

PARIS, Sept. 12.

Mr. Lloyd George (Minister for War) was the guest at an historic dinner at the invitation of General Dubois and officers of the Verdun garrison, which was held in a subterranean chamber in the centre of the citadel. The officers wore their muddy uniforms, and the fare was of the simplest character.

Mr. Lloyd George, whose voice was husky with emotion, said: Verdun will ever evoke an imperishable memory. No feat of arms in French history bears better witness to the qualities of the French army and people. This bravery and devotion of France, strengthened by a sangfroid and tenacity quite equal to British phlegm, have not only saved France, but the cause of the whole of humanity. Britain bows before the glorious sacrifice of the Verdun garrison.

Mr. Lloyd George concluded by lifting his glass, "To France, and to the heroes who have fallen at Verdun."

"JUST BEGINNING."

BRITISH PREPARATIONS.

The correspondent of the "New York World" at British headquarters, having visited a 100-mile front, cables:—

The battle of the Somme is just beginning. I have seen nothing so complete as the British offensive since the German invasion of Belgium. England is prepared to fight on the Somme, not only in summer, but all the winter. The Germans have been forced out of their deep shelters, and are now occupying shallower trenches and mine craters. Hence it is more expensive for them to hold their line.

I am writing in an underground hotel, 50 feet deep, built near Mametz Wood by the Germans. It was far behind the front German line when the Somme offensive began; now it is so far in the rear of the British troops that I reached it without being shelled.

The Germans are wonderful on the defensive, but the British are breaking them down. The British have a system of continuous mines, each containing 75 tons of explosive, which blow the new German trenches to bits. One can see detached legs and arms, and bodies without limbs, in the track of these mines.

The Allies have such a vast army here that a successful German offensive is impossible. Recently, the British captured one hundred yards of trench without losing a man, which is unique in trench warfare. The Germans are receiving nothing worse than the French endured at Verdun, yet they are steadily losing ground.

CAPTURE OF GINCHY.

GALLANTRY OF IRISH.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, describing the capture of Ginchy by the Irish Brigade on Saturday, says: The attack began at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The Irish charged, cheering and shouting, "On Munsters, on Dublins." They rushed forward in four waves in open order at 50 yards' intervals. The left flank reached the first halting-place in the village, which was 600 yards' distance, in eight minutes—almost a record; but the right flank was checked by three machine guns well placed. Many fell while the German marksmen sniped the officers. It was a serious situation unless the machine-gunners could be killed.

The troops inside the right flank executed a brilliant piece of tactics. They swung round, and attacked the machine-guns from the west and north by an encircling movement. The German gun-teams were obliged to bolt a distance of 300 yards with their weapons to other trenches, where they resumed firing until they were knocked out by the Irish trench-mortars. The right wing then advanced and joined up with the left. Both advanced through the village centre, in which, amidst dug-outs and tunnels, stood an old farm, in which again there were machine-guns. The Irish brought up their mortars, and a brief storm of high explosives silenced the machine-guns.

All kinds of places in the northern half of the village hid snipers and riflemen, especially tunnelled and concreted chambers equipped with loopholes on the ground level. The reckless Irish swept over the place searching out their enemies. The grimmest hand-to-hand fighting occurred in the shell craters and dugouts. The Bavarian defenders, who had newly arrived in the firing-line, were brave and determined, and fought savagely with bombs, rifles, and even bayonets. The whole thing was over quickly. The Dublins, who led the charge, were soon through the village and beyond, but there was one menace which might have led to disaster but for quick wit and fighting genius.

The Irish Brigade's astounding success in capturing the enemy front of 900 yards to a depth of nearly a mile left them with an exposed flank north-west of the village. A young sapper officer quickly realised the situation, and took command of a body of men and dug defensive works on the flank. He organised strong posts against a counter-attack. The brigade's achievement was splendid, remembering that they had no supporting troops on either flank. The men who were ordered to remain in the village almost wept with rage.

The following is a practical instance of the Irish fighting spirit. Three servants to the brigade staff temporarily deserted. One left a note on his master's table, saying: "As I could not be in Guillemont, I am going to Ginchy so please excuse."

SEEKING SLACKERS.

MANY RAIDS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

In pursuance of a policy of capturing slackers, the military authorities raided the Marylebone Station. As men, apparently of military age, passed the barrier, they were taken to a roped-off space, where three officers inspected their registration cards, and other papers. Many were detained for two and a half hours.

Out of 130 arrests, only one could not offer a proper explanation. Forty-two were arrested at a football match, at Reading, but all were liberated. There were eighty arrests at a boxing tournament at Woolwich, and one slacker was discovered here.

BELGIUM'S GOLD.

SEIZED BY GERMANY.

CHARACTERISTIC TEUTON TRICK.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

It is reported from Amsterdam that Germany has seized £30,000,000 from the coffers of the Belgian National Bank.

Germany offers to pay 5 per cent. interest on the sum, and to repay it two years after the close of the war.

The £30,000,000 has been confiscated by General von Bissing, the German governor of Brussels, and it represents the amount put into circulation by Belgium in consequence of the lifting of the moratorium. Von Bissing decided on this move six months ago, apparently with the express purpose of annexing the proceeds for war purposes. It is noteworthy that this brigandage coincides with the unsuccessful issue of the German war loan.

Two directors of the National Bank of Belgium, who refused to sanction the robbery, have been deported to Germany.

ROLL OF HONOUR.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

Lieutenant H. W. Thomas, a Cambridge Rugby Blue, and a Welsh International; and Captain Wallace Baddon, of the Machine Gun Corps, and formerly of the Australian Light Horse, have been killed in France.

RUSSIA AND BALKANS

PROBABLE PLANS.

ROUMANIAN CO-OPERATION.

GREAT STRUGGLE FOR HALICZ.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

A Petrograd message says that experts are pointing out that recent Russian communiques are remarkable for what they leave unsaid. The most important news is expected daily, but no word of it will be said until success crowns the effort.

A mystery concerns the stern battle raging at Halicz, where the Germans are making a desperate effort to secure the retreat of an army which once numbered over 150,000. The German General Staff designed it to cut General Brussiloff's centre. General Brussiloff countered the scheme, and now it is a question whether it has any means of escape.

General Brussiloff's armies, on a 300-mile front, continue to advance with a methodical stubbornness that indicates a clear plan and the perfected organisation of the Russian army. As a fighting machine it is far superior to what it was at the beginning of the war, and in spite of heavy losses in first-line troops.

The whole of Russia's European front is strongly manned, and the training camps throughout the country are full.

BULGARIA'S FATE.

Russia's goal is to maintain the pressure on Austria and assist Roumania and the Allies at Salonica to crush Bulgaria and Turkey, thus freeing the Allies for a final and concentrated attack on Germany. It is hoped that the first stage of this plan will be accomplished this year.

Meanwhile General Letchitsky's armies are pushing on in the wooded Carpathians, southward of Bukovina, in the direction of Bistritza, whither the Roumanians are also advancing.

DOBRUDJA OPERATIONS.

The "Daily Chronicle" says that the Bulgarians, with great secrecy, effected a concentration, the importance of which must not be overrated, between Rustchuk and Shumla (facing Roumania's Dobrudja frontier), thus imitating the manoeuvre whereby they surprised the Turks at Kirk Kilisse, in the Balkans War. These Bulgarians unexpectedly attacked the Roumanian advance-guard at Tutrakan, and scored a local success. The Russians in Dobrudja can be trusted to right matters, however. The regions around the rivers Maros and Bistritza, in Transylvania, will probably prove more important.

The German defence of Halicz is wavering. The Germans and Turks are vainly striving to keep off the line of batteries which are enveloping Halicz in a cloud of destruction and death. The enemy is able to use only one of the many railway lines linking up Halicz. When Halicz falls, only the Mikolajow position will remain to dispute the Russian advance on Lemberg.

The Roumanian mobilisation is now completed.

HALICZ BATTLE.

ENEMY REPORTS.

A German communique states:—General von Bothmer cleverly frustrated a Russian attempt to take Halicz, inflicting heavy losses.

An Austrian communique states:—The enemy's fierce attacks on the Lower Stokhod broke down under our artillery curtain of fire.

SALONICA.

BULGARS BOMBARDED.

BRITISH ADVANCE OVER STRUMA.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

It is officially announced that strong British detachments have crossed the Struma, and engaged the enemy.

The British crossing of the Struma occurred at Nekori and several places above Tahinos Lake. There was considerable opposition. We expelled the enemy from Ororman, Gudeli, and Nevolien. Strong counter-attacks were repulsed with loss. The number of prisoners captured has not yet been ascertained.

A later French communique states: English troops on the Struma front crossed the Orliak River under enemy fire, and attacked two villages on the left bank, which the enemy is desperately defending.

Our artillery is bombarding the enemy positions from the Vardar to Lake Doiran.

Bulgar advance posts have further withdrawn upon the Servian front.

GREEK PROBLEM.

OBSCURE POLITICS.

MYSTERIOUS CABINET CRISIS.

A message from Athens says that the immediate cause of the Cabinet crisis in connection with which the resignation of the Premier, M. Zaimis, is reported, is not known.

It is understood that M. Zaimis admitted that the Allies are fully entitled to send their fleet to Piraeus, in view of the German and Bulgarian advance on Kavala. M. Zaimis takes almost as strong a view as does M. Venizelos regarding the necessity of Greece co-operating with the Allies.

The action of rowdies in making a hostile demonstration outside the French Legation has no real effect on the problem. The incident is already closed by the Government's acceptance of the Allies' demands.

QUESTION OF CO-OPERATION.

The Athens correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" says the Allies are averse to arranging a discussion regarding conditions or terms in order to secure Greece's co-operation.

The Greek Minister in Paris has been informed that if Greece seeks to co-operate she must waive questions concerning conditions and compensations.

It is understood that the Allies are willing to do their utmost to furnish military equipment in the event of Greece joining in.

ANZAC BUFFET REOPENED.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

The Anzac Buffet has been reopened in premises in Victoria-street. Five-hundred wounded men were entertained on the first day.

ROUMANIAN BATTLES

DOBRUDJA.

RUSSIA'S ARMIES.

ADVANCING ALONG COAST.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

A Rome wireless states: The Bulgarian offensive in the Dobrudja has been arrested. The Russian fleet's formidable bombardment of Balchik (north of Varna) crushed the Bulgarian right, causing the evacuation of Dobric, in New Dobrudja.

The Bulgarians are reported to be evacuating Varna in consequence of the Russian advance along the coast cutting the Varna-Dobrudja railway. This, coupled with the fleet's bombardment, took Varna between two fires.

ADVANCE ON HERMANNSTADT.

The Roumanians in Southern Transylvania are advancing towards Hermannstadt, and occupying the villages. The Austro-Hungarian forces are retreating on the Maros River.

SILISTRIA FORTS FALL.

A Rome message states: Telegrams from Bucharest say that the enemy attacked Silistria (an important town on the Danube, in Dobrudja) with numerous 12-inch and 16½-inch guns, and in a few hours destroyed the forts. The garrison retired in good order.

IN TRANSYLVANIA.

A Bucharest communique says:—Vigorous fighting continues on the north-western and northern fronts in Transylvania. We captured Chikszereda (south-east of Bistritza and west of Toplitza), and continue the pursuit of the enemy westward. The enemy further south is bombarding Gyergyo.

Our aeroplanes bombarded the Rustchuk positions.

TUTRAKAN.

A Bucharest message says that M. Take Jonescu, commenting on the battles in New Dobrudja and at Tutrakan, said: They will remain a painful wound, but if we seek the origin of our mistakes and concentrate in remedying them Tutrakan will become a memory imposing upon us the sacred duty of avenging our heroes' blood and rendering friendly relations with Bulgaria impossible.

ENEMY WITHDRAWAL.

An Austrian communique says: Our front in Transylvania has been somewhat withdrawn west of the Gyergyo Valley and Csik.

THE ITALIANS.

ADVANCE IN TRENTINO.

METHODICAL PROGRESS.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

An Italian communique states:—Between Vallarsa and the head of the Posina Valley we captured a strong entrenchment at the bottom of Leno Valley, between Mounts [illegible] and Corno, taking the trenches which were still left in the enemy's possession after the fighting on the 7th.

We also progressed north of Mount Pasubio and on the northern slopes of Corno-del-Coston, in Upper Posina.

ENEMY REPORTS.

An Austrian communique states:—The enemy penetrated our trenches at two points on Mount Pasubio, but were driven out, and some prisoners were taken.

GENERAL FIASCHI.

SYDNEY SURGEON JOINS ITALY'S ARMY.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

Colonel Fiaschi, of Sydney, has joined the Italian Army Medical Corps, with the rank of general.

SURGEON AND SOLDIER.

A DISTINGUISHED CAREER.

The appointment of Colonel Thomas Henry Fiaschi, D.S.O., V.D., as a General in the Italian Army Medical Corps will give the greatest satisfaction to his numerous friends in Sydney, particularly in military and medical circles. Sixty-three years of age—he was born in Florence in 1853—he has been a prominent citizen of Sydney for many years, and is known as one of our leading surgeons; and his military experience goes back to 1891, when he joined the New South Wales Army Medical Corps as a captain, being attached as medical officer to the New South Wales Lancers.

The son of Professor L. Fiaschi, he was educated at Pisa and Florence Universities, and took the degrees of M.D. and Ch.D. He arrived in Australia at the age of 22, and practised at Windsor for some years. In 1883 he settled in Sydney. He is an honorary consulting surgeon to the Sydney Hospital and examiner in clinical surgery at Sydney University, and since 1902 has been honorary surgeon to the Governor-General.

This is not the first time he has served in the Italian army. He served with it in Abyssinia in 1896, marching with the army as far as Kassala; and for his special services during that campaign he received from King Humbert the Cross of Cavaliere del SS. Maurizio e Lazzaro. In 1899-1900 he served with the British army in South Africa, in command of the New South Wales No. 1 Field Hospital, and was senior medical officer to General Hutton's Brigade. He was mentioned in despatches by the late Lord Roberts for signal services at Paardeburg, and received the D.S.O. On returning to Sydney he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel in the Army Medical Corps. In 1911 he was raised to the rank of Colonel, being then Principal Medical Officer of the Second (New South Wales) Military District.

When the present war broke out Dr. Fiaschi once more offered his services, and proceeded to England as Commanding Officer of No. 3 Australian General Hospital. Among those who went at the same time were Dr. Morton, Dr. Clarence Read, Dr. Sydney Jameson, of Sydney; Dr. Stawell and Dr. Kent Hughes, of Melbourne; Dr. Lockhart Gibson, of Brisbane; Dr. Cudmore, of Adelaide; and Dr. Trethowan, of Western Australia. In London they were joined by Sir Alexander MacCormick and Dr. Herschal Harris, of Sydney; and also by Professor G. J. Martin, head of the Lister Institute. The hospital was then established on the island of Lemnos, and it remained there until the evacuation of Gallipoli. About two months before the evacuation Dr. Fiaschi had a bad attack of peripheral neuritis, and he was invalided to Wandsworth Hospital, where he remained for about three months. Recently his discharge from the A.A.M.C. was gazetted, and he proceeded to Italy to join his wife and child, who have been staying with his eldest married daughter. Another married daughter, Mrs. Tennant, resides in England. General Fiaschi has been twice married, his first wife having died a few years ago.

Dr Piero Fiaschi, a son of General Fiaschi, is also on active service. He was in Gallipoli for some time, and did very good work as officer in charge of a dressing station. He is now serving in France.

It may be added that General Fiaschi is an enthusiast in matters of agriculture, and as proprietor of the Tizzana Vineyard he has done much to advance viticulture in Australia.

ITALIAN NAVAL LOSS

SUPER-DREADNOUGHT.

EXPLOSION IN HARBOUR.

LONDON, Sept. 12.

An official statement issued in Rome reports the sinking of the Dreadnought Leonardo da Vinci on August 2.

A fire broke out near some munitions. The ship was flooded, but an explosion caused her to sink in 40ft of water.

A committee was appointed to inquire into the best means of raising the vessel and the possibility of internal foul play. The inquiry disproved any theory of an enemy having acted from outside the ship.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Rome correspondent says:—The catastrophe on the Italian battleship Leonardo da Vinci, 22,340 tons, took place in Taranto Harbour at midnight. The city was suddenly illuminated with colossal tongues of flame from the sea. The population rushed into the streets in an indescribable panic.

Immediately a series of terrific explosions shook the houses to their foundations. The awe-stricken spectators saw a huge fire raging in one of the magazines in the centre of a super-Dreadnought in the harbour. Tons of metal and debris were hurled skywards by an explosion.

The first to explode was a quantity of shells which were lying on deck for the morning's gun practice. These tore a hole forty feet square right through the side of the monster battleship.

Hoping to avert a more dire disaster, the commander, the Marquis Picenardi, ordered the bulkheads to be opened, and the ship scuttled.

Twenty-one officers and 227 of the crew sacrificed their lives obeying the order.

Thirteen officers and 927 men landed, torpedo-boats bringing off many wounded. The rest swam ashore, including the Marquis Picenardi, who succumbed to injuries later. Hundreds of searchlights on other warships anchored in the harbour converged on the Leonardo da Vinci, which presented a magnificent spectacle as she slowly rose by the stern, snapping the anchor chains one after another until she sank.

As there is only 42ft of water, it is hoped the vessel may be salved by constructing a dry dock around her. In any case, 13 12-inch and 38 smaller guns can be saved.

The authorities fear that the catastrophe is connected with a series of daring outrages perpetrated by German spies lately, which have resulted in the destruction of many ships lying in port, the burning of harbour stores, and the destruction of vast tracts of forests in southern Italy.

[The super-Dreadnought Leonardo da Vinci, 22,340 tons, was completed in 1914. She carried 13 12-inch and 18 4.7-inch guns, in addition to smaller batteries, and her speed was 23 knots. At the outbreak of war she was one of Italy's five largest battleships. Italy is believed to have completed, during the past two years, at least three 28,000 tons super-Dreadnoughts.]

ASIA MINOR.

FIERCE BATTLES CONTINUE.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

A Petrograd communique states: Fierce battles have been continued at Ognot, in Armenia. We captured 240 Turks. We are pursuing the enemy in the region of Sakkiz, in Persia, after occupying the town of Bana.

BRITISH BLACK LIST.

SOUTH AMERICAN PROTEST.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 11.

A demonstration was held yesterday in the Plaza Congress against the British black list. Ten political and patriotic organisations participated.

Prominent politicians and professional men urged neutrals to resist the British proposal.

THE REFERENDUM.

AUSTRALIANS IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

Anglo-Australians, who recently arrived in England on war work, are inquiring whether they will be granted the absent voters' privilege for the conscription referendum.

They point out that the machinery for recording the votes of soldiers can be easily extended to include Australian civilian voters temporarily in England.

MERCHANT SHIPPING.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

The steamer Ruahine (from Wellington) has arrived at London.

The four-masted schooners Spokane and Gamble have left for Sydney.

RETURNED SOLDIERS.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

Delegates representing the Returned Soldiers' Associations of Australasia opened its first congress yesterday. Delegates were present from every State, and it is expected that the proceedings, which are taking place in camera, will last a week. It was decided that certain information should be made available for publication simultaneously in all the States. Colonel G. H. Dean (South Australia) has been elected president of the congress. It is understood that the main purpose of the congress is to amalgamate the associations of the several States into a combined organisation to be known as the Returned Soldiers and Sailors' Imperial League of Australia.

UNREST IN CHINA.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

According to information gleaned on the steamer St. Albans, which arrived from the East with a large number of passengers, and resumed the voyage to southern ports yesterday, there is still a great deal of unrest in China. On August 1 and 2 violent fighting took place with Revolutionists outside Canton. Fires broke out in various places. The attackers were defeated.

A few days earlier disturbances occurred in Wuchang and Hankow. The rioters started a fire, which entailed the loss of some millions of taels. Part of the newer Chinese city, bordering on the German concession, from which it is separated by Friedrich-strasse, was burned out.

SOLDIERS AND POLITICS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Instructions have been issued that all members of the Australian Imperial Force in Australia, and those who may be enlisted in the Citizen Forces under Part IV of the Defence Act, are to be given permission to wear plain clothes when on leave, in order that they may, if they so desire, take part in political meetings or the referendum campaign. When in or adjacent to camps or training depots, however, whether in plain clothes or uniform, soldiers are not to be permitted to discuss publicly political matters, nor are leaflets or pamphlets of a political nature allowed to be distributed. Speeches and addresses of a political nature, likewise, are forbidden in military establishments.

WAR NOTES.

POSITION IN DOBRUDJA.

While the Roumanians are making further progress into Transylvania, there are signs that the enemy's advance into Dobrudja, which is intended as a counter-stroke, is likely to be stopped before long. There now appears to be no reason to doubt the German claim to the capture of Silistria. The Bucharest message confirming this Roumanian loss lays stress upon the statement that the garrison retired in good order. In view of the fact that the question of losses sustained at Tutrakan has never been definitely cleared up, there seems to be every reason to believe that the Roumanian reverse there was, as M. Take Jonescu describes it, "a painful wound." Although Russia is observing that same strict official silence regarding Dobrudja, as that which the Petrograd military experts refer to in their comments regarding the Halicz fighting, there appears to be sufficient ground for believing that the Russians are holding the Bulgarians on the latter's right near the Black Sea coast. In all probability the original Russian plan was to move her greatest forces against this flank, it being surmised that Silistria and Tutrakan would hold out and prevent an enemy advance along the Danube. This surmise having proved incorrect, it still remained to the advantage of the Russians to press back the enemy along the coast and thus prevent him from taking advantage of his successes further west. If the Rome message, announcing the Bulgarian evacuation of Dobrie and the crushing of the Bulgarian right is correct the enemy's invasion of Dobrudja is likely to be seriously held up.

NEW MOVE ON THE STRUMA FRONT.

After a period of silence and apparent inactivity in Macedonia we are informed this morning that strong British detachments have crossed the Struma River, and have occupied villages on the opposite bank. It would be interesting to hear whether this move is the beginning of a serious advance against the Bulgarians on the left bank of the river, or whether it is only intended as a kind of reconnaissance in force in order to ascertain the strength of the enemy there. When the Allied forces moved northward from Salonica recently, and threatened an advance on Bulgaria and Servia, the Bulgarians threw considerable forces down through Rupel Defile into the level country on the eastern side of the Struma. Other Bulgarian forces crossed the Mesta River, away to the east, and entered Greek Macedonia east of Kavala. Very little has been heard of these forces, but although many of them are no doubt still near Kavala, some apparently moved on westward in order to junction with the troops which had come down from the north through Rupel Defile. This concentration of enemy forces on General Sarrail's right flank was apparently intended to serve as a serious threat to the Allied communications. Besides obtaining control of most of the Salonica-Seres railway east of the Struma, the enemy threatened to effect a crossing of that river between Lakes Butkova and Tahinos. This suggested that, had General Sarrail continued to advance northward along the valley of the Vardar River, the Bulgarians, pushing westward along the Seres-Salonica railway in the north, and along the main road leading across the Struma from Seres to Salonica in the south, would have threatened the Allied communications with Salonica at two points.

POSSIBLE OBJECTIVES.

Greece raised no serious objection to this invasion of her territory by her old enemy, and the Allies made it clear that their interests in Macedonia did not extend beyond the western bank of the Struma. General Sarrail apparently took all necessary precautions to protect his right flank by moving troops along the Struma, and especially towards the point where the Seres-Salonica road crosses the river just above the spot where the Orliak flows into the larger stream. But, if the Allies have no interest in the territory east of the Struma, why have they now moved across the river in that direction? It is possible that the answer to this question will have some connection with the fighting away to the north in Dobrudja. Now that the Russians are coming into touch with the enemy along the Dobrudja front, it is highly probable that the time is ripe for General Sarrail to co-operate by bringing pressure to bear from the south. The Vardar Valley, along which runs the Salonica-Uskub railway, is one of the main passageways into the heart of Servia, and when the Allies advance this will probably be their main route. Before commencing any such move, however, General Sarrail would be desirous of investigating the true position on his right flank and of ascertaining whether the enemy had depleted his forces east of the Struma in order to meet the threatening situation in the north. If it were possible to cut the railway north-west of Seres as well as further advantage would be gained. In the operations apparently directed with these objectives in view, the British have crossed the river in the south at Neokori, between Lake Tahinos and the sea, and at several places above this lake, the principal crossing here being along the Salonica-Seres road, which first of all passes over the Orliak River, to the eastward of the village of the same name, and then crosses the Struma between Kadrie and Komarian. Nevolien, one of the villages occupied on the eastern bank, lies about a mile and a half due north of the point where the main road crosses the river. Gudeli, another of the occupied villages, is situated on the western side of the Struma, near the head of Lake Tahinos, which suggests that some Bulgarians had apparently crossed the Struma at this point. The British at Nevolien are now only a little over three miles from the Seres-Salonica railway, which they may endeavour to reach.

GERMAN CASUALTIES.

Yesterday's cable message announcing the German casualties reported up to the end of August has apparently again caused some misunderstanding. We have repeatedly stated in these notes that these lists of German casualties must not be accepted as correct estimates of the total losses sustained by the enemy up to the date specified. The total of 3,376,134 published yesterday only represents the total casualties admitted by Germany up to the end of August. The German General Staff are not so foolish as to supply their enemies with information of such special military value as would be contained in a correct list of their losses to date. On the other hand, it has been frequently proved that the enemy has gone out of his way to falsify his casualty lists in order to prevent the Allies arriving at anything like a conservative estimate of the true position. Hilaire Belloc has frequently quoted in "Land and Water" instances where it has been proved that the enemy has deliberately underestimated his losses. The following extract from one of his articles gives such an example:—"The official casualty lists," he writes, "give of fully qualified military doctors killed or died during the course of the war up to the end of 1915 466 names. This is, of course, allowing for the delay in the publication of names, and this number 466 represents (allowing for such delay) the total admitted number in the officially published lists. Now the checking of this by private lists yields almost exactly the same result as was yielded in the case of immensely more numerous names of the larger categories dealt with in an article published three months ago in these columns, to wit, a discrepancy of rather less than 20 per cent. Private lists were established by carefully going over the names given in three leading German medical papers, the "Deutsche Medizinische," the "Berliner Klinische," and the Munchener Medizinische." A great number of these names, of course, overlapped, and were found in all three papers. Many were found in two; a few occurred in one only. Their total gives 565! . . . . . That the number 565 is at once accurate and a minimum, there can, seeing the detailed information given, be no doubt whatsoever, and the discrepancy between it and the number drawn from the official lists is 17.53 per cent. In other words, the official lists represent only 82.47 of the truth." The instances previously cited by Mr. Belloc referred to Trades Unions and Athletic Societies, which gave a discrepancy of close on 19 per cent.

RECRUITING.

VERY BACKWARD.

Out of 112 men who offered themselves for enlistment at Victoria Barracks yesterday, only 55 were accepted.

There is no use hiding the fact, recruiting is very backward, quite half the men coming up to the enrolling office being physically unfit, and quite aware of the fact. They only come so as to get a reject's badge. Of those who are fit and enrolled yesterday may be mentioned a law student from Coogee, a ganger, a farm hand from Kyogle, a labourer from Bombo, a miner from Lithgow, a farm hand from Cowra, several men from the Postmaster-General's Department, each armed with the necessary permission in writing from the head of the Department to enlist, a quarryman, a canvassing agent, a horse trainer, a farmer from Baan Baa, a cook, a chemist and optician, a farmer from Castle Hill, a station manager from Bellata, a policeman from Mount Druitt, a dental mechanic from Bowral, a medical student, a musician, a number of labourers, a farmer from Orange, a hairdresser, a radio-telegraphist, a marble polisher, a boilermaker, and a bootclicker.

To-day and to-morrow between 12 and 12.30 Sergeants Donald and Galli will speak at the abattoirs, and also at the adjoining Norton Griffith's works.

On Friday the two recruiting sergeants will make an appeal to the plumbers, fitters, and engineers at the new abattoirs.

Mr. Culadon Arthur, fourth son of Mr. G. C. Bernard, of the Public Works Department, Sydney, who has enlisted, has three brothers with the A.I.F. in France. They are grandsons of the late Col. H. L. C. Bernard, formerly of the Bengal Staff Corps.

SIX O'CLOCK CLOSING.

VICTORIAN BILL.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Premier in the Assembly to-day moved the second reading of the Intoxicating Liquor (Temporary Restriction) Bill, providing for 6 o'clock closing. He said that when the measure was passed the date of operation would be fixed by proclamation. The new Act would continue until the session of Parliament next following the termination of the war, but no longer.

The basis of the license fees was to be the liquor purchased. The effect of the new method of fixing fees would be that the same amount or more revenue would be received, and it would be paid more largely by those places which were purely liquor bars. Under the present bill, he added, clubs, so far as the sale of liquor was concerned, would have to cease business at 6 o'clock.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM.

CONSCRIPTION.

MR. HUGHES'S CAMPAIGN.

OPENS ON MONDAY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) will open his campaign on the conscription referendum in the Sydney Town Hall on Monday evening next, the day of the issue of the writ.

Mr. Hughes intends to issue a manifesto to the electors of the Commonwealth for publication throughout Australia on Thursday morning. His arrangements for addressing the electors of the various centres are being rapidly completed. He will speak in the Melbourne Town Hall on the evening of Thursday, September 21, and in the Adelaide Exhibition building on Monday, September 25. The date for his visit to Brisbane has not yet been definitely fixed, but it is expected that it will be shortly after his visit to Adelaide.

REFERENDUM BILL.

INTRODUCED TO-DAY.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Both Houses of the Federal Parliament will meet to-morrow. The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes) intends to introduce a bill to authorise the taking of the referendum on conscription, but it is hardly likely that an attempt will be made to get this measure past the formal stages.

The leader of the Opposition (Mr. Cook) expects to resume the debate on the Ministry's defence proposals, and it is likely that the greater part of the sitting will be devoted to this debate.

In the Senate, Senator Millen (ex-Minister for Defence) will resume the debate on the Federal Ministry's proposal with regard to conscription.

It is considered possible that at the end of this week the Federal Parliament will adjourn until after the referendum.

LABOUR OPPOSITION.

BRISBANE, Tuesday.

The Queensland Parliamentary Labour Party has decided to oppose the proposal for the introduction of conscription. The party also considered the request of the recruiting committee that Parliament should adjourn to allow members to take part in a recruiting campaign. The party decided that Parliament should not adjourn, but that every facility should be given, as, for instance, the granting of pairs, to enable members who wished to do so to take in the campaign.

ALIEN ENEMIES.

EMPLOYMENT IN MINES.

KALGOORLIE (W.A.), Tuesday.

The commission recently appointed for the purpose of inquiring into the question of whether certain foreigners, lately employed in the mines in this district, are, or are not, alien enemies commenced its sittings yesterday. Dr. Stow was present on behalf of the Crown Law Department; Mr. F. C. Cowle appeared for eight men, who are members of the Croatian Society; and Captain Corbett, representing the Defence Department.

Dr. Stow said that originally there were 14 men to appear before the Commissioners, but two had left the district. The first case was that of Mate Bartulovich. In answer to Dr. Stow, Bartulovich said he was born at Gradac, in Dalmatia, 33 years ago; he had been in Western Australia about seven years. His wife and three children were in Dalmatia. He had about two months' military training in Austria, and thought he had two or three cousins in the Austrian army. Had he remained in Austria he would have had to fight.

To Mr. Cowle: He believed that if he returned to Austria he would be liable to be tried for treason.

Captain Corbett said that Bartulovich had been interned at Rottnest, but was released on June 17, 1915.

The Commission announced that a decision in Bartulovich's case would be given later.

Jose Radalf, another man formerly employed on the Great Boulder, said that he was a native of Vergorac, in Dalmatia. He had been interned and discharged.

The Commission decided to reserve its decision until all the cases had been heard.

Ivan Bakotich said he had been employed on the Great Boulder. He was 60 years of age, and came from Dalmatia, where his wife and family resided.

Mick Mulyat Mulyat, a native of Lissa (Dalmatia), said he was not a member of the Slavonic Society; nor had he obtained a Russian provisional certificate. He had been interned and released; he had escaped training in Austria, but his brother was in the army.

Frank Laurich, 27 years of age, who was one of those who were objected to on the Associated mine, produced a Russian provisional certificate. He had enlisted, telling the authorities that he was a Servian, but after 47 days in camp it was found that he was sending money to his mother in Dalmatia, and he was discharged. He had quarrelled with a countryman, who had spoken in favour of the Germans.

The Commission adjourned.

UNITED EFFORT.

REPATRIATION AND THE WAR COUNCIL.

OTHER PATRIOTIC FUNDS.

The State War Council has given consideration to the regulations recently gazetted under the War Precautions Act. It is explained that the aim of the trustees of the Repatriation Fund Act is to concentrate attention upon the needs of the Repatriation Fund. Yesterday the secretary of the State War Council, Mr. Fred. C. Govers, announced that it would be necessary for all associations, institutions, and other local bodies which are raising, or contemplate raising funds for any patriotic or war purpose, to make application to the State War Council for permission to make their appeals. No fund which has for its object the provision of monetary assistance, whether of an ameliorative or permanent nature, for returned soldiers will be allowed to continue. Already there are the Lord Mayor's Fund and the Australia Day funds at the disposal of the Amelioration Committee which is in a position to afford immediate help to sick and wounded soldiers and to the dependents of men who have fallen, while the dependents of men in camp or at the front are not overlooked if they show that they are in need.

Professor Warren, of the University of Sydney, who made certain inquiries at the Challis House offices yesterday regarding the scope and objects of the fund, handed in a contribution of £100.

The State War Council explains that while there is no desire to hamper or fetter public charity, all efforts must now be concentrated in the creation of one national fund. The whole scheme of the Repatriation Fund aims at equality of treatment, both in regard to those who have answered the call and those dependent upon them. Senator Pearce recently made it clear that our soldiers have fought for the whole of Australia, and not for any part of it. The State War Council has already advised the War Service Committees that while the distribution of the fund has been vested by law in the council as the agent of the trustees, it is intended, when dealing with applications for assistance, to seek the co-operation of the War Service Committees, which will be asked to make recommendations in respect of all applications from within their districts, and their advice and guidance will be sought on matters such as the likelihood or otherwise of men from their districts making good if effect be given to the proposals for assistance they bring forward.

The management committee of the Central War Council Collecting Committee meets again at noon to-day at Challis House, when it expects to complete the constitution of the several central sub-committees for the conduct of the appeal, which will culminate on December 15, to which date the celebration of Repatriation Day has been postponed. At last Monday's meeting of the committee, Mr. H. M. Somer, who, by virtue of his acceptance of the chairmanship of the sports sub-committee, is a member, accepted appointment as the general secretary of the campaign.

BATTLEPLANE FUND.

ARMIDALE, Tuesday.

There is about £500 odd to the credit of the Armidale Battleplane Fund, and subscriptions are coming in freely.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES.

CANADIAN MISHAP.

TWENTY-FIVE MEN KILLED.

QUEBEC, Sept. 11.

The new St. Lawrence Bridge, which is being erected on the site of that which collapsed in 1907, has been partially wrecked. The central span, weighing 5000 tons—the largest cantilever in the world—collapsed when being floated into position. An unknown number of workmen were drowned.

Ninety men were thrown off the central span of the bridge when it collapsed. Spectators on the banks rescued numbers with boats.

The span fell 200 feet to the bottom of the river, and it is believed to be irrecoverable.

Arrangements were complete for the opening of the bridge in a few weeks. The structure was intended to shorten the route between Montreal and Eastern Canada.

Members of the Dominion Cabinet saw the catastrophe in company with the Australian members of Parliament, who are returning from the Empire Parliamentary Conference.

Steamer traffic is completely suspended on the St. Lawrence.

Except for the loss of the central span, which was being hoisted into place with the agency of steel chains, the bridge is undamaged.

Five bodies have been recovered. The bridge construction company gives the death roll as twenty-five. Tugs carrying members of Parliament and officials watching the operations rescued many. The Australian and New Zealand guests were horrified at the catastrophe.

SCOTTISH MINERS' CLAIM.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

The Scottish miners claimed an increase in their wages of 1s a day. Lord Strathclyde (Lord Justice-General for Scotland) has awarded them an increase of 6d daily.

SUGAR.

UNITED STATES' TRADE.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.

The United States exports of refined sugar for the seven months of 1916 were more than a billion pounds, valued at £12,000,000. The figures exceed the aggregate for the previous 25 years. The exports were mostly to Europe.

The United States' importations of raw sugar are expected to total 5,000,000lbs.

MEAT FOR EUROPE.

AMERICAN EXPORTS.

AN ENORMOUS INCREASE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

There has been an enormous increase in the United States' shipments of meat to Europe. The figures for the fiscal year 1916 were 1,339,000,000 pounds weight, as compared with 855,000,000 in 1915, and 455,000,000 in 1914.

The official report says that Canada's exports of meat have increased fivefold since the outbreak of war; and that there have also been great increases in the Argentine and Australian exports.

ARCTIC EXPLORERS.

STEFANSSON EXPEDITION.

SEATTLE, Sept. 11.

The southern party of the Stefansson Arctic Exploring Expedition has arrived.

Dr. Anderson says that begging and pilfering are more prevalent now than when he last visited the natives in the far north.

Mr. O'Neill, a geologist, regards his copper discoveries as encouraging. The deposits at Bathurst Inlet are of a low grade, and are favourable for mining, but transportation is the great problem. He paid a tribute to the valuable work of Dr. Jenness, a New Zealander.

UNITED STATES POLITICS.

MAINE ELECTIONS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

The election of the Governor, senators, and congressmen for Maine resulted in a clean sweep being effected by the Republicans.

Maine is regarded as the barometer State, but the result is not necessarily an index to the Presidential campaign, as Maine is normally Republican. It supported Dr. Wilson in 1908, owing to the split vote in the Republican party.

The Republican leaders are elated at this result, claiming that it shows that the Republicans are now thoroughly reunited.

UNITED STATES' STEEL.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11

The United States' steel trust's stock is quoted at: Common, 104¾ dol., which is a record.

A SYMPATHY STRIKE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

The Central Labour delegates have recommended a general sympathetic strike among New York unionists, numbering 800,000.

TRANSFER OF GREENLAND.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.

Admiral Peary, commenting on the proposed transfer of the American rights of Greenland to Denmark, urges the value of Greenland as an American naval base.

A RECORD SWIM.

Charles Durborrow has put up a world's record swim in the Delaware River, covering 36½ miles in 13½ hours. He swam throughout the night.

AMALGAMATED ENGINEERS.

ELECTION OF SECRETARY.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

Mr. Robert Young defeated Mr. Tom Mann for the secretaryship of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers by 4000 votes.

VENEREAL DISEASES.

The Parliamentary Committee on Venereal Diseases met yesterday afternoon. Dr. Arthur was in the chair.

Professor Mackie, of the Teachers' Training College, favoured the training of specially qualified teachers to impart information to boys in the High schools above the age of 15 as to the dangers they would encounter on leaving school, and of giving them a general knowledge of sex hygiene.

Mr. Robert Young Hinder, headmaster of the High School at Ultimo, who had 40 years' experience in school work, said he believed boys over 15 years of age should receive a course of instruction in sex hygiene, but that medical men, fully acquainted with the subject, should impart the necessary knowledge.

James Kilgour, headmaster of the Fort-street High School, said he thought such instruction should be imparted by the parents of the children. He had 500 High School boys under his care. Their ages ranged from 13 to 19 years. To educate those boys on the lines suggested, much harm would be done if the subject was not properly handled. If such instruction were given in the High schools it certainly should be given by a medical man.

The committee adjourned until Thursday.

WAR CHEST.

INTERESTING LETTERS.

GENERAL SARRAIL'S THANKS.

The English mail this week brought to the Sydney office of the Citizens' War Chest Fund a more than usually interesting budget of letters from abroad. Detailed reports from the Commissioners (Messrs. Thos. Henley, M.L.A., and W. F. A. Larcombe) tell of the distribution of many cases of gifts amongst our lads in Egypt and elsewhere, while from the officers commanding the various units, as well as from the men themselves, come grateful letters of thanks for the comforts received.

Those who have given so generously will not cavil at the action of the Commissioners in allowing members of the English regiments attached to the Anzac Mounted Division a share of the comforts. "We have no doubt whatever," writes Mr. Larcombe, "that you will approve of the gifts to the batteries of English Artillery, who are so closely associated with our men. They will be the means of cementing the good feeling existing between the British and Australian troops."

That the comforts were thoroughly appreciated is shown by a letter received by the Commissioner from the captain of one of the batteries participating, in which he says:—"The material benefit derived from the gifts is very great, but I would like to say that we all very much appreciate the high spirit of comradeship which has prompted the sending of them. The Australians during the past few months have been our comrades in the best sense of the word; we can only hope that we have been as good comrades to them." In returning thanks on behalf of another English regiment when the distribution was made, the officer commanding said it was a privilege and a pleasure to be associated with the Anzac Mounted Division, and he trusted when the day came for them to work together in the field the division might have reason to be satisfied with the partnership. The distribution to other batteries was also gratefully acknowledged, and letters of appreciation were subsequently received from the officers and men concerned.

AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS GRATEFUL.

"I only wish," writes a chaplain with the Australian forces, "that some of our dear friends in Australia could have wandered through our camp last night after the distribution of gifts had taken place. In every tent hearts were full of gratitude, and the conversation of the boys proved how highly the kind gifts from the Comforts' Fund were valued."

Dozens of letters in a similar strain might be quoted, all breathing a spirit of gratitude to those who have helped in a small way to lighten the burdens of the Australians who have endured the heat of an Egyptian summer, preparing for the sterner realities of actual warfare.

GIFT FROM FRENCH-AUSTRALIANS.

In a letter addressed to the secretary of the War Chest Fund (Mr. C. Le M. Walker), Commissioner Henley refers to the gift sent by the French people of Sydney. "I received a consignment of 100 cases of tinned fruit from our French friends for a hospital in Mudros," he says. "The hospital had moved on, and the French Consul at Alexandria advised Salonica, so I sent it there. I enclose a letter from General Sarrail, which will please the French people and those who assisted."

The letter reads as follows:—"From General Sarrail, Commander in Chief of the Army in the East, to Mr. T. Henley, M.L.A., of Australia. Dear Sir,—The French Consul in Alexandria has told me that you very kindly forwarded 100 cases of fruit preserves for the hospitals of the army in the East. I am greatly touched by this kind attention towards our wounded and sick soldiers. They will be very glad of this proof of remembrance coming from those in Australia who love France. I pray you, accept yourself and transmit to all the givers my best thanks. Accept, dear sir, the personal expression of my great consideration. (Signed) J. Sarrail, Le General Commandant en Chef l'Armee d' Orient."

THE WORK IN EGYPT.

In his official report, under date August 2, 1916, Mr. Larcombe tells of the work in Egypt. He says:—"Contributors in Australia to the various comforts' funds will be gratified to know that everything so far sent is of great value. Our stock of warm shirts, socks, etc., is coming rapidly into demand for our men going to or already in France and England, and with the colder weather to be expected there in two or three months' time there will surely come a call for the warm vests we have been storing during the summer. In accordance with Mr. Budden's instructions, we have shipped to France almost our entire stock of woollen shirts, socks, etc., comprising about 850 packages. All the light-weight shirts have already been distributed in Egypt, and those advised as being on the way will readily be absorbed. They are indeed a boon, and the men wear them in preference to the issued shirts, which are too heavy for this climate."

AUSTRALIAN CHEMISTS.

IN ENGLISH MUNITION FACTORIES.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Minister for Defence (Senator Pearce) announced to-day that 39 young men of suitable technical qualifications had departed for England in response to a request from the Ministry of Munitions for a number of chemists to assist in the production of munitions and to gain experience in explosive factories in Great Britain. The party included university and technical school graduates, metallurgical chemists, assayers, analysts, etc. Senator Pearce expressed himself as highly gratified with the capability of the men volunteering for the duty.

SEX HYGIENE.

INSTRUCTION OF CHILDREN.

A deputation, consisting of members of the Women's Central Organising Committee, the Women's Labour Council, and the Women Workers' Union, waited on the Minister for Public Instruction yesterday. The speakers—Mesdames Dwyer, Dickie, and Lalor—urged the necessity for teaching sex hygiene in schools, the establishment of a domestic science college and of trade schools for girls, as well as the appointment of women inspectors.

In reply, the Minister expressed his sympathy with the views of the deputation, but said he was doubtful as to the age at which it would be wise to begin the suggested sex elucidation. He promised to arrange for a conference of persons with knowledge of the subject, including members of the organisations represented, with a view to formulating some satisfactory scheme. Mr. Griffith said the necessity for trade schools and domestic science colleges had always existed, but the need was perhaps more keen now than ever before, owing to the fact that after the war they would be to a larger extent than formerly dependent on girls for the lighter forms of labour. Referring to charges of cruelty that had been levelled against persons having State children under their care, he said that investigation by members of the Public Service Board had shown such charges to be groundless. With a view to satisfying the public, however, he would arrange for representatives from each of the woman's organisations to visit a group of the cases about which reports had been received, so that they might furnish him with an independent report. The departmental car would be placed at their disposal, and their expenses would be paid. The Minister, in conclusion, said he would authorise the appointment of at least two women inspectors.

MATERNITY WARDS.

Inquiries have been made by the Director-General of Public Health, by instruction from the Chief Secretary, into the possibilities of providing more accommodation for maternity cases in connection with country hospitals. It has been found that only seven public hospitals outside the metropolitan area have such accommodation. In most of the country towns it would, therefore, be necessary to provide new buildings. Such expenditure, however, would not always be justified by results, and it is suggested by the Director-General that in such cases the hospital committee might make provision for the reception of poor people outside of the hospital, on the understanding that the Government would afterwards refund any reasonable expenditure incurred.

THE WOOLLEY SCHOLARSHIP.

The trustees of the Emmeline M. Woolley Scholarship, on the recommendation of the examiners of the Associated Board of the Royal Academy of Music and Royal College of Music, London, have awarded the pianoforte scholarship for 1916 to Miss Eadith Sullivan, of Ashfield, who is just 17 years of age, and is a pupil of Mr. Gordon Lavers. Miss Nellie Dwyer, pupil of Mr. J. H. McMenamin, was placed second.

"GO SLOW."

RAILWAY WORKERS' PROTEST.

CHARGE DENIED.

In the cost of living judgment recently delivered by Mr. Justice Heydon and Mr. Justice Edmunds, of the Industrial Court, mention was made of "slow down" methods which were said to have been adopted by employees in the railway service. These statements were taken exception to by the majority of the men, and a meeting to protest against what the convenors termed a slander was held at the Protestant Hall, Castlereagh-street, last evening. The attendance numbered about 60.

Mr. H. Arnold, who presided, read from the "Sydney Morning Herald" the statements complained of, and said that soon after they were published a meeting was held outside the Eveleigh workshops. A protest was then entered, but it was decided to adjourn the meeting to the evening. They were there to repudiate the statements, for if they did not do so the public would think that they were true. They as honest men could not stand under such a stigma.

Mr. Ford moved,—"That this meeting, representative of Government railway employees, emphatically denies the slanderous statements contained in the decision on the living wage inquiry, that we are dishonest, lazy, thieves, and saboteurs, the above being a stigma that no honest workers can tolerate." He characterised it as the worst attack that had ever been made upon a recognised body of workers.

Mr. O'Toole, in seconding the motion, said he was surprised to hear that Mr. Milne, one of the Commissioners, also made similar charges. He had never seen any signs of slowing down or sabotage in the department in which he worked.

Mr. Connor blamed the management for the manner in which work was done in the shops. He said that time after time persons who have visited the shops have seen men "dilly-dallying" about, waiting for a job to get out of the way, so that they could make a start. He claimed that the men were not to blame for any slowing down which had occurred—the system under which they worked was responsible.

Mr. Joyce hoped that the railway men would take a stand and eradicate the slander which had been said about them.

Mr. W. G. Hanson said that when the statements appeared in the press the officers of the service met in conference, at which Messrs. Hoyle and Fraser were present, and they took the opportunity while those gentlemen were there to repudiate the statements. The officers, he said, had cast the slur from them, and by doing so had fastened it upon the shoulders of the men in the workshops. He wanted to know why the slur and the slander were thrown at them in Government employ, and not at those in private firms. He claimed that they could compare with any body of workmen in the State, for they were all picked men.

Mr. Vaughan contended that the motion did not go far enough, for they should demand an inquiry, so that if the slow-down policy had been introduced specific instances could be given. The officers had thrown the blame on to the men, but if an inquiry was held it would be found that they (the men) were not responsible. He said that shortage of tools was responsible for men not being able to get on with their work.

The motion when put was carried unanimously.

On the motion of Mr. Milburn it was decided that a deputation wait upon the Premier, and ask him to appoint a Royal Commission to inquire into the working of the Eveleigh, Clyde, and other workshops.

KINDERGARTEN UNION.

A meeting of the committee of the Kindergarten Union of New South Wales was held yesterday at Government House, when short addresses and reports on kindergarten work were dealt with. Lady Edeline Strickland presided.

In a short introductory speech, the president (Mr. John Mackay) spoke of the need of artistic surroundings for the children. He considered that characters formed in pleasant places bore the imprint through life. The recent discussion with the delegates of the Children's Welfare Association had been extremely interesting, and he hoped would be productive of good.

Miss Harriett Dumolo, the principal of the Kindergarten Training College, also had something interesting to say, while the report of the general secretary (Miss E. Desailly) was read by Mrs. Julius Goldschmidt. Mention was specially made of a grant of £500 which was given by the Government, on consideration of "Wattle Day" last year being abandoned; while a gift of £100 from the Walter and Eliza Hall Trust was most acceptable, as well as an extra grant of £150 from the Government.

Mr. Meredith Atkinson spoke at length on "The preservation and uplifting of child life," and clearly showed his hearers that science and love, as exemplified by the kindergarten movement, could work hand in hand for the betterment of the young folk.

Mrs. Frank Davenport gave a short history of the kindergarten movement, which was originated in July, 1895, the first meeting consisting of 14 people. Thus the kindergarten was born into an unsympathetic world, and began its labours in the most uncomfortable and uncongenial surroundings, with three pupils on the roll.

A vote of thanks to Lady Edeline was proposed by Mr. W. G. Boorman, and at the close of the business the visitors were entertained at tea in the dining-room. His Excellency the Governor and the Misses Strickland assisted in the hospitalities.

STATE SESSION.

MINISTER ON STRIKES.

CARE OF THE CHILDREN.

VOTES FOR SOLDIERS.

In the Legislative Assembly yesterday afternoon the Minister for Labour and Industry admitted that it was impossible to prevent the recurrence of strikes. The House discussed a motion by Dr. Arthur, affirming the need for the adoption of greater responsibilities by the State in the care of children, and proposing extra taxation for this purpose. The Government introduced a proposal to give votes at the general elections to all soldiers at the front from this State, irrespective of whether they had reached the age of 21 or not.

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKES.

Reply to Mr. Fitzpatrick, who referred to the continual recurrence of strikes, and asked if any steps were being taken to stop them occurring in the first instance, or to settle them after they had started, the Minister for Labour and Industry said he was only too well aware that numerous strikes were taking place. "Unfortunately my department, or any other department," added Mr. Estell, "cannot stop them. But in every case I and my officers are doing all that is possible to bring about settlements of the disputes."

Mr. Gardiner asked the Minister if he would put the compulsory clauses of the Act into operation to bring about a meeting of the opposing parties in the strike of the moulders at Newcastle.

Mr. Estell said that the compulsory clauses of the Act only applied where the men concerned were the employees of a particular firm. They, therefore, did not apply in the case of the moulders at Newcastle, but the officers of his department were doing all they could to effect a settlement.

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT POOL.

Mr. Waddell asked the Minister for Agriculture if, in the event of it being decided to pool the next season's Australian wheat crop, the Government would consider the advancement to the growers of sufficient money to pay for bags and seed wheat, as would be done under ordinary circumstances by private people contracting for the purchase of the wheat?

The Minister (Mr. Grahame) said that the Federal and State Governments had decided to pool the next season's crop. The whole financial aspect of the question, however, had still to be decided, and it would be settled at a conference to be held next week, over which the Prime Minister would preside.

The Minister told Mr. Ball that he had promised the Farmers and Settlers' Association that at the termination of the operation of the pool a special auditor, appointed by that body, should have an opportunity of examining the whole of the accounts and transactions. He could not see his way clear to allow that special audit before the wheat pool had finished with the business.

TOTALISATOR LIBEL CASES.

Mr. Cusack asked the Attorney-General if he would give an opportunity to those members of the Opposition who had voted against the Totalisator Bill to swear in open court that they had nothing to do with any suggested bribery. Only one member of the Opposition, said Mr. Cusack, had voted for the bill, although quite a number had declared themselves in favour of the introduction of the machine.

Mr. Hall said that litigation of the kind was a costly business. "Unfortunately," added the Attorney-General, "there was no prospect of any member of the Ministry in the cases referred to getting anything more than an apology and costs." He could not give Opposition members the opportunity suggested.

INDUSTRIAL COURT FINES.

Replying to questions asked by Mr. Perry, the Attorney-General said that many fines imposed for breaches of awards had been remitted to both employees and employers. "Where I can see any reason whatever," added Mr. Hall, "for believing that breaches of awards on the part of employers were not wilful, or that they were of such a character as would give any reason whatever for granting remissions, they are granted. I also understand that every employer is now warned before action is taken against him."

EXPENSES OF THIRD RAIL DEVICE.

Answering Mr. Haynes, the Premier said that the expenses of the experiments in connection with the third rail device had amounted to £10,725, of which sum £6430 had been paid. In the event of the system being adopted at Tocumwal, this expenditure will be repaid; and in the event of the system not being adopted, the material could be used elsewhere.

EARLY CLOSING ACT.

In reply to Mr. Robson, the Chief Secretary said it was not a fact that a circular had been issued to the police, instructing them not to take proceedings for alleged infringements of the Early Closing Act without the concurrence of the Inspector-General of Police.

INDUSTRIAL COURT JUDGMENT.

Mr. Crawford asked the Minister for Labour and Industry if his attention had been drawn to the judgment given by Mr. Justice Heydon in the application by the Professional Officers' Association. The Court, he said, had drawn an arbitrary line beyond which wages boards would not be allowed to arbitrate, and unless the limit were extended, some of the boards now engaged in dealing with the cases of men in receipt of more than £225 a year would not be able to continue to hear the claims.

Mr. Hollis said the men concerned in the recent dispute at Glebe Island were getting more than the 16s 8d a day set down by the Court as a limit. In view of the Minister's promise to expedite the hearing of their claims before the wages board, what steps did he propose to take?

Mr. Estell, in reply, said the matter had been before the Cabinet that day for a considerable time, but no definite decision had been arrived at. The question was a momentous one, and he hoped soon to be in a position to announce the result of the Cabinet's deliberations.

CONSUMPTIVE SOLDIERS' HOME.

Mr. Haynes asked the Chief Secretary if it had been decided to establish a consumptive home for soldiers at Castle Hill, near Parramatta.

Mr. Black said it was suggested that the Red Cross Society should establish a home there for dying soldiers. The site, which was a secluded one, had been examined by officers of the department, who thought it suitable, and no objection to the scheme had been raised by either the Federal or State member for the district concerned.

CONSCRIPTION AND CENSORSHIP.

Captain Toombs, referring to the Prime Minister's promise to allow freedom of speech on the conscription question, said that whilst no restriction had so far been placed on newspapers advocating conscription, the censorship was being directed against papers printing the other side of the question. He asked the Premier if he could give the House any assurance that the Prime Minister's promise would be given effect to.

Mr. Abbott: Will the Premier also have it made illegal for outside bodies to bludgeon the leaders of thought into opposing a course which they believe to be essential?

Mr. Holman said that so far as his knowledge went any censorship that had been exercised had been against the papers that favoured conscription. He was in communication with Mr. Hughes at present on the matter, and expected within a day or so that a definite declaration would be made by the Prime Minister.

SLAUGHTERMEN'S SLOWING DOWN.

The Chief Secretary, in reply to Mr. Waddell, said he believed it was a fact that butchers at the abattoirs used to kill 20 cattle a day, and had slowed down to 10, while the award rate was 15 cattle a day. The men, however, were not employed by the Meat Board, but by carcase butchers, and he understood an endeavour was being made to bring about a better condition of affairs. Unfortunately the "go slow" principle meant in this case dearer meat.

PREMIER'S PRIVATE SECRETARY.

Mr. Haynes asked the Premier if his private secretary who was paid by the State—had been expelled by the P.L.L. for improper practices in connection with a certain labour political nomination, and whether he (the Premier) had not induced the league to alter the sentence to one of grave censure.

The Premier asked that notice be given of the question.

CARE OF CHILDREN.

Dr. Arthur moved,—"That, in the opinion of this House, (1) the welfare and proper development of the children should be of supreme importance to the State; (2) the principle of equal payment to all workers engaged in the same occupation, irrespective of their conjugal and family conditions, though economically sound, discourages and penalises marriage, leads to the restriction of the birth-rate, and is detrimental to the physical well-being of children the members of large families; (3) for the good of the general community and the future generation, it would be equitable to compel those citizens who have no dependents, or only small families, to contribute to the maintenance of larger families; (4) to effect this a special income tax should be imposed on all net incomes of over £2 a week, single persons to pay double the tax that married persons do; (5) from the revenue so obtained an endowment should be paid to the mother of every child after the first until the age of 14 years; (6) such a system of endowment should not be taken into account in determining the minimum wage in any industry for a man with wife and two children." He thought that the endowment should be 5s per week till the child reached the age of 14 years.

The Minister for Works: Would you pay that to a man with an income of £2000 per annum?

Dr. Arthur: Yes, because I propose that, side by side with the endowment, a tax should be levied on incomes—10 per cent. in the case of single persons, and 5 per cent. on married persons." Continuing, he said that those people who refused to enter into the marriage state, and those who, having done so, limited their families, should take upon themselves a fair proportion of the burdens of those with large families but small incomes. His proposed tax would bring in something like £3,000,000 annually. He would like the problem made a burning question.

The Minister for Education endorsed the principle that it was the business and duty of the State to help in the upbringing of the rising generation. Parents alone should not be compelled to bear the whole cost of bringing new citizens into the world and maintaining them until they could maintain themselves. However, all the complicated and inquisitive machinery proposed by Dr. Arthur was unnecessary. So long as revenue was raised sufficient for the purpose—whether by an income tax or by other means—it was not necessary to introduce inquisitive questions, which would be obnoxious to this State. To-day we tended by our customs to penalise those with large families. He objected to restricting the endowment to poor families; there should be no class distinction. He hoped the principle would soon be the law of the land.

Mr. Cann said to allow 2s 6d a week subsidy for every child would, at the present rate, amount to £347,000 a year, or £4,384,000 for the 14 years. The remedy, he believed, lay rather in bettering the conditions of the people generally, so that they could afford to rear their families. The problem, however, was worthy of consideration, and he promised to suggest to the Premier the appointment of a commission to investigate the whole question, and see if some solution could not be arrived at.

Mr. Fitzpatrick said he preferred to leave the people to look after themselves. If the State was to usurp the functions of the parents there would be no incentive for them to do anything for themselves or their children.

The debate was adjourned until Tuesday next.

VOTES FOR SOLDIERS.

The Chief Secretary moved the expediency of bringing in a bill to amend the Parliamentary Electorates and Elections Act, 1912, the Naturalised Subjects Franchise Act, 1916, the Constitution Act, 1902, the Liquor Act, 1912, and the Oaths Act, 1900, and to give an opportunity to persons absent on service with his Majesty's forces to vote by proxy.

The Minister said the proposal to give soldiers and sailors on active service the right to vote by proxy had been accepted in Queensland. The measure was purely a tentative one. It would be impossible to give soldiers at the front ballot papers; they could only vote for a party.

Mr. David Storey: There should be no party while the war is on.

Mr. Black: But we know there is one solid party and one two-headed party. (Laughter.) The vote, he continued, would be taken in the various countries where Australian soldiers were congregated, and on vessels of the Australian fleet. The proxy votes would be handed to the Premier, as representing the Labour party, to the leader of the Opposition (Liberal party), and to the Speaker (Progressive or other parties), who would allot them to the candidates, and hand them on to the returning officers. They would be kept in separate ballot boxes, so that they could be used in case a second ballot was necessary in any electorate.

Mr. Levy: Supposing there are two Labour candidates, as in Belmore.

The Chief Secretary: In such a case the Premier would allot them at his discretion. (Opposition laughter.) There was nothing to laugh at, he proceeded. Mr. Wade would be given a similar discretion with regard to the Liberal and Progressive candidates.

Mr. Fuller opposed the suggestion to appoint the Speaker to represent the Independent party.

Mr. Black: I will accept an amendment if the House so desires.

The deputy leader of the Opposition asked what was to become of the votes of the soldiers who were imprisoned? It appeared to him that there was something big behind the proposition. The best thing was to laugh the whole thing out of the House, and he said that knowing the full and deep sympathy which the members of the Opposition had with the soldiers.

Mr. Cohen said it was utterly impossible to carry out the proposal. Not only would all soldiers in transit be disfranchised, but also all those who left Australia to join the Imperial forces. Voting by proxy could lead to wholesale impersonation. It was not a principle but a wretched and abominable expedient. The Federal referendum was a simpler operation, requiring only an answer "Yes" or "No." He intended to move the deletion of the words "by proxy."

Mr. Fitzpatrick said that it would appear to the outsider that the proposition was an innocent desire to give the soldiers an opportunity to record their votes. It was, however, a deeply conceived scheme in the interests of party. If it were thrown out the Labour party would claim that the Liberals were the party which denied the soldiers a vote, and if it were passed it would give an opportunity for the manipulation of votes. The secrecy of the ballot—one of Australia's boasts—would be destroyed.

Mr. Boston: Are you against giving them a vote at all?

Mr. Fitzpatrick: You are not giving the soldiers a vote, you are giving Mr. Holman the right to say how a certain number of votes should be cast—the same right to Mr. Wade, and the same to Mr. Meagher. There will be no Speaker while the elections are on.

Mr. Page said he would support any scheme to enable the soldiers to record their votes, but was not prepared to allow them to vote by proxy.

Mr. Robson characterised the proposal as wicked and preposterous. It was farcical and ill-considered. The men were asked to vote in the dark. If a workable scheme were evolved it would receive support. If it were found impossible to give the soldiers votes, and it was decided to give the proxy to the father or mother of the soldier-son, that proxy would at least be intelligently exercised.

Mr. Levy said that anyone who claimed that the Liberals were opposed to the granting of the franchise to the soldiers would run the risk of being rightly called a liar and a hypocrite. The proposition was the last desperate effort of a reckless Government to win the next elections by Tammany methods. It sought to put the party ticket on the men at the front, making of the soldiers in the firing line either Liberals or Labourites. The proposal was an attempt to follow in the corrupt and rotten methods of American politics. It was so full of grave possibilities of abuse that he would not trust the Government with it. Was it a fair, reasonable, or decent thing to breed dissension in the trenches over political matters?

Mr. T. Brown said it would not be creditable to invite these men to enlist, and to send them away to the battlefield, and then to allow the whole face of the politics of the country, which they had helped to create, to be changed in their absence, by the votes of shirkers who were afraid to go and fight for their country.

A proposal to amend the order of leave by the omission of the words "by proxy" was defeated on division, by 30 votes to 24.

The expediency of bringing in the bill was agreed to on the voices.

GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS (AMENDMENT) BILL.

The Government Railways (Amendment) Bill was further considered in committee. An amendment to clause 18, moved by Mr. Hollis, to provide for the allowance of good conduct holidays, was defeated on division by 26 votes to 13. The bill was reported with amendments.

SUNDAY TRADING.

The expediency of bringing in a bill to amend the Sunday Trading (Refreshment Rooms) Act, 1916, was affirmed. The Chief Secretary said that it was proposed to allow milk shops to open at 7 a.m. and restaurants at 7.30 a.m. They would be closed between the hours of 10.30 and 12.30, and would then remain open till 10 o'clock at night. The bill was read a first time, and the second reading made an order of the day for Wednesday.

At 2.50 a.m. the House adjourned until this afternoon.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

FORESTRY BILL.

This bill was further considered in committee, and the postponed clauses were passed with amendments.

TESTATOR'S FAMILY MAINTENANCE BILL.

A message was received from the Assembly, stating that it disagreed with the amendment made by the Council in clause 5 of this bill, and agreed to other amendments with certain amendments of its own, one being the insertion of a proviso in clause 21 that proceedings under the clause should be held in camera. The Council did not insist upon the amendment disagreed to by the Assembly, and accepted the latter's amendments.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION BILL.

This bill was further considered in committee, and in regard to clause 3, providing for the repeal of certain Acts mentioned in schedule 1, the Vice-President of the Executive Council said that a bill was before the Assembly providing for the repeal of the Miners' Accident Relief Act. The clause was postponed.

In clause 4, "Definitions," Mr. Dick moved an amendment, to add to the definition of "workman" words providing that persons coming under the provisions of the Miners' Accident Relief Act or other Acts should not come within the provisions of the present bill.

The Vice-President of the Executive Council opposed the amendment, and said that the Miners' Accident Relief Fund was not in a satisfactory condition, and miners would be in a better position under the proposed law than under the Miners' Accident Relief Act.

Mr. Earp said that, in spite of what the Vice-President of the Executive Council had stated, he held to the opinion he originally expressed, that miners and their families derived greater advantages under the Miners' Accident Relief Act than they would under the present bill. He also thought the fund, if properly administered, would prove quite sufficient for the purpose.

Sir Thomas Hughes said he thought the committee should give due weight to the contention submitted by the Government, that the bill provided something at least as good as the workmen possessed at present.

Dr. Doyle opposed the amendment, and said that the bill had caused a flutter among mine-owners, who thought it would cost them an enormous sum per annum.

The amendment was negatived by 12 to 9.

Schedule 1, setting out the various Acts referred to in clause 3, to be repealed in consideration of the passing of the new Act, was struck out, on the suggestion of Mr. Fitzgerald, who stated that the repeal of the Miners' Accident Relief Act would be effected by a special bill, it having been decided, in connection with the Compensation Bill, that the Miners' Accident Relief Act should no longer appeal to miners. The special bill would deal generally with the Accident Relief Fund and its position.

Clause 3 was altered to provide for the repeal of the Employers' Liability Act of 1897 and the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1910.

Clause 4 having been recommitted, Mr. Fitzgerald moved to make the definition of "workman" apply to those whose remuneration does not exceed £300, instead of the limit being £260, according to a previous amendment. The amendment was agreed to.

On clause 5 (recommitted), Mr. Garland moved an amendment specifically guarding the Common law rights of workmen in regard to accidents. The amendment was agreed to.

On clause 13, applying the Act to workmen employed by or under the Crown, Mr. Garland moved the addition of a proviso that if any such workmen sustained any injury entitling him to compensation under the Act, and in consequence of such injury became entitled to benefit under another Act affecting workmen employed by or under the Crown, such workman should not be entitled to claim benefit under both Acts, but should elect under which he would make his claim. This amendment was agreed to.

The bill was approved with amendments, and the third reading made an order for the next day.

WORKERS' ACCOMMODATION BILL.

Mr. Fitzgerald moved the second reading of the Workers' Accommodation Bill, which, he said, should appeal to both sides of the House on the grounds of justice, hygiene, and civilisation. The bill was practically a measure that would extend the benefits of the Shearers' Accommodation Act of 1901 to other industries.

The debate was adjourned till Thursday.

At 8.22 the council adjourned till this afternoon.

CABINET MEETING.

ELECTORAL LAW REFORM.

At a meeting of the State Cabinet held yesterday, the question of allowing soldiers at the front from New South Wales to vote at the next general election was decided. The scheme arrived at was subsequently introduced in Parliament by the Chief Secretary (Mr. Black). The features of the scheme are that the votes will be taken by proxy—the trustees of the proxies to be the Premier, for all Labour votes, the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Wade) for all Liberal votes, and the Speaker (Mr. R. D. Meagher) for all other votes. All soldiers on active service, whether 21 years of age or not, are to be given a vote. There are to be no names of candidates on the soldiers' voting papers, and in this way, said the Premier last night, it is hoped to reduce the risk of misunderstanding to a minimum. Soldiers' votes will not be disposed of in the ordinary way by returning officers. They will be kept separate from the others, so that they may be used again in the case of second ballots, where the party candidates for whom the votes have been recorded are still in the field.

Proposals for the introduction of preferential voting were also discussed, but were turned down, on the ground that they were too cumbrous, and likely to lead to too much disfranchisement by the rendering of too many votes informal.

MORE FIRES.

INCENDIARISM SUSPECTED.

Shortly before 1 o'clock on Saturday last, when Brennan's drapery and ironmongery store, in King-street, Newtown, was about to be locked up for the week-end, a small outbreak of fire was discovered. An employee was shifting a bundle of axe-handles, just inside the back door, which opens on to Wilson-street, when he noticed a small blaze. The cause of the fire was apparent, as a search revealed the charred remains of what appeared to be cotton waste, which had previously been soaked in some chemical.

At about 4.45 yesterday afternoon, an employee of Messrs. Brown and Co., furniture manufacturers, 377 Cleveland-street, Redfern, discovered a small fire, among a heap of timber, stored on the west side of the building close to the wall. The flames soon burnt out, and very little damage was done. However, in view of recent events, the police are inclined to suspect that the outbreak was the work of an incendiary.

STATE FISH.

MR. HOLMAN REPLIES TO MR. BEEBY.

"Mr. Beeby reiterates in this morning's 'Herald,'" said Mr. Holman yesterday, "that the State (meaning the general taxpayers) paid 2½d per lb out of revenue towards the 2,000,000lb of cheap fish landed by the trawlers for the last financial year. He says that I admit this. I have made no such admission.

"I said that the excess of expenditure over receipts in the first year of the undertaking would probably be about £10,000. I hope that the balance-sheet will show that to be somewhat high, but in any case, accepting that figure, it would show that the State paid under 1½d per lb towards the running of the undertaking—I will not say toward 'this cheapness,' as stated by Mr. Beeby. This 1½d would be paid by the State for the foundation and development of the industry, for that initial and exploratory work upon which the industry is depending for all time, and not for its first twelve months. We will have to spend many thousands of pounds in exploring work on all parts of the coast until we know it as well as the North Sea man knows his trawling waters.

"The development of the Iceland fishing grounds (the most prolific grounds in northern waters) was done by Grimsby and Aberdeen companies, who lost many thousands of pounds in their first two years of work, but quickly picked up their loss and a great deal more soon after. The Commonwealth vessel Endeavour was working for six years, and she cost the Commonwealth about £7500 per annum to run (more at the last), say £45,000 for the one vessel. She gave no direct financial return (or at most an infinitesimal one), only seeking our fishing grounds.

"The three State trawlers have done such an immense amount of investigation work in this way that if they ceased to exist to-morrow they would have added a new province to the State, and pointed the way for future development. Yet, while they have done this, they have sold the quantity of fish already mentioned.

"The expenditure of a large fishing company in New Zealand was £25,000 more than their receipts in their first year. Yet this is now, I understand, a handsomely paying concern. Twelve months, as a matter of fact, is quite an artificial period as regards the fisheries, and especially so in our case, with only three vessels forming part only of a scheme of development. In fishing, whether by steam or by hand, by trawl net or by handline, you have first of all to know when and where to get the fish. It is for that experience that you pay in the early days of any fishing industry.

"The progress of the trawling industry," concluded Mr. Holman, "is shown by the fact that during the first half of the period of its operations the revenue from its sales of fish was £14,986, while for the second half we received £23,090."

"LA BOHEME."

"La Boheme" had a right-royal welcome at the Grand Opera House last night. For one thing it is half a century nearer to us even than Verdi's middle-period, and the action being continuous, the pathetic story flows on through the medium of music without the designed interruptions of the "set aria" on which the popularity of most of the old Italian works depended. Then, again, as regards the present revival, a great deal of the success is due to the apparent youth of the lovers, who bring the atmosphere of spring-like freshness, fervour, and happiness to the first two acts. These parts were charmingly sung and acted by Signorina Gonzales and Signor Lois; whilst Signor Belloni and Signorina Visoni were so brightly in the picture throughout the close of the third scene that the quartet was encored with overwhelming enthusiasm by the crowded house.

Puccini's opera has always been especially admired here throughout its comparatively brief career. At the same time, though the period remains short, it is one of the few new operas which reached Australia quickly, since the first performance at Covent Garden took place in 1899 (with Melba and De Lucia), and in Sydney only two years later. Though the music was then absolutely strange to our audiences, an immense success was achieved at once under Signor Hazon's baton, and the opera was repeated again and again, the number of performances for the two seasons being 31 in 1901, and 18 early in 1902. This startling popularity was partly due to the success of Signorina Dahlia Bassich and Carlo Dani—the latter singing the role in Italian at Covent Garden a year or two later, and subsequently with the San Carlo Company in America.

The brief libretto has been cleverly founded upon Henri Murger's realistic novel, under the title of "La Vie de Boheme," a good deal of it being inspired more directly by the author's preface to his story. Mimi's death-scene, which forms the last act, was undoubtedly taken from the same situation in Dumas's "La Dame aux Camelias," and the resemblance was all the more apparent last night through the recent performance of "La Traviata," with the same prima donna. Just because Verdi had treated this scene so touchingly, it is rather remarkable that Puccini did not decline the proposed libretto. But the presumption is that he felt himself inspired by this pathetic everyday page of sorrow from the book of human life. His music thus has moments, not few, but many, in which he suddenly places his hand upon the very heart of the audience. It is when Puccini has set his violins a great melodious theme, or when, with the harp striking in plangent tones upon the ear, the flutes and reeds mingle with the muted strings, that the spirit is suddenly raised aloft, and life becomes worth living. In all these bursts of passionate exaltation last night's orchestra proved readily responsive to Signor Giovanni Gonzales' sympathetic direction, and it was generally felt that the potent charm of the captivating score was being exercised with much of its old-time insistence.

The four rollicking students, in particular, made instant appeal as old friends in their quaint early Victorian velvet coats, plaid trousers, and "tiles" of long-lost shape! Signor Belloni's Marcello was full of character, and the music was effectively sung. Signor Scamuzzi was content to figure as Chaunard. Signor Cacialli, as Colline, won the house with the farewell to the trusty (and rusty!) top-coat, and there was clever comic acting by Signor Petrucci as Alcindoro and Benoit. Interest naturally centred in the lovers. Signorina Gonzales played the role of Mimi prettily, and with an air of confiding gentleness, but the actress appeared too gay-looking in her attire in the snow scene, where she should have worn black. Her delicacy of vocal style in the "Romance," and the unexpected vocal power she displayed in the Addio duet, delighted the audience. Signor Lois vastly pleased by the vocal charm with which he rendered the "Poet's Song," which was warmly encored, and with Mimi in the duet of "Good-bye to Everything" the voices mingled with sweetness and power. Signorina Visoni proved sprightly as the shrewish Musetta, and the penetrating brilliance of her voice was of service in the big song and in the concerted numbers.

"La Boheme" will be repeated to-night and Saturday afternoon. The Fuller direction announces "Un Ballo" for this afternoon, "Traviata" for to-morrow, and "Faust" for Friday and Saturday nights.

FINANCIAL.

LOAN RENEWALS.

"Bantry Bay" writes:—

Sir,—I enclose a list which should be of interest to your readers.

The figures therein given are copied from the statistics printed on page 49 of "The Year Book of Australia" (1916 edition). From this list you will gather that the loans falling due by the various States of the Commonwealth up to 1920 amount to £89,688,998, of which New South Wales owes £34,817,001, and that in the following four years (up to 1924 inclusive) further loans fall due, viz., Commonwealth States £71,094,176, of which New South Wales owes £31,921,632.

I do not know the terms of flotation of these loans, nor the present rate of interest payable on the respective amounts, but, assuming the rate to be 3¾ per cent., the effect will be probably as follows:—

1. We cannot pay our debts; and must, therefore, renew.
2. We shall have to pay at least 5 per cent. on renewed loans.
3. 1¼ per cent. extra on, say, £35,000,000 due up to 1920, means a further £500,000 a year interest, and on £32,000,000 a further like sum for the loans renewed in the second period.

We shall therefore have to provide in a comparatively short time £1,000,000 a year for additional interest on money already borrowed and spent, none of which produces 5 per cent. clear.

The appended is the list:—

Loans due by Commonwealth States.	£		N. S. Wales' proportion. £
1916	7,404,400	1916	828,007
1917	19,268,058	1917	4,970,352
1918	18,809,200	1918	12,826,206
1919	17,795,678	1919	11,113,040
1920	26,070,795	1920	5,077,837
	89,688,998		34,817,001
1921	15,737,129	1921	4,872,843
1922	8,644,029	1922	4,500,000
1923	14,985,434	1923	6,850,723
1924	31,727,584	1924	16,098,065
	71,094,176		31,921,632

There can be no doubt that for a time at least higher rates of interest will have to be paid on renewals, but who can say what 1924 has in store?

DUTY STAMPS AND P.N'S.

"Inquirer" writes:—

Sir,—Re duty stamps on receipts for payments £2 and over. I would like to learn whether duty stamps must be applied, under the present Stamp Duties Act, to acknowledgments (or receipts) given to makers for promissory notes, which themselves carry a duty of 2/ per cent. Under the old New South Wales law it was not necessary to place duty stamps on such receipts. I shall be glad to have your opinion on this matter, as a doubt appears to exist in some commercial quarters.

These are exempt under the 1898 Act.

WAR LOAN.

Mr. Edward O'Donoghue writes:—

I paid in £200 for War Loan stock on August 1 at the Commonwealth Savings Bank, for which I hold a receipt. Should I have received any further documents from the Treasury, indicating the acceptance of my contribution?

On September 1 I paid in £3 application money for £30 worth of war bonds. Will the Post Office receive the remainder of the instalments as they become due? If I cannot somehow pay in without losing a day's work, it certainly gives little encouragement to working men to participate in future loans.

(1) Nothing further necessary. (2) Instalments will be accepted at any branch bank or m.o.o. throughout the Commonwealth on production of the official receipt.

The market ruled firm, but the volume of competition was somewhat restricted.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Trade in groceries was again quiet. There was some demand for tinned salmon for forward delivery. Red Alaska on spot was quoted at from 10/ to 10/6, and Cohoes halves from 6/ to 6/3. Standard brands brought higher rates. Sardines were slow. There were ample stocks of Norwegian quarters and eighths, but sixteenths were in small supply. Quarters were worth from 5/6 to 6/, eighths from 4/9 to 5/, and sixteenths 3/3. Tref. quarters were difficult to buy at 7/9, and halves were nominally quoted at 11/6. American quarters were offered at 3/6. A small shipment of lobsters was to hand, and cleared at unaltered levels. Oysters were weak at 6/9. Stocks of New Zealand whitebait were small, and it was hard to place an order under 22/. The new pack will not be available until December. Reports from Canada stated that the herring pack was expected to be a good one, and, although shippers were not prepared to offer herrings in tomato sauce or kippered herrings, they were open to accept orders for fresh herrings, packed in 1lb flat tins. Dried fruits were quiet. Dates on spot were sold at from /4½ to /4¾, and to arrive in December at from /4 to /4½ per lb. Lexias, sultanas, and currants brought full association rates. American apricots and peaches were cheap, and were to be had fully /1 under the landed cost. There was a brisk inquiry for lemon peel at from /8 to /8½. Queensland packers who generally supply this market are not in a position to quote. Citron peel was scarce at 1/2. The extra discount offered by the jam manufacturers had been withdrawn, and as the retailers were well stocked, business in this line was dead. Canned fruits were slow. The shortage of apricots and peaches is likely to soon make itself felt. Fair stocks of condensed milk were available, though probably a month will elapse before normal quantities are to hand. Matches were "sick." Australian vestas, stocks of which have accumulated, were offered at from 4/7 to 4/7½. Safeties were in full supply, and the market was decidedly weak. Japanese were to be had at from 3/6, and Australian at from 4/ to 4/3. English makes brought from 4/3 to 4/9. The landed cost of the last two or three shipments was 4/8 and 4/9. The labour troubles in Queensland caused more attention to be paid to sugar, and there was a rush of orders, which happily the Colonial Sugar Refining Company was able to cope with. Mr. Val. Ackerman will on Monday next hear an application for permission to advance the price of Christmas puddings.

There was no parcel business in oils, but distributing lots cleared freely at about late levels.

The jute market continued strong. October-November deliveries of cornsacks were in firm hands at from 8/11 to 8/11½, while for spot stocks from 8/11 to 9/ net to rails was wanted. Woolpacks were quoted at from 3/10 to 3/10½ net, and branbags at 7/6 net.

Manufactured metals were dull. Stocks of No. 10 black wire were particularly light, and holders refused to accept under £26/10/ and £27 a ton. No. 8 was plentiful, and was offered at £23/10/. Nos. 8 and 10 galvanised wire were sold at from £28 to £29 a ton.

LONDON METAL QUOTATIONS.

The Australian Metal Exchange reports that the London metal (middle) quotations for September 11 were:—

Copper: Standard, spot, £111/5/ (£1 higher); three months, £108 (12/6 higher); Electrolytic, unchanged, at £131 per ton.

Lead: Spot, £30 (5/ lower); forward, £28/15/ (10/ lower) per ton.

Spelter was unchanged, spot £50, forward £44 per ton.

Tin: Standard, spot, £169/12/6 (5/ lower); three months, £170/7/6 (5/ lower) per ton.

Silver: Standard, spot, 32¼d, a fall of ⅛d per ounce.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday was 3518 bales.

WHEAT AND FLOUR EXPORTS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The abnormal conditions ruling in the shipping world have not prevented large quantities of wheat and flour from being exported from Australia. A statement prepared by the Customs Department shows that during the present season 20,772,185 centals of wheat and 3,471,990 centals of flour have been exported from the Commonwealth, as compared with 65,493 centals of wheat and 113,188 centals of flour during a similar period of the 1914-5 season. Up to the end of August, 1914, the export for that season totalled 32,577,433 centals of wheat and 3,139,029 centals of flour.

At Darling Harbour yesterday 3731 tons of wheat and 115 tons of flour were manifested to arrive.

MELBOURNE LIVE STOCK MARKET.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the live stock market to-day 10,800 fat sheep were penned, including a much-increased proportion of shorn sheep from the north and Riverina. The quality was, on the whole, fairly good, the bulk of the yarding being of useful quality, with a moderate proportion of prime, the bulk of the shorn drafts being of the latter class. The attendance was good, but the demand was irregular throughout, and generally without animation, prices varying from last week's rates to decidedly lower, early sales being the weakest.

Quotations: Prime crossbred wethers 40/ to 45/6, extra to 47/3, odd wethers to 51/, good 36/ to 39/, seconds 32/6 to 35/, others from 29/; shorn wethers 25/ to 31/3, with a pen of extra choice at 38/; prime crossbred ewes 35/3 to 41/, extra to 43/, odd pens to 44/6, odd ewes higher, good 33/3 to 35/6, seconds from 30/; a few shorn ewes, 24/6; prime merino wethers 32/6 to 36/6, extra to 39/, good 28/6 to 31/, others from 27/; shorn wethers, 21/4 to 28/1; merino ewes from 25/6 to 34/, shorn ditto 24/ to 25/6.

In the fat lambs section, 8000 were penned, about half the supply being of this season's drop. The demand in early sales for both classes was irregular, and old sorts were generally weaker. Later in the day a strong competition set in for spring lambs, and in this class the market closed strong at higher values. Quotations: Young lambs, prime 22/ to 25/6, extra to 29/6, good 18/9 to 20/6, seconds 17/ to 18/, a few small from 16/; old lambs, prime 30/ to 34/, extra to 37/, good 25/ to 28/6, seconds 20/ to 22/9; others from 10/.

EXPORT TRADE.

BUTTER SHIPMENTS.

The exports of butter in boxes of 56lb, from the port of Sydney, for the week ended September 9, according to the Customs House returns, were:—

To United Kingdom, 1126; Japan, 2. Total, 1128 boxes.

LONDON MARKET CABLES.

WHEAT.

LONDON, Sept. 11.

The wheat market is quiet, and prices are unchanged.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

BACON VERY FIRM.

STRONG DEMAND FOR EGGS.

The butter position was unaltered. The majority of the agents stated that they were able to supply only 33 per cent. of grocers' orders, and that this was so was evidenced by the fact that retailers continued to complain. One merchant said he had not been forced to cut down the requirements of his regular customers; but he was kept busy all day informing grocers who had received short supplies from other houses that he was unable to make up the deficiency. It appears that two or three hundred boxes are coming to hand weekly from Queensland on retailers' account, but that quantity is not sufficient to make any appreciable improvement.

Owing to strong demand for cold storage, eggs were slightly firmer, Northern Rivers and South Coast bringing 1/ and new-laid 1/1.

Bacon supplies were not equal to requirements. Agents explained that the scarcity was due to a shortage of pigs. The desire of the merchants was to give every retailer a little, but it was stated that orders which came in ten days to a fortnight ago were still on hand. Prices have advanced in Queensland 1d a lb all round, the quotations being: Flitches, /11½; hams, 1/5. Sides are not quoted in the Northern State. In Victoria the market has also advanced 1d, sides being quoted at /13, flitches 1/0½, shoulders /11, and hams 1/5. The proclaimed prices in New South Wales are:—Sides /11, flitches /10¾, middles 1/1, shoulders /9, and hams 1/2½. To-day an application will be made before the Federal Price Fixing Commissioner (Mr. V. Ackermann) to advance the New South Wales prices 1d.

The general impression among agents was that the proclaimed price of cheese would not be altered.

Quotations were:—

RAILWAY MARKET.

"Hardly a buyer in the yard," was the somewhat exaggerated complaint of auctioneers at the Alexandria produce sales. Supplies were again too heavy for immediate requirements, and, despite the proportion of green and good quality grain chaffs on the market, values declined again. Lucerne and miscellaneous hay and straw lines were weak, while potato sales justified the previous day's fall.

Produce in position totalled 187 trucks, comprising 152 of forage, 14 of grain, and 21 of vegetables; while the manifest included 70 trucks of forage, 8 of grain, and 11 of vegetables.

VEGETABLE MARKET.

CAULIFLOWER SCARCE.

Conditions were again quiet in the vegetable markets. Supplies of bunch varieties were slightly in excess of the light demand, at unchanged rates. Green oats met a fair request; but cauliflowers and beans were not represented in any quantity, and their season is practically over.

A few broad beans were again offering, and were cleared readily at 5/ per bushel. Potatoes were cheaper, in sympathy with Sussex-street quotations; but otherwise there were no material alterations.

Quotations were:—

Beans, French (river), 3/ to 6/; broad beans, occasional quantities, 5/; peas, local, 4/ to 5/6 per bushel.

Pumpkins, local, prime 6/6 to 8/, small 5/ to 6/; onions, 6/ per cwt; swede turnips, 2/6 to 3/ per cwt. Sweet potatoes, 7/ to 8/ per cwt.

PIG SALES.

Offerings at yesterday's pig sales totalled 1509 head, of which the majority were porkers. The quality was generally good. Buyers were in usual attendance, and active competition prevailed. The supply of porkers was, however, slightly in excess of the demand, and values were a shade lower, while for baconers and backfatters the market fluctuated, values showing in some cases a noticeable decline.

The ruling prices were:—

Prime backfatters to £8/4/, good £6/15/ to £7/10/, medium £5/15/ to £6/5/, prime light, £4/10/ to £5, inferior and light £3/10/; prime baconers £5 to £5/5/, good £4/12/ to £4/16/, medium £3/18/ to £4/8/, prime light £3/12/ to £3/16/, others from £3/10/; prime porkers £3/8/ to £3/12/, good £2/18/ to £3/3/, medium £2/12/ to £2/16/, prime light £2/4/ to £2/8/, light and inferior from £1/10/.

MINING.

A LITTLE MORE LIFE.

Yesterday's operations in mining stocks on 'Change were a little more lively than they have been for at least a fortnight, and values, as a rule, improved somewhat for copper and silver-lead stocks, but eased for gold and tin. A few days ago Hampdens sold at 29/3; yesterday they were bought at 30/. Broken Hill Norths and Souths improved, the former /3 and the latter, paid section, by 1/6 on the price paid two or three weeks ago; while the contributing shares were 2/3 higher than they were last week. Junction North at 3/9 were /1 easier, but New Burragorang were /3 higher at 3/9 than on the previous day.

Edna May Deep shares were still in the grip of the bears, and after opening for cash at 34/3 went down by easy stages to 33/6, but stopped, and rose to 33/7½. Edna May Central closed 1/ lower than on Monday, but Araluen Redbank dredging were /3 higher at 2/ than the last recorded sale. Great Boulders sold at 12/6. In the tin section, Vegetable Creeks were firm at 6/, but Trongs and Kampongs were weaker than previously. A rumour gained currency during the afternoon that some development had occurred in the Wallaroo and Moonta mine, and though there was no business, the quotations stiffened by about 5/.

AMUSEMENTS.

BOY SCOUTS' CONCERT.

The concert at the Repertory Theatre last night in aid of the Observatory Hill Troop of Boy Scouts was under the direction of Mr. Charles Aston. About 40 Boy Scouts attended, under Scout-master Stower and Troop-leader H. Bickel. During the interval Mr. Johnstone, Commissioner of the Boy Scouts, explained that there were over 2000 scouts in New South Wales. The singers who gave their assistance were Miss Vera M'Donald, Miss Rosie Kidson, Signor Martinelli, and Mr. Charles Aston. Mr. W. J. Coad (violinist), Mr. Charles Philip, and Mr. Vern Barnett were the contributors to the instrumental part of the programme. Mr. Harry Leston, who lent his aid as a well-preserved veteran of the Australian stage, was enthusiastically recalled for his dramatic recitation, "The Uncle." Later in the evening Mr. Leston showed an astonishing amount of vigour in "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

EASTERN SUBURBS SOCIETY.

The Eastern Suburbs Society, one of the latest additions to the ranks of amateur opera-bouffe associations, produced Lecocq's sparkling piece "Giroflé-Girofla," at the Coronation Hall, Bondi, on Monday, and will repeat the work to-night and Saturday. Mr. J. A. J. Post (conductor) and Mrs. Arthur Hunter (stage-manager) had brought up the united forces to a creditable state of efficiency, whilst the inclusion of Miss Mabel Batchelor in the cast ensured vocal sweetness and brilliancy in the all-important dual rôle. Miss Eileen Parkinson (Pedro) and Mr. Frank Ryan (Don Bolero) were also favourably prominent. Mr. Cecil Yard (business manager) also announces performances next week.

"SENTIMENTAL BLOKE" POSTPONED.

Messrs. J. and N. Tait announce that, owing to Mr. Lawrence Campbell's cold being slightly worse, his "Sentimental Bloke" recital will be postponed until to-morrow. Tickets for last night and to-night's recitals can be exchanged at Nicholson's for any other night of the season, which has been extended until Tuesday next.

KEMP'S BUCKJUMPING SHOW.

Kemp's Buckjumping Show and Australian Rough-riding Combination are showing to good attendances every evening at Parramatta-road, Camperdown. The horses are all fit and well, and some real good contests are witnessed each evening.

ELLA M'KENZIE'S RECITAL.

At the Repertory Theatre on Saturday night Miss Ella M'Kenzie gave her second pianoforte recital to a much larger audience than at the previous recital earlier in the week. Successes were achieved in a Chopin group, Rhapsodie No. 14 (Liszt), and Staccato Caprice (Vogrich). Miss Stella Kingsbury assisted in a scene from "As You Like It," Mr. Warwick M'Kenzie in violin solos, and Mr. Lenard Mars in several well-chosen songs. Miss M'Kenzie played under a considerable difficulty owing to having received notice on the night before of the death of her brother at the front. It is expected that a considerable profit will be shown to the Voluntary Workers' Association.

MENANGLE PARK RACING CLUB.

MENANGLE, Tuesday.

The Menangle Park Cup meeting to-day was favoured with fine, but unseasonably warm, weather and a large attendance of leading city sportsmen and owners. The A.J.C. committee was represented by two of its members. Though the prize money amounted to £500, the receipts left a better margin of profit than the gate usually returns for the smaller programmes. The fields were large for every race. A field of 16 ran for the Cup, and 18 maidens tried conclusions in the first race. There was a strong betting ring operating, and a majority of the leading Randwick men put in an appearance. The battle between the books and backers ended about even. Backers scored heavily over the Cup, which Quarale won in a canter. Quarale has been most consistent of late. He is a gelding by St. Alwyne (imp.) from Archery, by Haut Brion (imp.) from Archeress, by Trenton, and was bred by Messrs. W. and F. Moses at Arrowfield. Quarale is engaged in the forthcoming Epsom Handicap with 6st 12lb. The only mishap to mar the afternoon's sport occurred during the race for the Maiden Handicap, in which Bunnagutha and Straight Line fell. The former, a daughter of Fortunatus, trained by J. Siely, broke one of her legs, and was destroyed. Results:—

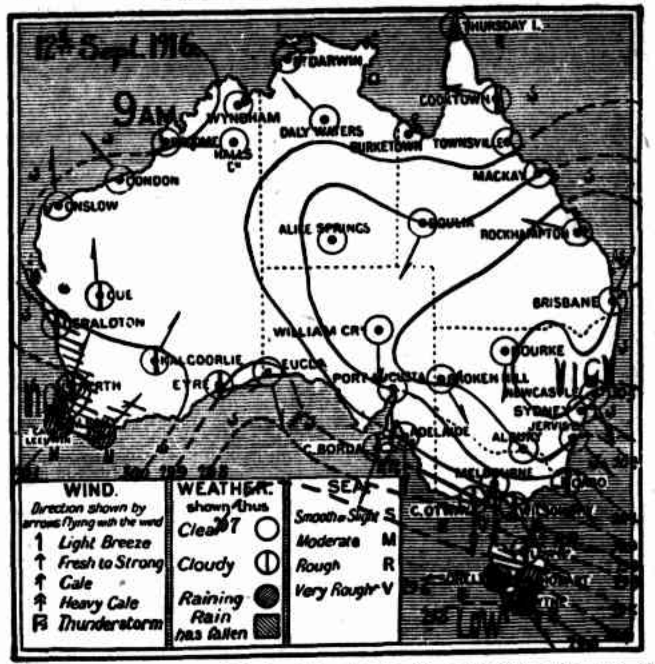
AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.



The high pressure has travelled about 500 miles to the north-east during the 24 hours ended at 9 a.m. yesterday, and has weakened slightly. The centre, which only covers a comparatively small area, extends from Dubbo to Brisbane, while the outer isobars reach as far as the centre of the continent.

With this distribution of pressure, not a single drop of rain has been recorded in New South Wales, Victoria, or South Australia; but in Tasmania, where the Antarctic holds sway, general rains have been registered. At 9 a.m. yesterday the Antarctic depression appears as a very extensive disturbance; it extends from the centre of the Bight to New Zealand, and between Melbourne and Hobart the gradients are rather steep, with the result that strong north-west winds are blowing.

The new high pressure in Western Australia has advanced eastward about 500 miles. Fine and warmer weather may be expected generally, with the exception of the southern border districts, where showers and squalls may be looked for.

Ocean Forecast.—Squally north-west winds east from Borda; squally south-east winds on north Queensland coast.

THE SILENT FLUSHER

IS THE VERY FINEST

SANITARY CISTERN.

Its advantages cannot be disputed—they are obvious, especially when the W.C. is inside the house, or in a bathroom.

First, the cistern can be placed outside, which eliminates leakage risks. NO NOISE.

The press-button is a distinct improvement on the old pull-chain method.

Every modern architect will recommend these Silent Flushers, and everyone interested in home-building should inspect in one of our showrooms, where we have a Silent Flusher installed.

DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY.

This great remedy was discovered after years of original research, and was used by Surgeon Charles F. Parker with great success while in charge of troops during the Sikkim Expedition in January, 1889, when, owing to the bad weather, the majority of the men were down with severe Rheumatism. Other treatments having failed, Dr. Parker's formula was tried, with almost miraculous results.

MUSCULAR RHEUMATISM.

I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism. Pain most severe in shoulders, arms, and thumbs. Uric Acid had crystallised in the parts, and prevented the blood from circulating. I suffered from Mental Depression and Insomnia. I used to lie awake at night; on rising in the morning I felt nervy and tired. Stomach weak and bowels irregular. I was recommended to try DR. PARKER'S GREAT INDIAN RHEUMATIC REMEDY, and I am thankful to say I did so, because I got relief from the first bottle, so I persevered with it, and I am pleased to testify to the truly wonderful merits of the Medicine, and will be pleased to recommend it to other sufferers. (Signed) C. DINSDALE, Leura, Thomas-street, Chatswood, Sydney.
